Thanks to the radio millions of people in this country who never heard of a political platform before now know what's in it.

With Kentucky's 26 votes for Al they may as well hoist the howdah to the back of the elephant and lay in some ammunition.

Not since 1603, when Queen Elizabeth lay speechless on her deathbed, surrounded by her ministers, who sought to learn from her in some sort of sign language her preference as to the succession, has a transfer of the scepter of power been made under such condition of fog as that prevailing at Kansas City. As a nod from the expiring virgin was interpreted by her puzzled statesmen, so is the silence of President Coolidge interpreted, and as the British crown passed to the Stuart kings of Scotland, so does the presidential nomination pass to an outsider. The party of Blaine, Harrison, McKinley and Roosevelt has seen the last of its Tudors.

With Gov. Smith's nomination practically assured, the average person of detached viewpoint who places the welfare of the country ahead of partisanship will feel satisfied in the reflection that whoever wins in November he will be a man who never yet has made a failure of anything in life he ever attempted.

* * * *

The first thing the Hoover campaign managers will need to do will be to expose the yarn that the Secretary of Commerce owes his nomination to Bill Vare, the Philadelphia boss, who isn't considered good enough to sit in the Senate. The absurdity of that tale is apparent to anybody who will take the trouble to analyze it, but in a political campaign a doleful tag like this sticks like a cocklebur in a mule's tale.

The sullen Lowden, like Achilles sulking in his tent, has only himself to blame if he doesn't like this nomination, for it was his dog-in-the-manger attitude that prevented an available dark horse from getting at the oats. Like Mr. Kremlin, "he had only one idea, and that was wrong."

Looks as though old Virginny was getting ready to join the Al Smith parade. We fear Carter Glass will have to go to Europe with Tom Heflin and Senator Simmons.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is dead and doubtless died content—she lived to see Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt running the Republican National Convention.

The farmers get it in the neck.
Will Seth and Si now vote for Smith?
That's just another campaign myth.

Three doors down the way from Mr. Hoover's S street home is the house where Woodrow Wilson died, and from its windows, up Twenty-third street, may be seen the residence of William H. Taft. There isn't another spot in the United States where the rubberneck wagons need so little gas in covering three buildings of such historic interest.

Gov. Lowden's letter withdrawing his name because in his opinion the platform fails to find a remedy for the ills of agriculture is a better campaign document than the Democrats could have thought up for themselves.

TILSON TAKES LEAD FOR RUNNING MATE WITH HOOVER'S O.K.

CHIEFS HOLD PARLEY AS MARCH IS STOLEN

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Kansas City, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—By an active personal campaign, bearing the tacit approval of Herbert Hoover, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, has stolen a march on the field of vice presidential candidates whose fate had been more or less entrusted to the fortunes of a conference of leaders who hoped tonight to get a definite word from the Secretary after he is actually nominated.

Mr. Tilson went direct to Hoover over the long distance telephone today to ask if there was an objection to his campaign for the Vice Presidency. Mr. Tilson said that Mr Hoover without committing himself on any candidate declared Tilson's activities perfectly acceptable.

Working on this basis, Mr. Tilson declared tonight he had accumulated a good number of votes, including the delegations from Mississippi, Texas, the "border" States of the South, and perhaps New York with its block of 90.

Strategy Board Busy.

While the Connecticut representative,, who is floor leader of the House, was busy bagging votes this afternoon, a self-appointed board of strategy was active in another quarter trying to solve the puzzle into which the contest had developed by virtue of the record number of entries.

Groups of Republican leaders went into conference tonight seeking to find a vice presidential candidate acceptable to Hoover and to the convention and hopes were held out that sufficient strength could be mustered over night for one man to assure his nomination tomorrow.

More than a dozen names stood out of the 20 candidates known to be in the running when the leaders gathered about quarters of Secretary Work, who has been active in the Hoover cam-

KENTUCKY'S 26 VOTES ARE GIVEN TO SMITH

State Convention Unanimously Votes Indorsement of Governor.

Lexington, Ky., June 14 (A.P.).—Kentucky Democrats tonight went on record as favoring the nomination of Gov Smith, New York, for President by deciding to cast their 26 votes for him at the national convention.

The convention adopted the report of the resolutions committee indorsing Smith after James D. Black, former governor, read the report.

Princeton Graduate Killed by Lightning

Princeton, N. J., June 14 (A.P.).—Robert W. Patterson, of Pittsburgh, was killed by a bolt of lightning tonight while attending the fifteenth reunion of the class of 1913 at Princeton University. He was standing under a tree opposite Palmer Stadium when the tree was struck.

The class discharged a jazz orchestra which was to have provided music tonight and held a memorial service at which President John Grier Hibben spoke.

Patterson had played on the freshman football and varsity hockey teams.

9 Planes Are Downed In Storm; Pilot Killed

Paris, June 14 (A.P.).—Nine of 21 Army planes which last night attempted a flight after dark from Nancy to Le Bourget Field were caught in a storm. Five of them were forced down near Nancy, and four of the five managed to return to that place. The rest of the nine that encountered the storm landed in the suburbs of Paris. One of these crashed, causing the death of an observer. The other planes in the flight escaped the storm.

STEWART, WITH SMILE, SILENT ON ACQUITTAL

(Associated Press.)

Robert W. Stewart, whose resignation as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, recently was demanded by John D. Rockefeler, jr., was acquitted yesterday by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme Court of charges of refusing to answer questions of the Senate oil committee.

Stewart sprang into the spotlight of the oil investigation by his refusal last February to answer questions of the committee, resulting in his arrest, and then his reappearance at which he admitted he had received $759,500 of Liberty bonds from H. S. Osler, president of the Continental Trading Co. He said that he had not personally profited a penny from the bonds and had turned them over to his company.

It was after his second appearance that Rockefeller, a stockholder in the Indiana Standard, demanded Stewart's resignation, but publicly the chairman of the board paid no attention to the millionaire's demand. Only recently two close friends of Stewart were made members of the board of the company to fill vacancies.

Mussolini Demand Sent to Jugoslavia

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, June 14 (A.P.) Premier Mussolini served another peremptory note on the Jugoslav government today demanding reparation for a fresh attack on the Italian consulate at Sebanico during which Italian officials were stoned.

Several weeks ago there were extensive riots in Jugoslavia against Italy, students demonstrating against the Jugoslav government's plan to adopt a treaty which would give Italian citizens the right to hold land within 30 miles of the Jugoslav coast along the Adriatic.

After a sharp note from the Italian premier, the Jugoslav government made an apology to Italy for the disorders and promised full reparation for the damage caused Italians.

DR. BUTLER VAINLY URGES STRIKING OUT BONE-DRY PLEDGE

LA FOLLETTE IS GIVEN RESPECTFUL HEARING

By ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Kansas City, Mo., June 14.—Prohibition "observance and vigorous enforcement" received the approval of the Republican convention today.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, voiced a futile protest against the bone-dry plank that was written into the party platform at the insistence of the Antisaloon League.

A substitute plank proposing repeal of the eighteenth amendment, which was offered by Dr. Butler, was tabled by a viva voce vote on the motion of Col. Fred M. Dowe, of Maine, a son of Neal Dow, of early prohibition fame.

"On behalf of a great host of men and women," said Dr. Butler, "loyal and devoted Republicans who are greatly concerned at the evils, moral, social and political that have followed on the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, I move to strike out the prohibition plank from the majority report of the resolutions committee."

Sees Nullification or Repeal.

"This has nothing to do with the abolition of the saloons or the control of liquor traffic," he said. "This is solely a question of government and we are faced with the alternative of nullification or repeal. Nullification means nation-wide lawlessness and our land made a paradise for the bootlegger. Repeal is a path of honesty and straight dealing."

The party platform was approved in all respects as reported from the resolutions committee by Senator Smoot, Utah. Besides the big fight of the day on the farm relief plank, on which McNary-Haugen bill advocates met defeat, and the flurry over prohibition, the

Father of Empress Escapes a Dagger

London, June 14 (A.P.).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokyo says that an attempt was made to assassinate Prince Kuni, father of the present empress, during his visit to Formosa on May 14. This was learned when the press ban on news of the attempt was lifted today.

The dispatch stated that a Korean rushed at Prince Kuni's automobile and hurled a dagger. The prince was not injured.

Judges in the national contest to select a title for the forthcoming volume of verse by Edgar A. Guest, whose poems appear daily in The Post, yesterday awarded the $1,000 prize to the Rev Merton S. Rice, of Detroit, Mich. The winning title was:

"Harbor Lights of Home."

This title was selected by the judges as the best of about half a million suggestions made by newspaper readers throughout the country. The winner of the contest, pastor of the Metropolitan Episcopal Church, of Detroit, submitted the following letter with his title:

"'Harbor Lights of Home,' because Edgar Guest has, in his verse, set more safe signals in the way of home in these home-needy days of ours, than any other writer among us."

The judges in The Washington Post local contest yesterday announced the following awards: First, Col. Constantine M Perkins, The Fairfax, 2100 Massachusetts avenue northwest; second, William H. Smith, 5304 Forsett place northwest; third, Leslie C. Merrell, 1736 G street northwest; fourth, E. Gwendolin Taylor, 1719 Thirteenth street northwest; fifth, Lieut. Allen H. White, U. S. N., 2726 Connecticut avenue northwest.

HOOVER IS NEAR TEARS FOLLOWING NOMINATION

FELICITATED BY FRIENDS

Plainly overcome with emotion, with tears suspiciously near the surface, and yet making a supreme effort to maintain his customary calmness, Herbert Clark Hoover, Republican nominee for President of the United States, last night was almost speechless when the tally of the first ballot at the convention showed that he had been overwhelmingly selected as the choice of the Grand Old Party for the highest office in the land.

So apparent was his desire to be alone that fifteen minutes after the result, which has been considered a foregone conclusion ever since the convention opened, was announced Secretary Hoover had accepted the congratulations of his small gathering of friends and the corps of newspaper men, bidden them goodnight and was alone with his family.

Speaking to the representatives of the press, to whom he had thrown open the hospitality of his home for the evening, Secretary Hoover merely stated that he could make no comment, and in response to their congratulations said "thank you." His voice was barely audible, and when asked if he might be interviewed in the morning he answered that he could not say at that time.

Mr. Hoover, surrounded by a few friends and his family, received the result at his home at 2300 S street northwest, and heard the entire evening's proceedings of the convention

By BYRON PRICE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Convention Hall, Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—Herbert Hoover, of California, wartime food administrator and for the past seven years Secretary of Commerce under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, was nominated for the Presidency on a first ballot landslide tonight by the Republican national convention.

Although his selection had been forecast for days, the proportions of his victory did not become apparent until the call of the roll actually was under way. He was helped on by his nearest competitor, Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, who withdrew his name just on the eve of the balloting because he could not approve the farm relief plank adopted today over the protest of the McNary-Haugen farm bloc, and in the end 24 of the 61 of Lowden's own Illinois votes slipped into the Hoover column to help swell the total high above the simple majority needed to nominate.

The result of the convention's one and only ballot was as follows: Hoover, 837; Curtis, 64; Watson, 45; Dawes, 4; Coolidge, 17; Norris, 24; Goff, 18; Lowden, 74; Hughes, 1; not voting, 5. The number necessary for a nomination, considering the absentees, was 543.

Nominate Vice President Today.

Only the selection of a vice presidential candidate remains to complete the work of the convention. This choice will be made tomorrow. In which direction it will fall was not apparent tonight for at least a score of candidates were flying kites as the party leaders began numerous consultations on the subject after the late adournment of the convention until tomorrow noon and sought meantime to get in touch with Mr. Hoover himself in Washington and learn whether he had a preference.

It was in the presence of an impressive and colorful outpouring of political enthusiasm that the Secretary of Commerce was entrusted with the standard of his party. What began on Tuesday as a dignified and almost somber convention had become tonight a marching, shouting, demonstrating convention, making such noise as it pleased in such manner as it pleased, while powerless officials sat back and watched.

A 23-minute Hoover demonstration interrupted at the outset the speech placing him in nomination, a second followed conclusion of the speech, and there was a briefer, crowning third as the nomination was made unanimous after the roll call and the delegates marched out of the hall.

Lowden Withdrawal Surprises.

Kansas gave her favorite son, Senator Curtis, a howling send-off, helped by many generous Hooverites. In fact, everybody got a big hand throughout the whole of the long oratorical flourish with which the convention, according to custom, approached its final vote on the Presidency.

The Lowden withdrawal, coming unexpectedly on top of the bitter floor fight of this afternoon over farm relief, left some of the delegates glum for a while, but they made the best of it. There were a few "boos" and a few cheers from the delegate section when Mr. Lowden's message of withdrawal

MALE NURSE IS FREED IN KILLING OF DOCTOR

Jury Accepts the Defendant's Story That He Shot Physician in Self-Defense.

Louisville, Ky., June 14 (A.P.).—A male nurse, confessed slayer of a physician here two months ago, was freed by a jury on a murder charge yesterday.

The victim, Dr. Christopher Schott, was slain in his own sanatorium by Dan Newman, employed by a patient there. Newman testified he fired in self defense after Dr. Schott reached for his hip pocket. Other nurses and employes said the victim had been drinking heavily and was in an "ugly temper."

Newman said on the witness stand that Dr. Schott had confessed to him the murder of his office girl in 1919 and of a fellow physician, not identified, at some later date. This admission caused Dr. Schott to threaten him for fear of exposure, he said.

The slain man faced a murder charge when the girl, Elizabeth Ford Griffith, 17, was found shot to death in his office, but the grand jury failed to indict.

COOLIDGES REMAIN IN CLOSE SECLUSION AS TRAIN SPEEDS ON

FIRST LADY'S CONDITION IS REPORTED IMPROVING

Chicago, June 14, Aboard President Coolidge's Special Train en Route to Superior, Wis. (A.P.).—Leaving Chicago well behind him on his way to Superior, Wis., President Coolidge had before him tonight only relatively few miles before reaching his summer White House on the Brule River tomorrow morning.

The trip, carried out since the departure from Washington strictly on schedule, was expected to land Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge in Superior in time to allow them to settle down in their new temporary home before luncheon.

Pleased at the change in weather, which from a rainy and sodden morning turned into a bright and clear afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge spent most of their time gazing at the countryside, the former from the observation platform, the latter from her bed on which she lay all day fully dressed.

President Appears at Chicago.

Since early morning the special train was the object of demonstrations at all stations where it stopped or even where it merely slowed down. Word of the passage of the train had got abroad, although efforts had been made to keep its schedule secret for the President's safety.

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Coolidge, however, came out on the observation platform to receive the applause of the crowds. It was said that Mrs. Coolidge's condition prevented her from moving and that the chief executive, out of regard for her, preferred to stay secluded also. At several stations, however, flowers were brought and offered to Mrs. Coolidge, who sent back word of her appreciation.

At the California avenue yards in Chicago, where the presidential train stopped half an hour, a larger crowd than anywhere else, composed mostly of railroad workers, gathered at the end of the train. While a group of workers clustered around the car wiping the windows and shining the brass, President Coolidge for the first time on the trip surrendered to the clamors of the crowd and appeared on the observation platform in a gray flannel suit and a cloth cap.

Mrs. Coolidge Convalesces.

Dozens of photographers snapped Coolidge in many poses while the whole contingent of four White House dogs, all of whom had been brought back to the special car, kept up a continuous and merry yapping. Mrs. Coolidge, as before, did not appear.

Col. James F. Coupal, White House physician, announced today that the journey so far had been found most restful both by President and Mrs. Coolidge. Mrs. Coolidge, despite the fact that she is still convalescing from a sudden indisposition which seized her last Monday, suffered no ill effects from the trip and today was more cheerful than she has yet been since her relapse, without temperature and having a good appetite.

President Coolidge, after rising early and reading the papers which were deposited on board at all stations, spent a considerable part of the morning playing with Rob Roy, the White House collie. The other dogs were relegated to the baggage car. Rob Roy, in fact, provided the chief animation on the presidential car. Insisting on remaining on the observation platform he spent the day barking continuously at all objects which caught his attention. In the stations he was the only member of the special car who greeted the crowds.

Quiet Welcome Awaits President in Wisconsin

Superior, Wis., June 14 (A.P.).—A typical Coolidge reception is awaiting the President at the summer capital. When President and Mrs. Coolidge alight from their special train here tomorrow morning there will be no speeches. A few handclasps perhaps a "welcome to Wisconsin," or two, and some cheering will constitute the ceremonies.

This plan was made known by the "presidential committee" late today. "It is the kind of reception we think will please the President," said one member. "Brief and to the point. Sincere and heartfelt, but with no oratory."

The plans call for a transfer of President and Mrs. Coolidge from their train to an automobile at the station and then a drive to Cedar Island Lodge, their summer home on the Brule River, about 39 miles.

City Elaborately Decorated.

This will take them through the principal streets of Superior, which have been elaborately decorated for the occasion and also past Central High School, where the executive offices are located.

Thousands planned to take up vantage points near the depot and along the route to the lodge early in the morning, bringing their breakfasts with them.

FEMINIST DEAD

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST.

MRS. PANKHURST, LEADER OF SUFFRAGISTS, IS DEAD

MILITANT IN HER METHOD

London, June 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, once England's most militant suffragette, died in a nursing home here today. She was 69 years old.

Death came to Mrs. Pankhurst just before she might have fulfilled the highest ambition of her stormy career, namely, to become a member of that Parliament she had so long and valiantly flouted. But she lived long enough to see the full accomplishment of the aim to which she courageously devoted the whole of her public life. She was daunted neither by mockery nor imprisonment in her fight in behalf of women, who now possess the parliamentary vote on equal terms with men.

Young women of 21 who will be entitled to vote at the general election next year can realize but faintly the ferocity of the struggle Mrs. Pankhurst and her militant adherents waged 20 years ago against the prejudice and conservatism which refused the vote to women. The terrible struggle is recalled in pictures reproduced in the public press today, depicting Mrs. Pankhurst being carried bodily by burly policemen from the precincts of Buckingham Palace, still loudly shouting: "Votes for women."

Afterward the Women's Freedom League came into being and its adherents adopted militant methods. Holloway Jail was frequently used by the authorities to attempt to check the activities of the women. Mrs. Pankhurst was often in and out of that institution and her last offense brought a sentence of penal servitude. She started a hunger strike and was released before the sentence was completed. Of late years Mrs. Pankhurst had been a constitutionalist. At the time of her death she was the Conservative candidate for commons from Whitechapel. She was also engaged in the peaceful and prosperous occupation of running a tea room.

Coroner to Conduct Inquest Today; Brother Held by Police.

Theodore Curtis, 11 years old, 1634 Trinidad avenue northeast, who was shot through the head Monday night by an air rifle shot while playing with his brother in their room, died last night in Casualty Hospital. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt will conduct an inquest into the boy's death at the District Morgue this morning.

Theodore lapsed into a coma a few moments after he was shot and did not recover consciousness before his death. Police had been detailed at the hospital hoping to get the boy's story of the shooting.

Charles R. Curtis, 21 years old, brother of the dead boy, is being held by the police of the Ninth Precinct pending action by the coroner's jury. He told police that both he and his brother were carrying air rifles while playing in the house. While running upstairs, one of the guns accidentally was discharged, he told police, and Theodore fell to the floor. He was unable to tell police which rifle the shot came.

Veteran Found Dead In Tub of Hot Water

E. M. Barnes, about 70 years old, resident at the United States Soldiers' Home, was found dead in a bathtub full of hot water in the home hospital Wednesday afternoon, police learned yesterday. Details of the man's death could not be obtained at the institution, police said, because its records had been locked up for the night.

Barnes was stricken with a heart attack while bathing and became unconscious, police were told. The hot-water faucet was turned on and the tub soon became filled. Walter Torrence, an attendant, found his body. Deputy Coroner Joseph Rogers last night prepared to make an investigation.

Fare Increase Plea Authorized by Board

Officers of the Capital Traction Co. yesterday were officially authorized by the board of directors of that corporation to file with the Public Utilities Commission an application for an increase in the rate of car fare.

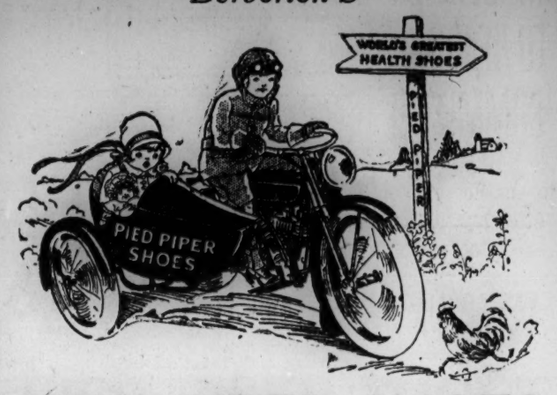

The extent of the increase to be asked was not announced. It was said that the application probably would be filed with the commission today, at which time it would be revealed what new schedule the car company proposes to charge if the commission accedes to its request.

8 PROSTRATED BY HEAT; STORM HITS KENSINGTON

96 DEGREES AT KIOSK

While heat was causing eight prostrations in the city yesterday, a freak wind and hail storm descended on Kensington and other nearby towns in Montgomery County, Md. None of the prostrations was regarded as serious, and in Maryland the only damage from the storm was that caused to trees.

The city obtained some relief from the heat of the last two days last night, when a mild and cooling breeze blew over the capital.

The freak windstorm in Kensington broke up a tour of Montgomery County by members of the Maryland senate. They were to have had luncheon with Senator Eugene Jones, of Kensington, at the Manor Club, and arrived just as the storm swept over the section.

The wind blew chairs off the porch of the club house, and strewed the grounds with broken tree limbs. Many of the golfers caught on the course were unable to stand against the wind and sought protection by lying on the ground.

Six of the persons prostrated were treated at Emergency Hospital, three of whom left without leaving their names. The three whose names were taken were: Howard Burke, 36 years old, 314 E street northwest N. Holland, 26 years old, 1477 Newton street northwest, and William Gill, colored, 20, 1629 East Capitol street. Casualty hospital physicians treated the remaining two, but did not take their names. All went home after being revived.

Although the maximum temperature recorded by the Weather Bureau was 90 degrees, the kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue registered 96 degrees at the same hour, after having risen 21 degrees after 6 o'clock in the morning.

Cloudy skies and a slight shower brought relief to the city shortly after 2 o'clock. The mercury at the kiosk tumbled sharply to 80 degrees by 4 o'clock. A gradual descent continued throughout the hours following. The weather officials stated it would be cooler today.

Two Soldiers Bitten By Dog at Airdrome

The stray dog that terriorized Bolling Field, Army Air Corps station, yesterday, biting Privates Henry A. Carroll and Wade Todd was killed by police late yesterday.

When the dog, frothing at the mouth, was first noticed, a squad of soldiers attempted to surround it. The animal bit two of the party and broke through the cordon. The pursuit resulting in its death then began. Antirabic treatment will be administered to the bitten soldiers.

2 WOMEN FLIERS MAY START SEA TRIPS TODAY

AZORES STULTZ'S GOAL

St. Johns, Newfoundland, June 14 (A.P.).—Tomorrow's rising sun, it seemed probable tonight, will shine down on two American women flying along different courses to Europe, unless the superstition against beginning an undertaking on a Friday holds one ashore.

The women are Miss Amelia Earhart and Miss Mabel Boll. Miss Earhart announced at Trepassey today that she would take off with her two-man crew at 2 a. m., Eastedn daylight time, by way of the Azores, where a stop will be made for fuel. Miss Mabel Boll was waiting at Harbor Grace for weather favorable for a hop along the great circle course. She also has two men to operate her plane.

It is Miss Boll, using Charles A. Levine's transatlantic monoplane Columbia, who has strong ideas about Friday. She postponed taking off on the first leg of her flight from Roosevelt Field because preparations were not completed until Friday.

Both women had planned to follow the great circle course to Europe, but Miss Earhart's seaplane Friendship failed to rise from the water in repeated attempts with the load of fuel necessary to mak. the 1,900-mile hop, so 200 gallons of gasoline were jettisoned, and the course changed to permit a stop for refueling at the Azores. From there the course will be laid to Lisbon and then to Southampton. The destination of the Columbia has not been announced.

The weather bureau in New York today forecast Atlantic weather for tomorrow, which aviators interpreted as not unfavorable for an attempt along either the northern or the southern course.

Siam's Field Marshal Dead, Legation Told

Word of the death of Field Marshal Prince Bhumurangsi, 68 years old, of Siam, brother of the late King Chulalonkarana and last surviving uncle of the present monarch, King Prajadhitok of Siam, was received yesterday at the Siamese Embassy. The death occurred Wednesday night in Bangkok as the result of a brief illness of colitis, followed by pneumonia.

Prince Bhmurangsi's career extended through three reigns and covered the period of the modern development of Siam. He held several cabinet posts and was recognized as his nation's greatest statesman.

DAY SESSION GIVEN TO HEARING PLANKS; COMMITTEE UPHELD

PLEAS FROM THE WEST FAIL TO CHANGE STAND

By JAMES L. WILLIAMS
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Kansas City, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—Sweeping ahead toward the nomination of Herbert Hoover, the Republican national convention today buried the 1928 platform hopes of the McNary-Haugen supporters as well as those of opponents of the prohibition law and then ordered a night session to designate the candidate for President.

It turned a polite but deaf ear to fervid urgings of speakers who sought to impress a warning that defeat of the equalization fee principle meant party ruin in November. By a roaring chorus of noes it crushed the final attempt to change the platform pronouncement on farm relief advanced by the resolutions committee. This pledged the party to aid the farmer in helping himself.

The vote on the motion to indorse the McNary-Haugen bill was defeated by the overwhelming vote of 807 to 277. Then the convention gave Nicholas Murray Butler a few minutes to ask that the platform declare for repeal of the Volstead act. There was no roll call on his motion, which was swamped in a yea-and-nay vote, and the convention recessed and called for a night session to name the presidential nominee.

Courteous to Anti-Hooverites.

The controlling forces of the convention were courteous to the anti-Hoover group; they cheered their oratorical ability roundly. But when the voting time came the plans of the minority were smothered effectively and with precision. To Senator Borah, of Idaho, who vigorously defended President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, and to the young Senator Bob La Follette went the oratorical honors in the opinion of the delegates, who gave them both wild ovations.

President Coolidge received the greatest demonstration of the day when Borah declared that had he consented to become a candidate he could carry all of the agricultural States, despite his veto and that the farmers would come to look upon him in time as one who had protected them.

Most of the delegates were on their feet cheering wildly for the President when Borah had concluded. Chairman Moses restored order with difficulty and the convention, keyed to the pitch, quickly brushed aside the motion of E. C. Smith, an Illinois delegate, to amend the platform so as to include the equalization fee principle.

Smoot Committee Is Upheld.

The Hoover forces, solidly supporting the platform recommendations brought in by Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the resolutions committee, also turned down without a roll call a substitute platform offered by Senator La Follette, which was similar to those offered to Republican conventions in the past by the Wisconsin group. La Follette, who led the attack against the controlling forces of the convention, read his platform, as did Senator Smoot, and at the end the convention, while refusing him the votes necessary for his cause, applauded him vociferously.

Meeting at 10 a. m. with the purpose of driving the nomination of Hoover through today or tonight, the convention listened first to Smoot, who, in his unemotional way, read the 57-page document prepared by a majority of his committee. He spoke for an hour and insisted that the agricultural plank which he presented was the best thing that could be done for agriculture. There were periods of mild applause as he went along, a fair-sized demonstration following a reference to Secretary Hoover, but Chairman Moses had no difficulty in cutting it short.

Something Specific Demanded.

Then, after La Follette had had his say, which included a plea for the McNary-Haugen bill, Smith offered his which he told the convention that the farmers were tired of generalities and would now look for something specific in the way of relief from present economic questions with which they were faced.

Frank W. Murphy, of Minnesota, an official of the Corn Belt Federation of farm organizations, a man with a stentorian voice that could be heard all over the hall without the aid of the amplifiers, followed Smith with what he termed a "little plain talk." He told the delegates that if the Republican party did not want to drive the voters of the middle West out of its ranks it must meet the issue "head-on."

"The farmers are through with platform pledges," Murphy said, as the McNary-Haugen delegations cheered. During the latter part of Murphy's speech a demonstration was started, led by a cheer leader in the gallery who, in approved college style, went through all of the gyrations used in rousing enthusiasm. Even after Murphy had taken his seat the uproar continued for some minutes, despite all efforts of Chairman Moses to restore quiet.

Gov. McMullen Speaker.

Several five-minute speeches in favor of the Smith motion were allowed when the demonstration died down, Gov. McMullen of Nebraska and Dan W. Turner, of Iowa, both admonishing the delegates that they were treading on dangerous ground in not acceding to what they said were the demands of agriculture.

Representative Fort, of New Jersey, a Hoover leader and a member of the House agriculture committee, took up the cudgels first in favor of the platform as submitted and against the equalization fee, telling the convention that the Smith plan meant that agriculture would be turned over to the Government.

He was followed by Borah, who said the "one problem" was to enable the American farmer to reach his market "without being robbed on the way." He pledged the party to enact a law that would make the American market a market for the farmer and insisted that the equalization fee was shot through with principles repugnant to the Constitution and to the American principle that no law could be enacted turning over to a bureau in Washington the power to levy taxes upon the farmer.

Dr. Butler Urges His Plank.

Dr. Butler, in urging his plank, declared the country was faced with "repeal or nullification" of the prohibition law.

"We are faced with repealing it or making this land a paradise for bootleggers," he said. "Come up to the high places and stand for the service of good government against the service of demagoguery and debauchery. Butler is bitterly opposed to the plank in the platform inserted by Borah, naming the eighteenth amendment specifically as one that should be enforced. No one answered his speech and the convention recessed.

Prospects tonight were that it would require overnight conferences to determine upon a move to select a Vice Presidential candidate. Secretary Hoover has steadfastly declined to discuss the situation in any way, his friends said, until after a Presidential nominee is selected.

Moses Starts Session Early.

Three minutes before the opening hour Senator Moses began to whack the table with his big wooden mallet, shouting for the delegates to take their seats. To a casual observer, unschooled in the niceties of parliamentary practice, it appeared very doubtful indeed whether a quorum was present but the chairman determined to go ahead. The galleries still were at least nine-tenths empty.

Other spectators, such of them as were present, paid little attention to Moses' petition for order, but he persisted in his determination to start on time, or ahead of time, willy nilly.

He presented Rabbi Herman M. Cohen, of Kansas City, who pronounced the opening invocation as everybody stood. He prayed that all of the acts of the convention should be in accord with the purposes of the Divine Father.

Then Senator Moses, in a few crisp sentences, reminded the convention of the advent of flag day, and, taking the silken folds of Old Glory in his hands, continued:

"We claim no monopoly on the flag, but we do recall that the first task of our party was to make this flag the symbol of a united country."

The band played the "Star Spangled Banner, and the audience stood and sang the words. Then the bandsmen got their signals mixed and broke into the "Stars and Stripes Forever," while Moses hammered unavailingly with his gavel and snapped a whole squad of messengers into action to get the music shut off. This got results, and the chairman recognized Senator Smoot to present the platform. The rules of the House of Representatives were in effect, limiting speeches to five minutes each, but Senator Moses said he would entertain motions to suspend the rules to permit speakers to have "ten minutes—and no more."

Smoot got a good hand as he stepped up before the microphones and began to read the platform, but his voice did not carry to every section of the hall and there were shouts of "louder." The platform itself got its first applause, a brief interim of handclapping, when the committee chairman read the sentence indorsing unequivocally the administration of President Coolidge.

Scarcely had Smoot read two pages before Chairman Moses walked to the runway and rapped loudly with his gavel, directing the delegates to take their seats. "No further business will be transacted until the delegates take their seats."

Raucous Cries of "Louder."

The Utah senator resumed reading, but was interrupted by raucous cries of "louder" from the far-off galleries. That halted him for a moment and he changed his position so that he came within the range of the battery of "mikes" at the front of the runway.

Delegates continued to mill around, wandering up and down the aisles and along the passageways in the rear. The hour of meeting seemed to be a little early for a majority of the ticket holders and half an hour after the convention convened there were great gaps of empty seats in the galleries.

Smoot had the copy of the platform on a music rack and he rested both hands on each side of it as he was fairly well worn out by the long fight over the platform which he presented.

Every mention of President Coolidge's name brought applause. The reading was interrupted a third time with cries of "louder" and Senator Moses rushed to the front of the runway to pound vigorously.

"The delegates will take their seats," he yelled. "The delegate from Utah will suspend until there is order. Guests must either find seats or retire from hall."

Treasury Record "Unrivaled."

The platform declaration that "the record of the U. S. Treasury under Secretary Mellon stands unrivaled and unsurpassed" brought a round of applause. The Treasury Secretary himself sat with the Pennsylvania delegation only a short distance from the platform.

Again there was handclapping when Smoot told of the more than $6,000,000,000 of reduction in the public debt during the seven years of Republican administration.

Senator Smoot read slowly in an effort to conserve his voice for the task of wading through the 9,000-word document which covered 57 typewritten pages.

After Smoot had gotten through the tax plank, the crowd again set up its cry of "louder." Chairman Moses again pounded for order.

"The delegate from Utah will suspend," he said. "The chair hesitates to use harsh measures but it is prepared to turn loose the large army of deputy sergeants-at-arms to preserve order if the delegates themselves are unable to do so."

Laughter and Applause.

That brought order with a little laughter and applause and Smoot went ahead with the tariff plank. He raised his voice a pitch or two and the crowd was better able to hear, although it appeared doubtful whether the Utah delegate could finish the marathon reading at that pitch.

The declaration for increased tariff rates for the protection of the American farmer got a scattering of applause.

The threat of the chairman to send forward the phalanx of deputy sergeants-at-arms seemed to have good effect on the delegates, the great majority of whom remained in their places and followed the reading of the declaration upon which the party goes to the country in November.

The declaration that the party would continue to steadfastly oppose the cancellation of foreign debts met with the expressed approval of the convention.

Late comers to the fourth session caused a lot of confusion as they sought their places in the galleries. A hum of conversation also ran over the convention hall but the loudspeaker was able to carry Smoot's voice above it.

The constantly rising hum of floor and gallery conversation with which Senator Smoot had to compete was checked temporarily at least after a delegate in the Oregon delegation, not 50 feet from the speaker, told the chairman that Smoot could not be heard even at that distance, and asked whether something could not be done about it. Moses hammered with effect, shouting, "Delegates will take their seats. All delegates will take their seats. And photographers will also take their seats."

This final shot was at a scurrying pack of camermen who had edged into the delegate section in the hope of getting a few choice snaps at celebrities. They were chased to cover by the deputy sergeants-at-arms. The hall was much quieter for a while as the reading went on.

Many of the delegates had not previously heard the language of the agricultural relief plank, and Senator Smoot had no trouble commanding the attention of the convention when he reached that part of the reading. Those from the industrial sections, as well as the delegates from the McNary-Haugen country livened very closely.

There was just a spatter of applause from widely scattered sections of the hall when Smoot read the promise for aid to cooperative marketing and one or two longer bursts of applause as he went on down through the phrases dealing with tariff and other considerations and winding up with the declaration for "economic equality" for agriculture.

Real Cheers for Hoover.

There was a real, sure enough cheer, approaching the dimensions of a demonstration when Senator Smoot reached the plank commending the work of the Department of Commerce under "Secretary Herbert Hoover." The delegates came to their feet at this first mention in the convention of the name of the man for whom a majority already has decided to vote for President. As the cheering continued, some one in the California delegation unfurled a California State flag with its bear and star and waved it aloft while a man in the Texas delegation took up his State standard and started toward the platform in an attempt to organize a parade. But he desisted and returned to his place as Chairman Moses hammered for order. The would-be parader was C. O. Harris, of San Angelo, Tex.

The standards of New Hampshire, Kentucky, New Jersey, Louisiana, Maryland and Arkansas also were raised aloft by Hoover delegates in those delegations and rocked backward and forward above the heads of the cheering crowd.

The ovation had continued for three minutes when the chairman finally rapped the demonstrators back into their seats. By this time the galleries all were full and some one had stepped up the voice amplifying apparatus so that Senator Smoot's words apparently could be heard to the outer edges of the circular galleries. The crowd was quiet, but there was much moving about and a great deal of brow-wiping and fanning with palm leaves, hats and newspapers as the delegates and spectators tried to keep comfortable in the mounting heat of the convention hall. It had been cool at the beginning of the session, but by now the temperature had climbed to around the mid-June average.

Clapping for Prohibition Plank.

Just a flutter of hand clapping greeted the prohibition plank, in which the party is pledged to the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. This plank was something new, for four years ago the Cleveland convention contented itself with a blanket declaration for the enforcement of all laws.

Smoot finished the reading in one hour and fifteen minutes and then moved the adoption of the report, but Chairman Moses recognized Senator Robert M. Lafollette, jr., who presented a minority plank. The Wisconsin delegation stood up and cheered, and the youthful senator was given applause by the other delegates and galleries.

Lafollette, in a brief introductory speech, said Wisconsin always had sent a Progressive delegation to the national conventions and always presented a minority platform. Lafollette declared that while the first of the platforms Wisconsin offered had been "hissed and jeered" in the convention, 32 of the 35 proposals which had been made have been written into law.

Cheer From Some Sections.

This brought a whooping cheer from some sections of the convention with a yell from the south gallery "Atta boy, Bob."

Lafollette got a real cheer from the galleries and some of the delegates when he read his proposed farm relief plank, which declared for the equalization fee. When the senator declared that the President had prevented the McNary-Haugen bill from becoming a law by a veto, many of the delegates cheered, the Massachusetts delegation, in the front row right opposite the platform, leading in the cheering.

Lafollette bowed and smiled at the cheering delegates and then took a drink of water. When the applause ceased, he said: "Ladies and gentlemen, it is so unusual for a delegate from Wisconsin to be cheered in a Republican national convention that I thank you."

Cheered for Nearly a Minute.

The senator finished reading at one minute past 12 o'clock, after holding the convention only 26 minutes. He announced that the member on the resolutions committee from North Dakota approved the platform except for its prohibition declaration.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I thank you for your kind and courteous attention," La Follette said, and he was applauded and cheered for nearly a minute.

The La Follette substitute then was promptly rejected by the convention with a roaring volume of "noes" after there had been a scattering of "ayes."

This brought the convention down to the fight over the farm plank, Senator Moses recognizing delegate C. H. Smith, of Illinois, who presented the minority proposal. There was a howl of protest when Moses said Smith would be given half an hour.

Banging down his gavel, the chairman said:

"The Republican party is a party of liberty and it should always be glad to give a hearing on any subject. The chair hopes there will be no objection."

Objection Is Ignored.

There was but the chairman banged down his gavel and gave Smith 30 minutes anyhow for the presentation of the minority plank and his argument in favor of it. Smith was one of those who conducted the long fight yesterday and last night before the resolutions committee against the administration plank as it finally was drawn for presentation to the convention.

Soon after Smith began reading there were cries of "louder" from both the delegates and guests.

"If those who are yelling 'louder' would keep silence perhaps the delegate from Illinois could be heard better," Moses said.

A little later there was so much confusion in the hall by reasons of delegates moving about that the chairman stopped Smith and banged loudly for order.

"There is too much moving around in the aisles and in the rear of the hall," he said. "If guests are restless, they are privileged to retire."

Called Paramount Question.

After reading the proposed farm plank, Smith told the convention that in the resolutions committee it commanded the support of 15 States and carried the signature of a large number of delegates.

"The paramount question before the American people and before this convention is that of furnishing relief for agriculture," Smith said. "I came to this convention with the conviction that the success of the Republican party in November depended upon the way we met this situation and wrote the platform."

"I wish some of you delegates who are moving about would realize how difficult it is to address a gathering like this," he said.

That brought better order and the Illinois delegate, an ardent supporter of Frank O. Lowden and head of the Illinois Farmers Organization, went on with his speech declaring that the farmers demanded "economic equality."

"If there is a demand for equality, there must be inequality" he declared, and then undertook to show that, while the price of farm products have receded, the profits of manufacturing industry has increased.

Holds 1924 Pledge Unredeemed.

Reading from the 1924 agriculture plank adopted by the Republican convention at Cleveland, Smith said that pledge then made to the farmers of America for aid through legislation remained unredeemed.

As Smith proceeded there again was some confusion in the hall. Secretary Mellon, sitting on the front row of the convention with the Pennsylvania delegation, gave no heed to the Smith speech, pulling a sheaf of papers out of his pocket and sitting reading his correspondence.

Smith wound up by saying that if the party expected the support of the Republican farmers of the great Western and Midwestern States, "You are going to squarely and fairly meet this issue."

"We are through with general statements," he said. "The plank brought in here is against sympathy. We are looking for something more substantial than that. I plead with this convention to support the plank which the minority of the committee has brought forth."

Smith asked for a roll call on the minority plank and then Chairman Moses recognized Frank W. Murphy, delegate from Minnesota, and who long has fought for farm relief legislation.

Election Difficult, Is View.

"I am going to ask you all to think," Murphy said. "We are about to nominate a candidate for President of the United States. To nominate him in June is easy, but to elect him in November you will find will be a very difficult thing to accomplish.

"The farmers are tremendously interested and just how they are tremendously resentful. For that I am sorry. V come here pleading with you not to drive the farmers of the Republican States out of their party. And I hope you will not interpret that as a threat because it is not.

"Folks, the McNary-Haugen bill is the issue within the party and you had better think seriously about it now when it is before you today. That is an issue you must meet head-on and in a robust way. You can not fool these farmers any more with platform pledges."

That provoked a round of cheering.

Murphy said the plank presented to the convention by the resolutions committee was only a repetition of the 1924 pledge.

"That pledge has not been redeemed," he shouted. "That pledge has been repudiated."

Hits William Allen White.

Murphy said that before the resolutions committee "we had the spectacle of seeing the member from Kansas voting against the minority plank," referring to William Allen White, although he said the Republicans of Kansas in Congress had consistently supported the McNary-Haugen bill.

"No man has more respect for the President of the United States," he said. "But here we have the choice between standing by the Congress or by the President of the United States alone who vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill.

"Momentous events depend upon your decision here today. The farmer of the United States wants to stay with his party and he has come here as a supplicant I am here begging of you to be careful in this boat. The rock, if there is one, on which this party will split in 1928, is the McNary-Haugen bill.

"These millions of organized farmers in the Republican States who have made this fight do not believe in Santa Claus and you act as if they did. They will take nobody's promise again unless it is definite and specific.

"We don't want to borrow any of the Government's money. We will not take and have not asked for a subsidy. We ask the right as the conservative men and women of America's farms to pay our own way.

Will Do Own Thinking.

"And, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we reserve the right to do our own thinking and you can not think for us. Agriculture proposes to write and urge its own bill. Agriculture understands its own problems."

"Who is this Republican party for?" Murphy asked. "Are you for the minority, are you with the 23 per cent of senators who opposed the bill or the 52 per cent who supported the bill.

"Are you going to have a breach between the East and West in this great party. If that breach comes it will come not upon the insistence of the farmer that he be given a square deal, but it will come on the insistence of the minority in the East that agriculture be submerged.

"The farmer doesn't ask anything that is not due him. No one can tell you how under this plank you have written the farmers can get any satisfaction as to how you are to make that tariff effective.

"Every congressman in Illinois outside of Chicago voted for the bill. Are you smarter than they? That great senator, Deneen, voted for the bill. Are you going to repudiate him? The congressmen from Iowa, Minnesota and other great Western States voted for the bill. Are you going to say they were wrong? Are you going to take the judgment of the one man who vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill?"

Want in "On the Deal."

Murphy said the country could keep the Adamson law, the tariff law and all the other "paternalistic legislation."

"All we ask is that you bring us in on the deal; invite us to the banquet table," he said.

"If the Republican party is to live as a party of protection it must extend protection to all groups or do away with the principle," Murphy declared.

"The Republican party has had four years to solve the agricultural problem and it solved it as far as Congress goes.

"If the Republican party won't solve the agricultural question and bring the farmer into equality with other groups it ought not to live."

Murphy was given a real demonstration by the convention as he concluded, with that parting shot. Many of the delegates from the agricultural States stood up cheering and yelling, while many others applauded vigorously.

Again there were cheers and hat waving as Murphy returned to his place with the Minnesota delegation. A spectator in a far-off balcony on the north side of the chamber, L. W. Price, a Lowden worker from Los Angeles, acted as cheer leader, stirring up the delegates and spectators.

Keeps Enthusiasm Going.

As the enthusiasm would die down, Price would stir 'em up again with hand waving. He had many of the tricks of the college cheer leader and certainly showed plenty of enthusiasm.

Much of the cheering came from the galleries where the farmers who descended upon Kansas City to demonstrate for a farm plank had their places. Finally, Chairman Moses got the convention back to order by telling the spectators that there were three more speakers for the minority plank, but that if the convention did not want to hear them it was all right.

Dan W. Turner, a delegate from Iowa, took up the argument for the minority plank.

"The farmers will not march to Kansas City in June," Turner declared, "but they will march to the polls in November. Their judgment will not be an impetuous one. They are a conservative people, but they have themselves to defend.

"We come to the Republican party and our plea is the plea for economic justice. We are disturbed by selfishness entrenched east of the Alleghenies, but we are not discouraged by ingratitude nor are we chastened by temporary defeat. The agricultural army of America will not stack arms in this contest until the fight is won."

Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska said the farmers challenged the administration to go further in making an industrial America at the expense of the farmer.

Bigger Than Parties, He Says.

"This question is bigger than parties," he said. "The millions on the farms will not be submerged. We are not pleading with you. We are presenting our side of a cause.

"Agriculture can not survive under present conditions unless the protective tariff is made effective as to it. We do not ask for any bonuses or subsidies. We do not ask for more than has been done for other lines of industry.

"Agriculture is expecting this party to give to it the same legislative consideration it has given all other groups. We are presenting our case and telling you we want it. The time is here for the farmer to demand what is rightfully his. And the longer he neglects to secure his just dues the greater will be the loss to our entire economic system."

A cheer went up from the galleries when McMullen said the farmers wanted nominated a candidate for the Presidency from the Western States. The argument for the minority plank was wound up by Mark Woods, of Lincoln, Nebr., who declared the Republican party was "standing on the brink of a precipice."

"One step more in the wrong direction and she will go over," he declared.

"I can change twelve words in that plank as it is written and it will mean 3,000,000 votes."

Dawes' Name Is Cheered.

Woods mentioned the name of Vice President Dawes in the convention for the first time and there was some cheering for Dawes. Woods said he had gone to Cleveland in 1924 where they nominated "that great American, Charles G. Dawes, in search of an agricultural plank in the platform."

Representative Franklin W. Fort, of New Jersey, the Hoover floor leader, opened the fight against the minority plank.

He told the convention that he resented the implication that there was a contest between the industrial East and the agricultural West on the matter of equality of treatment of industry.

"The people of the East will gladly favor any legislation for the relief of the farmer in which they believe, and which they believe will be effective," he said.

"You have heard six speakers for the minority plank. Did any of them discuss what it is they propose? No, they discussed the politics of the situation and not the economics."

Describing the provisions of the McNary-Haugen bill, Fort said, "They are trying to do the impossible thing of making profits out of taking losses in the world market," Fort said. "The plan of the equalization fee is either a tax upon consumption or upon production. I have yet to be persuaded that either one of those taxes is economically desirable.

"You have heard here today not an economic argument, but a political demand for the McNary-Haugen bill alone. We have offered them aid for cooperative marketing. We offered them a Federal farm board and we offered them a reasonable loan from the Treasury until they get on their feet. We offered them assistance in the distribution and marketing of their commodities.

"The proposals differ in detail; but more, they differ in that one great fundamental principle. The proposal in the minority report means in the end that the Government will run agriculture. The majority report offers aid to the farmer until he can get on his feet."

John J. Sullivan, Seattle, Wash., spoke against the minority farm plank, declaring that the convention was offered the choice between following the Constitution or political expediency.

"This is not a convention of political expediency," he said, as a roar of applause swept the convention hall.

Declaring that it was proposed to repudiate the action of President Coolidge in vetoing the McNary-Haugen bill, Sullivan said President Coolidge's record needed no indorsement from the convention.

"When the farmers ask for what is constitutional and economically sound, we will give it to them," Sullivan said as he concluded his ten-minute talk.

Borah Opposes Minority.

Then Senator Borah, of Idaho, went into action in opposition to the minority plank.

"There is a farm problem," he said; "indeed, it is more than a farm problem, it is a great national problem growing out of the agricultural situation. It involves the material economic welfare of the whole people. I want to say also that while there may be those who have been willing and are willing to play politics with this question, the able men who presented this matter to the commitee on platform did not play politics with it. They were earnest in their presentation of a great national issue."

Senator Borah said one problem was to enable the American farmer to reach his market "without being robbed on the way," adding that experts estimated that about $8,000,000,000 were lost now in the present marketing system, money that should go into the pocket of the farmer.

"The American farmer is not properly protected in the home market," Borah continued, adding that last year there was imported into this country from "the cheap labor" countries abroad farm products to the value of $2,500,000,000.

U. S. Market for U. S. aFrmer.

"The American market should be exclusively for the American farmer," the Idahoan said. "In this platform we make a pledge that he shall have that market. The tariff must be extended so that it will give the farmer that market.

"The only difference between the majority and the minority report is how to dispose of the surplus, covering cotton, wheat and a few other products. A majority of the committee stood ready and did grant to the minority everything asked for save and except the power of a bureau to levy an equalization fee upon the farmer.

"There are two objections to it. The first is that it can not be done. There is no power under the Constitution of the United States which permits a Congress to delegate to twelve men the power to impose an equalization fee or tax upon a citizen. If there was a proposal to amend the Constitution to give that power the farmers would be the first to protest against such tyranny."

Borah said President Coolidge had found out that the McNary-Haugen bill was unconstitutional.

"But they say the President should have signed it, irrespective of that," Borah added. "Now, you don't think that. You don't think the President should violate the oath he took to uphold the Constitution."

Entitled to Marketing Aid.

"The farmer is entitled to aid in marketing his surplus," Borah continued, "but I do not believe that he should be asked to surrender his initiative and turn it over to an autocratic bureau in Washington.

"In my judgment the greatest benefit the farmer has received was when Calvin Coolidge vetoed this bill. And the time will come when the American farmer will recognize the courage, will recognize the statesmanship of the man who vetoed the bill that would have made him a bureaucratic rat."

The Idahoan said that despite his veto he believed that if the convention should nominate Coolidge he would carry every agricultural State in the Union north of the Mason and Dixon Line.

Borah was interrupted at that point while the delegates staged a demonstration for Coolidge which lasted several minutes. Massachusetts sitting near the front started it off and several of the State delegations got to their feet cheering.

"Not only that, but if certain things happen down at Houston he would shake the foundations of the solid South," Borah added, after the demonstration subsided.

Roll Call Vote Asked.

The long debate ended, the Illinois delegation asked that the vote be by roll call, and the request was seconded from delegations in various parts of the hall. The clerk began the reading of the alphabetical list of the States, Alabama first, and as the roll proceeded it became increasingly plain that the fight was almost a clear-cut Hoover and anti-Hoover division. The Hoover States, in the main, were voting against the McNary-Haugen substitute plank, and the opposing coalition was lining up in favor of it.

The roll call over with its overwhelming majority for the administration plank, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler began a speech for modification of the prohibition plank, which pledged enforcement of the eighteenth amendment by name. Instead Dr. Butler wanted to declare for repeal of the amendment.

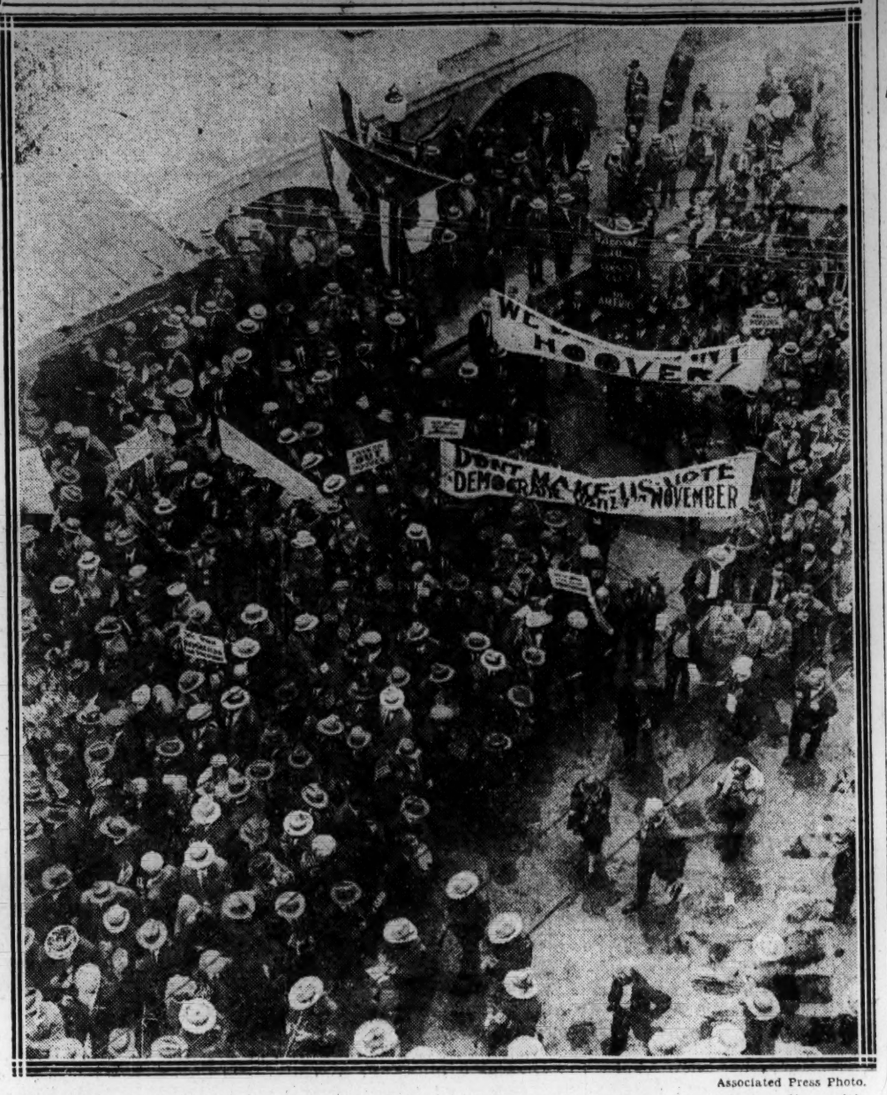

"We are faced with repeal or nullification," he told the convention. "We are faced with repealing the amendment or making this a land a paradise for bootleggers.

"Come up to the high places and stand for the service of good government against the service of demagogery and debauchery."

The speech was very short and immediately afterward a delegate from Maine moved to lay the motion of Dr. Butler on the table. That was carried without a roll call, the completed platform was adopted in the same manner and without more ado the convention adjourned until 7 p. m.

COOLIDGE SENDS WORD NOT TO VOTE FOR HIM

Asks Connecticut Delegation, Through Sanders, to Cast Ballot Elsewhere.

BINGHAM GETS REQUEST

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—President Coolidge has sent word to the Connecticut delegation which has held out for him to the last asking that it not cast its 17 votes for him and the delegation will adhere to the request.

Senator Bingham, of Connecticut announced today that the delegation had finally left Mr. Coolidge at his specific request. He said the word was sent to Connecticut through Everett Sanders, secretary to the President, who is attending the convention.

Although the decision of Secretary Mellon and of William M. Butler, close friend of Mr. Coolidge and chairman of the Republican National Committee, not to vote for Mr. Coolidge had been accepted by the party as expressing the determination of the President not to be a candidate in any sense, the message to Connecticut was the first direct word from Mr. Coolidge.

As a result of his action it is the understanding of convention leaders that Mr. Coolidge does not wish to be brought before the convention in any way on the balloting and there seemed to be little likelihood that any considerable number of votes would be cast for him in view of his desires.

The message to Connecticut did not state any preference on the part of the President for a nominee. He has steadfastly declined to take sides in the party's deliberations over his successor.

It is the final answer to the question of what Mr. Coolidge meant when he declared last August that "I do not choose to run for President in 1928."

Everett Sanders held rigidly to the silence he has held since he came from the White House to the convention. He would not discuss in any way the message delivered to the Connecticut delegation, though not denying that the message was transmitted.

ADDRESS OF M'NAB OFFERS HOOVER AS PEOPLE'S NOMINEE

Nominating Speech Calls Secretary Greatest Administrator in Human Welfare.

DUTY TO AGRICULTURE UPPERMOST IN HIS MIND

Varied Career Called Preparation of First Order for Office of Chief Executive.

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—Appealing to the Republican convention to choose "America's greatest administrator in human welfare" as nominee, John L. McNab, a California friend, tonight placed the name of Herbert Hoover before the assembled delegates.

The text of his address follows:

"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen of the convention:

"California's delegation, elected by 600,000 votes in an uncontested primary, presents to you for the Presidency of the United States America's greatest administrator in human welfare—Herbert Hoover.

"But we of this delegation are merely the voices that bring his name before this great assemblage.

"Little doubt exists in the mind of anyone that if the man we shall present to you is selected by this convention he will become the next President of the United States.

"It is not under the hypnotic spell of this great convention, swayed by emotion, that this nomination alone is to be made. Already he has been nominated by the rising and resistless sentiment of the men and women of the United States.

"The united Pacific Coast strides into this convention all to declare him its choice. And from the great farming States of the Mississippi Valley they come—these voices of the ballot, chosen in preferential primaries—to announce him the overwhelming choice of the Nation's electorate. From the States of rugged old New England; from an almost unbroken Atlantic seaboard; from North and South alike they have thronged to this convention hall to bear the mandate of the people. It is to the people themselves that we must give ear this day. Their voice is the dominant voice of America.

Demands of New Generation.

"The end of the great war has released forces no man can measure. Old political faiths have been shaken to their foundations. Ancient slogans and symbols have lost their potency to charm. Millions of young men have grown to manhood since the signing of the Armistice. They are independent, thinking men. They have little reverence for political creeds and no patience with ancient history. They live in the present. They look to the future. Their demand is for a greater and finer America—an America of widened opportunities and greater hope for the common man.

"They are on the march today, and the political party that fails to heed their voices is headed for disaster. Beside them march the millions who make up the womanhood of America. Let no politician fail to heed the tremendous power of that spiritual force upon the affairs of today. That womanhood, too, is on the march beside its sons who have grown to manhood's estate.

"I can hear the approaching tread of these unnumbered millions of mothers and sons whose hearts are bound up in the future of the republic. Their faith is fixed upon the man whose name we shall here place before you. They will follow him more enthusiastically than any other leader in the country. He has interpreted their hopes. He understands their cravings. He has been able to satisfy their longings for the better things of life. They recognize in him a Republican who has been able to bend the finest energies of the republic to the service of the men and women who compose the home life of the United States.

Loyal Aid to Coolidge.

"Their faith and prayers are fixed on him. And shall we dash their hopes and ignore their appeals? Better, is it not, that this mighty force for human betterment should find its abiding home in the Republican party than turn to other faiths.

"Our people are aroused to the need of a strong, courageous man to carry forward constructive policies of a great administration.

"This historic party of achievement has never been able to submit to the American people a greater record of constructive human action than the administration of Calvin Coolidge. And of the constructive part of that administration, from its inception, Herbert Hoover has been a vital and intimate part.

"History will not overlook the fact that the execution of the great emergency measures of the administration have been committed by the President to his Secretary of Commerce.

"He has been to his chief and leader a loyal and devoted aid, a powerful and understanding friend, a never-failing supporter in all his constructive designs.

"In a Cabinet of singularly strong and sympathetic men he has worked with his colleagues in that spirit of comradeship and cooperation which has distinguished all his public efforts, whether at home or abroad.

"There is something spiritual in this universal call of the people for this man. It is not based on political expediency. It is the result of the public will that the constructive policies of a Republican administration shall control this Nation and the conviction that Herbert Hoover, of all living men, best represents the genius, pure and undefiled, of wholesome and forward-looking Americanism.

Life Is Epic of Achievement.

"The story of his life is an epic of modern achievement. Descended from seven generations of American ancestry, his career is a living example of the heights to which pure Americanism, by sustained effort and devotion, may reach.

"At the age of 4, death took his father from beside the forge in the State of Iowa. That loss was compensated in the life which followed, for he was reared in the sweet and tolerant atmosphere of an American Quaker home.

"The spirit of forbearance and patience which has marked his career through life was bred in him by those who guided the steps of his infancy.

"He emerged into public life in the first class of engineers to leave Stanford University. With pick in hand he mucked as a common laborer in the drifts of the old Mayflower mine in California. There were laid the foundations of that enduring sympathy he has always shown for the laboring man. But he has been no less the consistent and constructive friend of industry and commerce.

"The aspirations of the average man of America have been glorified by this man's efforts. Around the sufferings of mankind have been woven the warp and woof of one of the most dramatic careers in history.

"The world's greatest war broke suddenly over a startled world. He, with countless Americans, chanced to be in the City of London. The great war machine rolled over Belgium, leaving starvation and ruin in its wake. Here, indeed, was cause that called for all the spirituality and vision of man.

Defended Farmer in War.

"He heard the old cry that for over 100 years has rung out over the waters of an angry sea—'Women and children first.' He heard the cry and answered. In the presence of gaunt and tottering children he knew neither friend nor foe. To him, hunger and innocence knew no nationality. Millions knocked at hunger's gate.

"To organize relief; to secure the funds; to buy foodstuffs; to ship them across seas that swarmed with submarines; to negotiate with governments, fierce and intolerant with the passions of war; to placate angry and imperious generals; to get food to the starving and the starving to the food—here was a task such as never before confronted man. The feeding of those hungry children is the greatest practical romance in history.

"The call came overseas from his beloved homeland. The United States had cast her lot in the great struggle. He was named food administrator. Full well he knew the perils of that station. Full well he understood that the proper execution of the task would probably mean the graveyard of all political hope.

"From the day he was appointed, he insisted that the one essential group in America that must have protection was the American farmer. To quicken production, to stimulate industry, to feed armies at a price that governments could afford to pay, to resist the mercantile profiteer and to see that the farmer received the just return for his product was a task that called for both statesmanship and courage.

Foresaw Agriculture's Peril.

"He imposed none of the crushing regulations which drove European peoples to despair. He enforced no drastic rationing upon the American people. He appealed to their cooperative patriotism. He brought farmers, business men and the women of the country into a unison of patriotic effort.

"His measures trebled the surplus food in the United States. When the armistice came he saw with the prophetic vision of a seer the peril that awaited the farmer and producer. Already food supplies were on hand for another year of gigantic combat. With the supplies of the Southern Hemisphere freed to European markets he saw American agriculture faced with the greatest peril in its history.

"Europe repudiated its contracts to buy the hogs and wheat of American farmers. Damming back that flood on the markets of the United States meant ruin from which our agriculturists would not have recovered in a quarter of a century.

"It would require the gratitude of a generation of farm producers to repay Herbert Hoover for his efforts to save the whole industry from collapse. Only by an administrator with a spirit of prophecy to foresee the impending tragedy could the task have been accomplished. Only a man who possessed the respect of European powers could have exacted the agreements he demanded.

"He compelled the disposal in Europe of the huge surplus of farm products. To him is due the early opening of the blockade on Germany. Had it not been for his prestige and his genius of persuasion the doors of Europe would have been locked to the product of our fields and American agriculture would have crashed beyond all hope of recovery.

Can Solve Farmers' Problem.

"When the temper of this hour has passed, the American schoolboy will read, with quickened breath, the public documents which record the history of those tragic months. He will rear his head with pride that the Republic of Washington and Lincoln could give to the world such a chapter in benevolent diplomacy.

"Herbert Hoover believes that the Nation owes a special responsibility to agriculture as one of the great basic industries upon which our happiness and prosperity rest. He believes that rational measures must be taken to the end that the farm producer shall be placed on an equality with the industrial producer.

"This great economist has solved every other economic problem that has come within his reach in a spirit of equality and justice. He who has mastered every other problem can be trusted by the American farm producer to propose the measures that will bring lasting relief to the agriculture of the United States.

"Summoned by a Republican President, Herbert Hoover commenced the greatest romance of modern industrial life. He became the head of the Department of Commerce. Always a Republican, always a believer that there can be no satisfactory advance without the rival policies of a two-party system, he found in the Republican Cabinet a field for expanding usefulness.

"What a beneficience he has made that department to the business and industrial world!

"Into the Department of Commerce has been called the best talent that the Nation could secure.

Prevented Unemployment.

"It would be an endless task to here review his widely diversified efforts while head of the Department of Commerce. He has quickened the industrial activities of the Nation. He has proved that Government business and morals go hand in hand. His every act has been touched by an impulse for better things.

"It was his initiative that prevented the spread of unemployment which had brought stagnation and despair to the rest of the world. He fought to a triumphant conclusion a world-wide monopoly which threatened the rubber purchasers of America.

"He has made the Department of Commerce the most useful instrument for the advancement of the new economic world.

"In the midst of crowding duties there came a call that stirred his soul. Human suffering once more was at the gate.

"The Mississippi—that mighty stream which Richard Gobden said, 'It flows through 3,000 miles of country, and bears upon its bosom the commerce of a mighty continent'—had broken over the richest lands of the South.

"For the first time in history, torrential rains fell in 30 States at the same time. Six hundred thousand were homeless; cities were flooded; the great and noble South saw its richest possessions go under the deluge.

"To whom should the President turn in such an hour of crisis?

"To whom but to the administrator whose public life had been a series of crowning triumphs in meeting human emergencies.

Organizes Mississippi Relief.

"To whom but to the man whose name we present to you this day.

"Within a week, in conjunction with the American Red Cross, the Secretaries of the Army and Navy, he had telegraph lines strung, foodstuffs moving, and the noble and splendid leaders of the South, most of whom were of a political faith not his own, from New Orleans to Memphis, organized for instant service.

"All the varied talents of a trained organizer and administrator were in full play. No more wonderful tribute was ever paid to a people than was uttered by Hoover in the City of Memphis when the flood was at its crest of the gallant leaders of the South who watched with him beside the raging waters.

"This work has won for him the gratitude of unnumbered Americans whose stalwart faith has led them through the retreating waters to build their homes once more beside the great lagoons. They build because they have faith that the engineer whose name we shall here consider will supervise the means to hold back the floods of the future and make their homesteads safe for their children.

"If the American people a quarter of a century ago had set about the task of preparing a man for the Presidency, how could they have done more to equip him for those vast responsibilities than through the experience which have made up the romance of this man's life?

"He may be called the creature of his age. In many respects his age will be the reflection of himself.

Passion to Serve Country.

"If there is one quality which dominates his life—one overmastering desire that animates his every act, it is the passion to serve his country. Within his soul there glows that strong, robust, militant Americanism—that Americanism that will not be satisfied until it achieves his ultimate aim—the advancement of the welfare of the people of the United States.

"To insure every American child equal opportunity in training and education; to remove the drudgery of the American housewife; to brighten the toil of the work shop; to find rational, not artificial, means to relieve the distress of the producer; to stimulate healthy business methods; to advise, to encourage, to protect—these make the pattern he has been weaving for the last seven years for the domestic America of the future.

"We are living in a swiftly changing era of American history. Since the great war the United States has become the center of the economic and industrial world. Vast forces fraught with evil if uncontrolled, freighted with blessings if understood, are in motion.

"No one is so fitted by years of training and experience; no one is so adapted by temperament and sympathy to direct these forces to the betterment of his country as this wholesome son of the sturdy forebears of the Middle West.

Craves World's Affection.

"All the world knows his public service, but only the few understand his graciousness and kindliness as a human being. He is no superman in private life. He loves his friends. He likes to laugh and play. He loves the world and craves its affection in return. Whether at home among his neighbors, with his companions on the fishing stream, or in the intimacy of his workshop, he is everywhere the considerate, refreshing human being.

"Those who know him forget the powerful executive and are lost in the charm of a rare companionship.

"The people of this country are soon to learn that the Hoover who fed the hungry and sheltered the homeless on the banks of the Mississippi is one of the most human of men.

"And now we dedicate this man to a greater public service.

"His nomination will kindle a brighter faith in the breasts of all who love America and wish to keep her a living symbol of the world's best hope.

"Three-quarters of a century ago the Republican party emerged from the haze of history. Its leader was John C. Fremont, the pathfinder of California, who planted the flag on our remotest western shore.

"Today California offers to the Nation another pathfinder in the Nation's onward march toward a better and brighter day for our beloved country.

"Therefore in the name of California and on behalf of our countrymen everywhere, I nominate the man in whom the hopes and prayers of the people are met.

"I name him who rose from poverty to feed more hungry people than any man in the history of the world.

"I nominate him because he has labored with his hands and knows the problem of the toiler.

"I name him as a great engineer who understands the problems of our inland waterways and the vast resources of river and lake and soil.

"I name him as a great humanitarian who, in the midst of a woe of war, gave his best that human beings might live and live abundantly.

"I nominate him because as administrator of great projects he has never failed to leave a record of surpassing usefulness.

"I name him as statesman and executive whose unfaltering courage, inflexible Americanism and understanding of nations and peoples have given him a grasp on national and international affairs that commands respect throughout the world.

"I nominate him for his lofty character as a man and citizen; for his broad and kindly human sympathies; for his wholesome heart that rejoices above all things else that he has been useful to the people of his native land.

"Engineer, practical scientist, minister of mercy to the hungry, administrator, executive, statesman, beneficent American, kindly neighbor, wholesome human being, I give you the name of Herbert Hoover."

LOWDEN SULLEN; CURTIS IS DECLARED BITTER

Hilles Looks to Future as Mills' Star Rises; Shouts Cover Disappointment.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.
Special to The Washington Post.

Kansas City, Mo., June 14.—The Republican convention pulled itself together tonight for a grand and glorious hurrah before passing on into the great space of time. The Hoover forces saw to it that it did.

Into a great firetrap that arose from debris of flames more than 25 years ago it packed a huge mass of humanity and shot all of its enthusiasm in one bolt. Blaring bands started out early in the afternoon to lift the crowd from the slough of despond into which it had been thrown because the climax came too soon, because of the dashed hopes that lay behind the Hoover juggernaut's path, because of the specter of Al Smith that has hung over the gathering like a dark Kansas cloud—all these things, but mainly, of course, because the show blew up too soon.

Lowden in Retirement

Former Gov. Lowden, of Illinois, kept sullenly to his room, a victim of his espousal of the losing end of a great issue—an issue that gave him his strength in a section of the country that would have denied him at any other time, and which alienated him from ordinarily presidential-making groups that wouldlike to have had him. They wanted him to be President when they had in the past agreed that the Vice Presidency, a Cabinet post, an ambassadorship was not to be desired. His close friends are telling him that another of his close friends, Vice President Dawes, was his greatest stumbling block. Some are suggesting, in the way that bitter men do in defeat that it was design on the Vice President's part, as witness his letting the word go out several days ago that he would accept the Vice Presidence, a compromise with the enemy at a time when a strong front was needed. But the more sensible heads are counseling that it was no fault of Dawes that early in the campaign the word got around that Lowden was only a stalking horse for him.

It was no fault of Dawes, but the fact remains that Secretary Mellon, Charles D. Hilles, of New York, and Chairman W. M. Butler would have liked to maneuver the presidential nomination Dawes' way. Charles F. Buck, the Lowden campaign manager, laments the fact that the "chief" would not let him make a vigorous campaign.

Senator Curtis Bitter.

"We would have beaten Hoover easily," he declares.

"We would have deadlocked and some outsider who had not turned his finger would have come in and gotten the nomination," Lowden replies.

So Frank Lowden definitely passes out of the picture of American politics, unless, of course, he should hearken to the ill-advised pleas that he head a third party. And the thought is not seriously entertained that he will.

Regardless of what he says, what perfunctory statements issue from his camp, there is bitterness and rancor in the time-beaten breast of Senator Charles Curtis. He has worked up in the party from the ranks and well he reasoned that it could give him the greatest honor at its command. Defeat will mark the transformation of him just as it did Senator Hiram Johnson and others who saw over the crest of the hill, but could not negotiate it.

Senators Goff and Watson—they are philosophical. No serious presidential hopes dashed against the wall with them, but a political defeat from which they will emerge as the party seeks unity in November, like a new city that comes out of the wreckage of the elements.

Hilles Views Future.

Charles D. Hilles, lying abed ill the past several days, contemplates what the future in New York politics means for him, while Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, goes around beating his chest. There is an elderly woman who has mothered this comparatively young man's political ambitions for many years. She stood at his side two years ago when the New York gubernatorial returns spoke definitely his defeat at the hands of Gov. Smith.

"That's all right, Ogden," she said. "Your day will come."

It seems to have come now. He will be the Secretary of the Treasury, it is predicted. Whether he will or not, he will have something to say in New York Republican politics. He was quite chagrined when the New York delegation reorganized and left him off any place of honor, Mr. Hilles' work, but he is with the winner in the presidential nomination race and has been from the first. So Mr. Hoover will recognize him.

What is to become of William M. Butler, everybody asks. No sense of goodfellowship exists between him and Mr. Hoover, and the Secretary's biographers say he is a man with strong loves and strong hates. The President stepped out from under Mr. Butler, his friend, one story going the rounds of the convention has it. This led him to believe that he would keep quiet and let the draft movement be worked, either for Mr. Coolidge's nomination or for a roundabout way to reach Dawes, according to this story.

Many Stories Told.

There will be many stories printed concerning just what did happen the night Mr. Butler, Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hilles conferred, calling in William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, and Everett Sanders, secreary to the President. The one which the Hoover camp likes to believe is "with the President finally," Mr. Mellon dropped behind after a Cabinet meeting just before he came out here, this story goes, and was told by the President that he would not tolerate the draft movement and that he was for Hoover.

After talking with men who participated in the conference, or rather the series of conferences, and taking other factors into consideration, this reporter believes that the President did not open his mouth. The fact that Mr. Vare was called into the conferences would seem to indicate the part he played. He would not yield his Hoover stand.

And out here now it is being asked just why he acted as he did. The allies, without mentioning any names, were prepared to bargain with him on the matter of his seat in the United States Senate.

Vare was beseeched to wait until he got here. But tonight this Philadelphia boss, whose alleged unfitness to sit in the Senate has right or wrongly been broadcast the country over, sits on the front row on the convention stage, directly under the speaker's stand and with only the Secretary's ever-alert bodyguard between him and Mr. Mellon.

"Young Bob" Cheered.

"He has definitely closed the door of the Senate to him," the politically minded allies say, but others point out that before the Senate is finally to vote on the question of seating him, Hoover, if successful in November, will be the President elect of the United States with the probability of eight long years of regime.

There is a brighter picture, of course. "Young Bob" La Follette stood on the platform today, before a crowd of 20,000 in the glare of the lights and made an impassioned speech for the adoption of the Wisconsin version of the way the Republican party should be run. He was defeated, of course, but the 20,000 persons listened respectfully to him and cheered him on, and compared him with his opponent who had just preceded him, Senator Reed Smoot, tall and lanky and getting along in years, and carried away the thought that there is a new generation coming along.

Of the great women leaders, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, the convention has spurred them toward the ladder rungs to which they aspire. The former is with the loser and the latter with the winner, but both have profited from the great gathering here. They, too, have basked in the focused light. Their pictures have been taken and sent all over the country.

Out to Celebrate.

The Hoover juggernaut is out to celebrate. It was necessary to lift the convention from its gloom, homesickness, the sense of impending disaster caused by the fact that if the convention hall should catch on fire there would be one of the greatest catastrophes this country has ever known, and with smoking going on despite the rigid fire orders it will be little short of remarkable if it does not; the sense of insecurity caused by the fact that crowds have to wait an hour sometimes for an elevator to take them down, with no other means of escape, and by the fact that these elevators have fallen under the weight, but not far enough to frighten the passengers by the fact that convention visitors have had to crawl from elevators halted between floors—the depression that comes after a heavy convention drunk.

But the Hoover people were just waiting for the proper time. Music rends the air. It is the tune of "Who."

Son of Blacksmith, Secretary Obtained University Education by Earnings.

MINE LABORER AT FIRST, THEN FAMOUS ENGINEER

(Associated Press).

Herbert Clark Hoover, Secretary of Commerce in the Cabinets of Presidents Harding and Coolidge, loomed as a strong possibility for the Republican presidential nomination shortly after President Coolidge, in August, 1927, issued his "I do not choose" statement.

At that time the Commerce Secretary was enjoying a renewed prominence throughout the country because of his administration of relief measures in the flooded areas of the Mississippi Valley, where his activities served to recall his relief work during the World War.

From the start the Hoover strength throughout the country appeared to be greater than that of other candidates for the nomination. Some of his political opponents in his own party raised issues to question his qualification or eligibility for the nomination, but few of these issues persisted for long.

British Case Recalled.

There was brought up Mr. Hoover's connection with a case decided in the British courts in 1905 in which was involved a Chinese mining property. It was averred that Hoover, who was general manager of the enterprise, had made a fortune out of it and that there was some question of his integrity in connection with the manner in which he had accumulated it.

These charges were answered by Representative Free, of California, who read into the House record documents and letters which exonerated Mr. Hoover from any improper action, praised him for his part in the litigation and quoted his testimony to show that he helped to restore the property to its rightful owners.

Among those who came to the defense of Mr. Hoover at the time was Tong Shaoyi, a former premier of the Peking government, who had been interested in the mining property. He said:

"Hoover took away from China far less than he had honestly earned, while he left in China the high respect and esteem of all who knew him."

Praised in Boxer Activity.

The Chinese statesman also praised Mr. Hoover for his activities during the Boxer uprising, which he said, resulted in the saving of many lives, including that of Mr. Tong's daughter, now Mrs. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese diplomat.

A religious issue was suggested when it was recalled that he and Mrs. Hoover had been married by a Catholic priest. A question of his eligibility for the office of President was raised, based on the provision of the Constitution requiring 14 years' residence within the United States.

Late in 1925 the Commerce Secretary began a campaign against the high price of crude rubber, which he repeatedly charged was due to the extortionate policy of the East Indian combine. This combine, it was further charged, had obtained the support of the British government in quoting a figure of $1 a pound for its output.

Forced Down Rubber Prices.

The campaign was the subject of much discussion and comment on both sides of the Atlantic. By the middle of February, 1926, crude rubber prices were quoted around 65 cents, or 45 cents below the level reached during the speculative operations.

In some quarters it was contended that the drop was an indication that Hoover virtually had won his fight against the British monopoly.

Meanwhile the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce conducted an investigation of the control of crude rubber. In a report made in March, 1926, it sustained Hoover's charges respecting British manipulation of rubber and declared that in three months Americans had paid $100,000,000 over fair prices.

Hoover's name first commanded world attention in the tense days of August, 1914. The swift German onrush across Belgium into France brought home the fatal significance of war to legions of Americans, pleasure seekers, tourists, and students, who annually scatter across the European continent.

In the first clash, while the armies of the nations of the Old World mobilized for "Der Tag," these hapless visitants found money almost worthless and bank credit entirely so. In darkened cities out of which trains no longer ran, or countrysides denuded of shelter and subsistence, where the stranger and the alien could look neither for tolerance nor assistance in escaping.

Formed Relief Committee.

The news of their predicament had barely begun to trickle when newspaper readers generally learned also that a hastily formed American relief committee in London, headed by a man named Hoover, had assumed the responsibility of getting them away.

The task, it appeared, had been performed with unexpected swiftness and success, and for Mr. Hoover there ensued a decade of high pressure performance, of ever widening responsibility, that at the height of war made him chief of the effort of the allied countries and the United States to subsist their populations and their armies.

Cessation of war did not end his activities, and he remained one of the foremost figures in American political life, undertaking major duties in connection with the food provisions for the exhausted peoples of half the area of Eurasia, and eventually serving with recognized distinction in the Cabinet.

Hardly anything but the social upheaval of the war could have brought to the front rank of American political life a personality at once so curiously gifted and so curiously constrained.

Though an almost intuitive grasp of group psychology was one basis of Mr. Hoover's success, first in organizing industry and later in meeting the huge emergencies of famine and pestilence, his contacts with strangers always exhibited him as impassive, indrawn, individual, incapable of demonstrativeness and devoid of impressiveness.

Brilliant as Writer.

Similarly, the adventure of listening to him reading with dogged persistence a most meaty but tedious speech created ecstatic thrills for very few.

Yet those who were at hand during his many crises of conflict will hardly forget the bewildering transformation that pressure produced in his customary demeanor.

In the clash of a conference, or under the hammering of hostile cross-examination before a major public tribunal, the masking manner fell away as a scabbard leaves a sword blade, and there came into action a man curtly incisive as to speech, coolly commanding unsurpassed knowledge of men and matters and science, and brilliantly aggressive in the display of capacity and will to dominate.

Those who read Mr. Hoover's output of writing on any subject likewise will stumble across some nugget of by-product humor most naturally if incongruously adjusted to the solemn facts he mostly treated.

And much of his wirtten matter has been shot through with pungently phrased and highly individualistic epigrams setting out some conclusion built from his unfailing insight.

His intimates valued beyond price the odd half hours when, speaking in monotone over a smoldering cigar, he would give way in reminiscent mood to the impulse to recount marvellous tales of struggles with devil doctors in China, romantic hunts for underground mineral treasure, or personal experiences with war makers and revolutionists.

Helps Young Dam Builders.

Even in his amusements, Mr. Hoover departed from common standards. He fished sometimes in desultory fashion, and motored over considerable distances. On many occasions, as well, participants in such a tour had the experience of watching a grave cabinet member, more than a little muddied as to trousers and shirt, supervising the efforts of a pack of absorbed youngsters in constructing a miniature dam across some small Maryland or Virginia creek.

Radio possibilities early caught his initiating instincts; its regulation fell into his department, and he gave its popularization the powerful impulse of his genius for riveting public attention.

He went through all the phases the broadcasting devotee exemplifies, a couple of years ahead of the pack, however, and characteristically settled down to doing his listening in through a homely and inexpensive crystal set that matched the facilities most widely used.

Passion for Organization.

Mr. Hoover's passion for order and organization, extending even to the minor features of personal outfitting, served to release his time and energy for application in an extraordinarily wide field.

Early in life he found the selecting of clothes a nuisance, and consequently standardized his attire to a set of dark blue suits and hard hats, samples of which he kept parked in a half dozen strategic points around the globe, ready to don when the habiliments currently serving gave way to wear and weather.

Always a student at heart, he had a daily bundle of papers, articles, and discussions of scientific, economic, or political subjects set aside for his home reading at the late hour just preceding sleep.

His own grasp of the theory and practice of getting things done, linked with the executive talent for finding and inspiring helpers, put him above the pressure of routine in merely running a goverment department, and six months after he entered the Cabinet he emerged from a preliminary expanding and renovating of the bureaus particularly assigned to him, free for additional duty.

Sought Things to Do.

He was always thereafter snuffing the breeze for scent of new things to do, and occasioning some heartburnings among Cabinet associates by reason of the showing that "Hoover was always ready to slop over into anything anywhere."

Through a door of his office in the Commerce Department there was dug when he assumed the post a tiny opening, inconspicuously placed and covered by a slide, that a discreet secretary might observe the status of affairs within.

A glance through it always disclosed Mr. Hoover, in the rare moments when he was unoccupied at his desk striding unhurriedly but with persistence to and fro across the room. There was much about him to give the impression of controlled restlessness, as of a man conscious that emergency would give him use of faculties otherwise nearly latent.

The war was the occasion of the introduction of Mr. Hoover to the general public, but his career and accomplishment had been much beyond ordinary long before. Born in West Branch, Iowa, August 10, 1874, the son of a blacksmith and a Quaker mother, he had been orphaned by death of both parents before he was 7 years old.

Relatives with whom he then made his home moved to Oregon, and at 13 years he was faced with the task of earning his own living as a boy worker in truck gardens and later in the city offices.

Worked for Educaion.

Bent upon obtaining an education, Mr. Hoover worked his way into and through the then newly founded Stanford University in California, emerging in 1895 with a degree in mining engineering and geology.

In the succeeding 20 years, first as mine laborer, then as mine manager and operator, in all the deserted places of the world where mineral wealth is found, he made for himself a unique reputation and a large fortune.

To admitted technical proficiency as an engineer—his books and monographs are standard textbooks in colleges today—Mr. Hoover combined proven ability in organizing and financing, and became identified with a group of offices in London and New York who engaged in mining and metallurgical enterprises in most of the quarters of the world.

From West Australia he had gone to China, and was engaged in the development of coal and iron deposits when the Boxer rebellion cooped him up with other foreigners in Peking, where he underwent the siege of 1900.

His First Food Relief.

Before the allied troops relieved the legation prisoners, he had organized his first food relief, for Chinese and other refugees. He built a port there later for the owners of the mining properties, and thereafter in Burma, Russia, Alaska and Mexico initiated or directed enterprises which were for the most part successful.

In 1913, it was estimated that 175,000 men were employed by the corporations for which he was acting as executive engineer.

He maintained his connections with scholastic and research activities as well, and found time during the period to translate, with the collaboration of his wife, "Des Res Metallica," a Latin work which is the earliest known treatise on mining. He had married in 1899 Miss Lou Henry, a Stanford schoolmate, and had two sons, Allan and Herbert.

From the work of the American relief committee that extricated the American tourists of 1914, Mr. Hoover was drafted immediately to a far greater task—the effort to feed and supply the Belgian population.

He helped organize the commission for relief in Belgium, and took its leadership. It was not suspected at the time how far that task would develop; when the work wound up at the end of the war there had been expended, mostly under Mr. Hoover's direction, $1,500,000,000, advanced by loans from allied governments or given by charity.

It was operating a fleet of 200 steamships, and the peoples of northern France and Belgium had existed during four and a half years only by its functioning.

Made Food Administrator.

When the United States went into the war President Wilson promptly appointed Mr. Hoover food administrator for the United States, though the latter remained in charge of the Belgian commission.

In taking the post, which war-time experience in other countries had proved one of the most difficult to hold, Mr. Hoover told friends he "expected to die on the first barbed-wire entanglements."

His success, however, soon was conceded universally. On the war boards which supervised the Nation's task of munitioning the vast army and navy created for the struggle, he became a dominant figure, and at the moment of the armistice his organizations functioned to supply and feed the exhausted city populations of even the defeated central powers.

While the peace conference was going on the American Relief Administration, which Mr. Hoover headed, was feeding children in 23 different nations, and adults in half as many.

It coped with typhus epidemics, and in many places almost took over the government temporarily.

Governmental credits, charitable donations, and utilization of surplus war supplies were all involved. As late as 1921 there was still some localized organization for feeding of children, and Mr. Hoover, then a Cabinet member, was able swiftly to expand this remnant of the relief machinery when famine in Soviet Russia led to congressional appropriations to help a starving population there.

This last of the enterprises which he operated for supplying food to famished people on a large scale did not wind up until 1923.

His Relief Enterprises.

No part of the war activity had attracted more attention than the Hoover relief enterprises, in the United States and abroad, and when in 1920, the season for presidential politics opened, his name was early bruited about for the foremost political honor the Nation can give.

There was an embarrassing interlude, however, when it appeared that his long life in the engineering field and his later war work had deprived him of any partisan political status whatever.

Workers in his behalf had difficulty in settling upon a political party in which to join to forward his interests, and for a time he was proposed as both a Republican and a Democratic presidential nominee.

The New York World, for years a stalwart Democratic organ, warmly espoused his candidacy, and there were echoes of support in other Democratic papers in various sections.

Soon afterward he issued an open letter, declaring himself a Republican. But his cause did not flourish because it had behind it none of the party bosses. When his name was placed before the Chicago convention there was spontaneous and prolonged applause in the galleries, but scarcely a ripple among the delegates. He got only a handful of votes.

When President-elect Harding, some months later, offered him the post of Secretary of Commerce, he accepted after stipulating that he was to have a free hand in reorganization of his department.

He succeeded to the same place under President Coolidge. During later Cabinet changes he was successively tendered the departments of Interior and Agriculture, refusing in each case on the ground that his greatest usefulness would be in the post he retained.

Adds to His Activities.

In addition to operating his own department, Mr. Hoover served on the American debt commission and advised the White House on many important questions of policy. Constantly active in enlarging the field of work of his own department, he reorganized its foreign trade sections, summoned conferences to deal with unemployment and with transportation crises, represented the Government in major industrial disputes, and appeared as the President's representative in the initiation of national engineering enterprises, such as the St. Lawrence canal and the Colorado basin compact.

Organization of campaigns to reduce waste in industrial operations, prevent accidents in traffic, and to conserve fisheries were among minor activities he undertook. The Commerce Department, under his leadership, took an interest in a far wider area of government and industry than ever before.

Mrs. Hoover ably seconded her husband's temperament in organizing a simple mode of living. He had much wealth, though there was never advertisement of it. He occupied an expensive but modestly furnished Washington house, in the same block with the residence of the late President Wilson.

Another house, always considered the family home, was built for him on the campus of Stanford University at Palo Alto, an institution in the service of which he spent time and money unflaggingly.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE, HIS FAMILY AND THEIR CALIFORNIA HOME

When Herbert Clark Hoover has not been called elsewhere by official duties, he and his family have made their home on the campus of Stanford University, California. Their residence there is shown below. Mr. Hoover, Mrs. Hoover and their elder son, Herbert, jr., all are Stanford graduates and Alan, the younger son, is a student there. CONVENTION CROWD AIDS BANK ROBBERS; POLICEMAN SLAIN

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—Appearing suddenly in the midst of a Republican national convention traffic jam, seven daring bank robbers today held up the Home Trust Co. at 1119 Walnut street, in the downtown district, and escaped with loot disclosed by auditors to be $19,151.93.

Tear gas let loose in the bank by an employe interrupted the holdup and the robbers fled, firing wildly with shotguns and revolvers.

Five persons, including two patrolmen, were wounded, one fatally, and one man fell dead from excitement. Two of the wounded were in a serious condition tonight.

Hundreds of Republican delegates and visitors were on their way to Convention Hall, six blocks distant, at the time and the crowded condition of the downtown streets aided the robbers in escaping.

Traffic Officer Hit.

James H. Smith, traffice officer, was hit in the neck and right shoulder with a shotgun discharge, after he had fired at the robbers' car careening wildly up the crowd-choked Walnut street. He died tonight in a hospital.

Miss Lillian M. Rolen, 16, was shot in the face. She fell almost in the car's path, as did the wounded officer.

Alvin Faeth, 30, a shoe salesman who saw the holdup, fell dead from heart disease.

Entering the bank, six of the men lined up the 40 employes and a few customers. Two of them hurdled the cages and began scooping up the money.

J. E. Thrutchley, safe deposit manager, working below heard the commotion and rushed into the lobby firing a tear-gas pistol. As the tear-gas bombs exploded the leader ordered his men to flee, and they rushed for their car.

The bank employes also were forced out by the gas and it was 45 minutes before they could reenter the building.

You'll Like This BETTER Method of Ventilation

YOU wouldn't think of turning a blower fan on yourself in the winter. Yet with windows closed to conserve heat, you need more ventilating assistance in cold weather than in warm. Even in summer, drafts are no asset. Good air is always a necessity, but drafts are nothing but a nuisance any time. That's why you'll like the BETTER method of ventilation—a simple portable unit that gives positive draftless air renewal entirely by diffusion and circulation.

SAVORY AIRATOR

Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute

AIRATOR is an air mixer—not a fan. Set one on your desk or table and turn the switch. There is no draft, no commotion, no blowing about of curtains or papers. Yet almost immediately the room is filled with freshened revitalized air. You are comfortable anywhere, not merely close up. The magic of diffusion is at work. The AIRATOR'S blades revolve horizontally instead of vertically. They draw in the air from every part of the room and literally "turn it inside out." They churn and mix the air within the globe, then allow it to escape in all directions. Tobacco smoke, odors, exhalations—disappear. The oxygen is put to work. You have perfect ventilation without drafts; air comfort for winter and summer alike.

HOOVER AND THE PLATFORM.

The Republican party has nominated Herbert Hoover for President after having adopted a platform that fails to meet the demands of agricultural States that are normally Republican. The commitee on resolutions was unable to reach a compromise on the farm relief plank, and the contest on the floor revealed that the breach was too wide and deep to be bridged. The majority adopted a plank that was declared by Gov. Lowden to be lacking in a guarantee of farm relief, and accordingly he refused to stand upon it and withdrew his candidacy for the nomination.

Not since 1912 until this year has a Republican national convention been unable to hold together its factions and adjourn without rancor and danger of revolt. There were sharp divisions of opinion in 1916, in 1920, and in 1924, but the conventions of those years chose candidates who were acceptable to all, standing upon platforms that reconciled all shades of opinion. Consequently the party cast its full vote, and but for the unprecedented situation in 1916 it would have regained control of the Government. It was united and invincible four years later, electing Mr. Harding by 7,000,000 majority; and in 1924, with united ranks, it easily prevailed over its distracted antagonist. Until Mr. Coolidge's announcement last August it was commonly assumed that his reelection was assured. He was at any rate the unanimous choice of his party; and even now it is evident that if he had consented to run again the party would not have been seriously divided at Kansas City.

No one can foretell to what extent the Republican disaffection in the farm States will influence the election in November, but no one can ignore the fact that it increases the difficulties that confront the party and correspondingly encourages the opposition.

Upon all questions except that of farm relief the Republican platform adopted yesterday seems to be a well-constructed statement of party doctrine. The elements that are opposed to prohibition can not be pleased with the dry plank, but they were not taken unawares, and no organized protest is to be expected. The platform as a whole is a recapitulation of the policies and achievements of the Coolidge administration, and therefore it is acceptable to Republicans generally.

Gov. Lowden's criticism of the farm relief plank furnishes the rallying cry of the "embattled farmers," and his abrupt refusal to stand upon that plank gives terrific force to his criticism. The scattering of the vote that stood behind him indicates that his followers were unprepared for his action and did not have time to concentrate upon another farm relief champion.

Mr. Hoover's running mate is yet to be chosen, and it is too early to obtain the reaction of the country to the candidate and the platform. At present it appears that the Republican party will enter the campaign with a candidate who, while possessing many elements of strength, is handicapped by standing upon a platform that is unacceptable to an important section of the party in States that must be carried if the party is to win.

CHAIRMAN MOSES.

The task assigned yesterday to Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, was not an easy one. He was called upon to preside over the Republican National Convention during its turbulent moments. Every effort was being made by those who opposed the report of the resolutions committee to arouse the convention. Speakers in behalf of the substitute farm relief plank stormed and threatened dire disaster. They were trying to find the key with which to set loose mob emotions in the convention hall.

Under such circumstances much depended upon the permanent chairman. It was advisable to give the minority considerable leeway. Since it was foreordained that the protestants would be defeated, nothing was lost by giving them a full hearing. In order to bring this about Senator Moses had at times to take matters in his own hands. There were many delegates who wished to dispense with the long-winded harangues. They raised loud and prolonged shouts of "no" when Senator Moses announced that 30 minutes would be granted the principal speaker in behalf of the minority farm relief amendment. Despite this fact, Senator Moses announced that he "heard no objection," and granted the extension. He took his own counsel again when more of the protestants than had originally been scheduled demanded to be heard, but in so doing he did not relax the control which it was evident that he exercised over the delegates.

The senator from New Hampshire is, of course, not a newcomer in such a role. As president pro tempore of the Senate he has presided over the Senate at its most unruly moments. He has expedited public business through that body at a rate of speed which none of his associates has ever been able to equal. As a presiding officer Senator Moses can be hard-boiled when the occasion requires, but he knows equally well when to give his opponents a little rope.

PROHIBITION NOT AN ISSUE.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler and his wet plank were promptly bowled over by the Republicans at Kansas City. The prohibition plank proposed by the committee on resolutions is all that the drys could reasonably demand. It singles out the eighteenth amendment for special enforcement, and keeps a discreet silence on the matter of enforcing other amendments—say the fourteenth. The Republican party is practical, and it is looking for votes.

Public interest will center on the Democratic liquor plank. No doubt it will afford as little comfort for the wets as they obtained at Kansas City. Senator Reed correctly sensed the danger of a radical wet commitment by the Democratic party this year, and he has contributed materially to the movement among practical Democrats in favor of a very moderate expression on this subject. The two parties will avoid making an issue of the wet-and-dry question, and very properly so, since the parties are composed of both wet and dry elements.

Whenever the people are ready to repeal the eighteenth amendment they will find means for making it a political issue. Obviously they are not ready to act at this time. The two party organizations can not lead the people in this matter. If the movement to repeal the eighteenth amendment gains sufficient strength to call for political action, a party will form for that purpose, and it will draw its members from both of the old parties.

SMITH IN NORTH CAROLINA.

The noise and tumult at Kansas City have come near drowning out the preparations which the Democrats are making for their convention at Houston, but interest attaches nevertheless to the result of the State convention in North Carolina, which met on the same day that the Republicans began their deliberations. There is a conflict of claims but it appears certain that Gov. Smith of New York made some inroads in the delegation. North Carolina's 24 votes are not destined to be cast solidly for Cordell Hull. Smith's enemies say that he obtained four and one-half votes. His friends say that he will have anywhere from seven to ten.

The significance of the outcome lies in the fact that North Carolina is the only Southern State other than West Virginia where the Smith candidacy was subjected to a real test. In the latter State the New York chief executive won the preferential vote; in the former he succeeded in making a dent in the armor of his enemies. The fight against Smith was no idle or feeble gesture in North Carolina. Senator F. M. Simmons, long the political dictator of the Democratic organization, made a personal issue of the matter. The aged senator entered the fight against the New Yorker with more vigor than he has shown in recent years. In a speech in the Senate he gave the most determined challenge that any foe of Smith has yet uttered.

Under the circumstances not even the more optimistic supporters of the governor expected him to overcome the opposition in North Carolina. Yet the only test of strength which was permitted in the North Carolina convention revealed sentiment so nearly divided that the opponents of Gov. Smith were afraid to press their demand for the unit rule.

The backers of Gov. Smith are predicting once more the possibility of a first ballot nomination. Figures issued in New York claim a present strength of 732 votes for his candidacy. If this estimate is correct only two more are needed to insure success. Whether or not the count is accurate, the fact remains that Gov. Smith now has a majority. This advantage and the show of Smith strength in such a rock-ribbed Southern State as North Carolina may influence many delegates who had considered holding off for a ballot or two. A stampede to Smith seems probable.

STOLEN GOODS' MARKET

The Association of Grand Jurors of New York County some time ago set itself to consideration of the crime problem. After studying it in its various phases the association came to the realization that the receiver of stolen goods, the "fence" in criminal parlance, was to a greater degree than any other factor responsible. Stolen goods are of little value unless they can be turned into cash. The "fence" makes it possible for criminals to obtain the benefit of their spoils. Do away with the "fence" and crime will have no market.

The association recently published a review entitled "Criminal Receivers in the United States" that is well worth serious consideration on the part of the public. In 1927 Greater New York suffered from 36 holdups, 308 burglaries and 285 grand larcenies in which merchandise was stolen in amounts of $1,000 or more. Altogether more than $2,000,000 was lost in such crimes, of which the police recovered only 10 per cent. During the same period more than $750,000 worth of jewelry was stolen, of which a like proportion was recovered. In general, considering all classifications of robbery and crime, only 10 per cent of the spoils are recovered, and the remaining 90 per cent is disposed of through the "fence."

The Association of Grand Jurors reports that the "fence," as a criminal institution, is highly organized. The receivers of stolen goods keep carefully in the background, plotting and planning through numerous "lower-downs" who actually commit the crime, and receive the spoils for final disposition through another chain of shady characters. They dispose of their wares frequently through legitimate merchants, relying sometimes on connections outside the city, or telling a more or less plausible hard-luck story to explain how the goods came to be in their hands. Stolen merchandise, therefore, offers competition to honest trade.

The book, "Criminal Receivers in the United States," contains numerous suggestions for remedial legislation. The receiver, it says, must be accurately defined and required to explain the origin of property of doubtful pedigree. The mere possession of stolen property should be declared unlawful, and the strict keeping of records must be made obligatory. With an habitual criminal act to strike against the many-time offender, and a stringent receiver of stolen property act to make difficult the marketing of the criminal's loot, organized society would have effective weapons with which to protect itself against crime.

SOCCER AS A WORLD GAME.

The international character of soccer was never better demonstrated than in the finals in this division of sport at the Olympic games. The participants for the Olympic championship were Uruguay and Argentina, two nations which probably will not be heard of when the main track and field competition starts next month. Uruguay retained its hold on the world's title which it won four years ago. The representatives of a score or more of nations participated in the preliminary contests that led to the title match.

No other team game on the Olympic program attracts so many entries or arouses as much enthusiasm as soccer. Ice hockey opens up the Olympic contests, but a comparatively few nations compete. Baseball is not recognized during the course of competition. Rugby football is passing out. American football is known in no other country. Lacrosse is to have an exhibition foothold this year. Official recognition has not been given it. Basketball has not yet earned a place on the program. Rowing is popular, but can not rival soccer.

The latter pastime has one advantage in that it may be played in almost any climate. It is by no means as seasonal as either football or baseball, and participants may engage in it long after they have passed the age limit in other competitive branches of sport. A creation of the English playing fields, it has long since spread to all quarters of the globe, and, as the Olympics have demonstrated, skill is not governed by the rank of the nation.

The development of soccer has been slower in the United States than in most countries. The game is just beginning to get a general foothold. For years it was restricted to those who had brought the love of it from other countries. The last few years have witnessed a decided change. It is now established in a competitive sense all through the East and into the middle West. Within the last few years the professional aspects of the game have been developed. It is being considered by professional baseball magnates as a winter game. The owners of the New York Giants already have acquired a soccer team and are utilizing the Polo Grounds for a dual purpose. This is a logical development. The big baseball plants now lie virtually idle except for 77 days in the year. Soccer, if properly developed, can more than double this period of usefulness. Under professional leadership the game should have new impetus and the United States may in time take a leading place in a sport which it has heretofore neglected.

DISHONEST ADVERTISING.

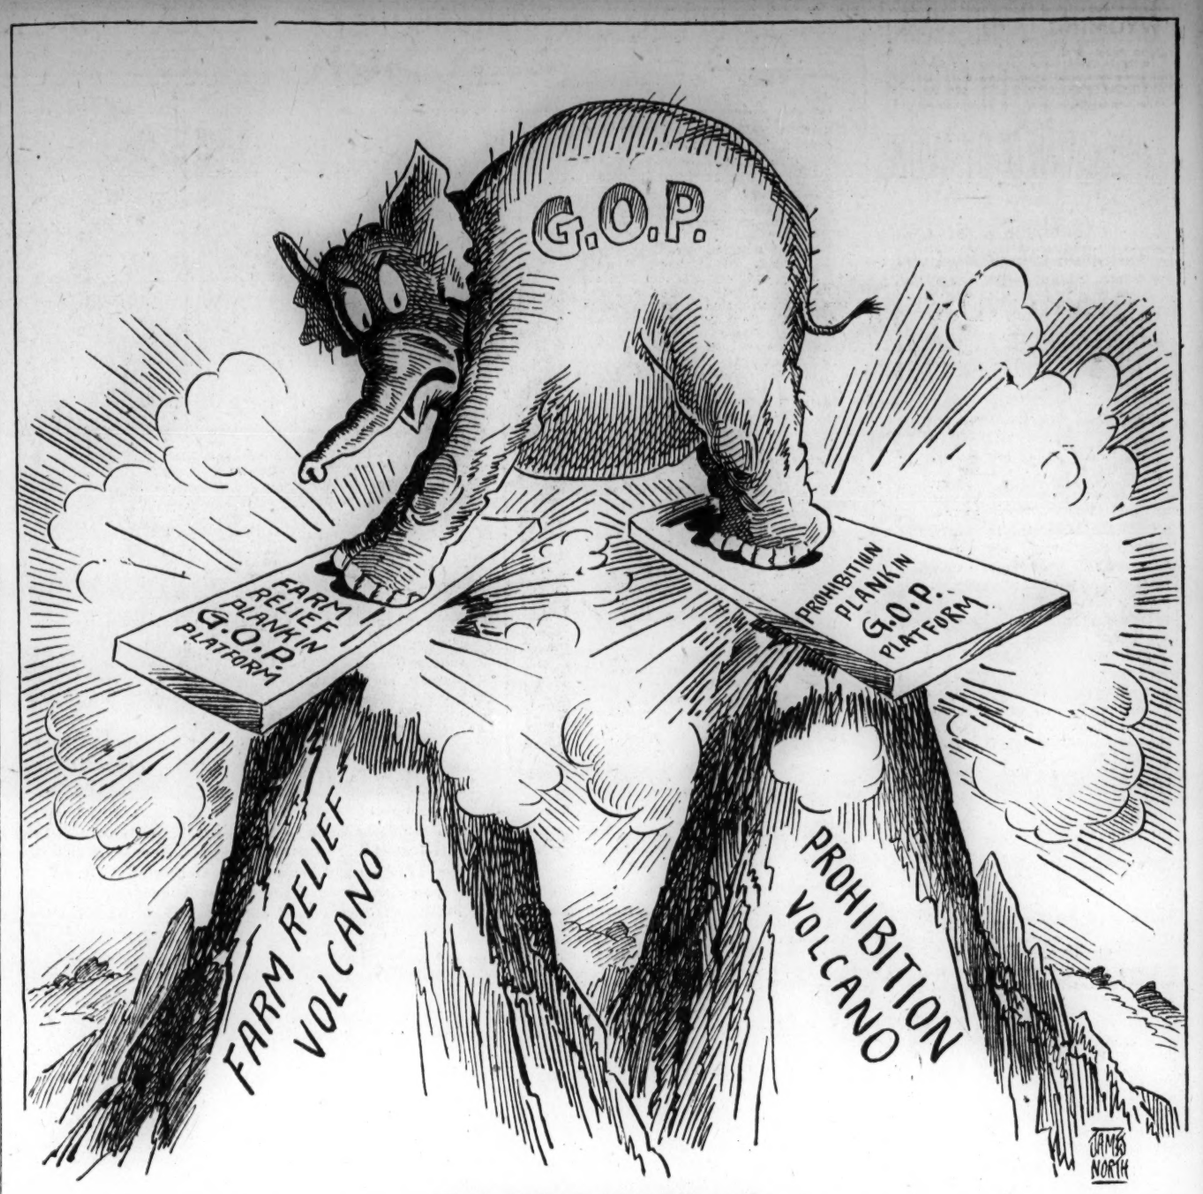

The Federal Trade Commission has authorized a trade practice conference with publishers of periodicals to consider unfair methods of competition which are said to exist in the publishing business. Commissioner Myers filed a memorandum in dissent. The commission, in his opinion, does not have jurisdiction over the publishers. In a hearing of this sort the advertisers will have no representation, and publishers, relying on resolutions approved by the commission, will be expected to cut off particular advertisers on the theory that their advertising is contrary to law. Commissioner Myers' point does not seem to bear upon the fundamental issue involved.

It is generally realized among publishers of the better sort that a great mass of objectionable advertising matter appears continually. Fake cures, dishonest get-rich-quick schemes and announcements inserted by fly-by-night concerns cost the public a heavy sum annually. Publishers for years have exercised a self-imposed censorship over such matter, but it still creeps into the advertising columns of newspapers and magazines. The Federal Trade Commission has been threatening to get after such advertisers for some time. The announcement of a trade practice conference is the first actual step in the active campaign.

The point is made that the publisher of dishonest advertising can not be held responsible if he accepts the subject matter in good faith. Probably this is so; the more credit then to the publisher who voluntarily, and at his own expense, undertakes to keep dishonest advertising out of his publication.

The conference called by the commission will serve to unite publishers in a campaign to censor the advertising subject matter offered to their periodicals. Legitimate advertisers will not be affected by the result of such a conference; dishonest ones may be deprived of the opportunity to swindle the public, but they will not dare to take the matter into the courts. If there is a question regarding any specific type of advertising the conference will hardly attempt to make a ruling. Dishonest advertising falls into certain easily recognized categories, however, and it is against this type that the commission and the American publisher intend to campaign. The conference ought to establish trade practices that will be effective in protecting the public.

A nation-wide hook-up has been employed to enable the American public to sit in on the Republican National Convention, and fast planes, equipped with photographic laboratories in which technicians developed and printed films in flight, have been utilized to bring the pictorial record of the happenings at Kansas City to the East. The public, in this day and age, not only must be served, but must be served with dispatch. Time and distance have largely lost their meaning, but the good old game of nominating a Presidential candidate proceeds along about as it did 50 years ago.

Capped But Cantankerous.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Cabinet Nominees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Hoover is the fifth Cabinet member to be nominated for President. Madison, Monroe and John Quincy Adams each was Secretary of State at the time of nomination and election. Taft was Secretary of War and Hoover Secretary of Commerce.

Five Vice Presidents have been twice elected, John Adams, George Clinton, Daniel D. Tompkins, John C. Calhoun and Thomas R. Marshall. Sherman was renominated, but defeated.

W. H. H.

Figuring on the Election.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been figuring on the probable result next November, and it does not look so very rosy for the G. O. P. There can be but little doubt that the South will be solid for the Democratic candidate, no matter whom they nominate. There will be 531 votes in the electoral college. The solid South will elect 126 of these. To them may be added with hardly a doubt, 8 from Maryland, 18 from Missouri, 10 from Oklahoma, and 13 from Kentucky. This will raise their vote to 175, or only 91 less than a majority.

If Gov. Smith is the nominee he can pretty safely count on New York's 45, and the 14 from New Jersey. He would have to get only 32 more to secure the election. It looks as if the Republicans are to have the hardest fight they have faced since 1912. I have heard some talk about the Republicans winning Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri, but the chances are all against them. The Democrats will have a better chance in several of the Northwestern States than the Republicans will have in either Kentucky, Missouri or Tennessee. That is the situation they must face.

FIGURES.

Mrs. Pankhurst.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The death of Emmeline Pankhurst removes a picturesque figure from the world. Mrs. Pankhurst was the first militant woman suffragist. Early in life she became interested in social reform movements, but finally she organized the Woman's Social and Political Union, starting the vote-for-women movement with a march upon the House of Commons. Many of the participants in that demonstration were jailed, and from that time on Mrs. Pankhurst was continually in and out of prison. During the war she dropped her suffragist activities to join in supporting the country. In 1918 England granted suffrage to women above the age of 30, and Mrs. Pankhurst immediately took up the crusade in behalf of votes for women above the age of 21. This reform is embodied in what is known as the "flapper vote" bill. In the meantime the reform she advocated was enacted into the Constitution of the United States. Mrs. Pankhurst, unlike many great leaders, lived to see her dreams materialize.

D. A. W.

Tendency to Communism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was thought the Sixty-ninth Congress had gone to the limit in shameless disregard of the Constitution, of its own powers as defined by the Constitution and of the rights of individuals, but it turns out the Sixty-ninth was a piker compared with the Seventieth. To the Seventieth the Constitution has no meaning. Under the Seventieth we have changed from a republican form of Government by the people to a despotic Government administered by Congress. Once we prided ourselves on having a Government of limited powers, and held ourselves up as an example to the people of other countries.

All the Fourth of July speeches which we so applauded during the last century for their patriotic and wise statesmanship are now shown to have been buncombe. We refused to recognize Soviet Russia, while we are outdoing in sovietism even Russia itself. For a century we lauded Jefferson for holding that Congress possessed only the powers specially designated to it; we quoted with warm approval his motto, "That that government is best which governs the least." We have turned our backs upon both those time-honored Jeffersonian ideas, and have adopted the theory that our Congress is absolute; that the only right the people have is to pay taxes. Untold millions are to be wasted under the McNary-Haugen bill; other untold millions by the Muscle Shoals undertaking, and still others by the Boulder Dam project. One is direct class legislation; another is an uncalled-for entering into a business that should be left to individual effort, and the third is sectional only. No wonder the people are asking, "Are we becoming sovietized?"

AN OLD SOLDIER.

The Farm Bill—A Reminder.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I remember that when Mr. Roosevelt was President he was charged with using "the big stick" on Congress. In using that kind of a weapon the doughty colonel was not in the same class with Calvin Coolidge. The club he used on the McNary-Haugen bill would have knocked the life out of any other assemblage of men than the one which temporarily sways things on Capitol Hill.

In his annual message he practically announced that he would veto any measure of the character of the McNary bill, and pointed a way to an adequate and workable bill for the relief of the agricultural sections. Had Congress been honest it would have prepared and passed such a measure and the relief would now be assured. A portion of the farmers were vehement in support of the McNary bill; to curry favor with them some members voted for it. Others voted for it knowing it would be vetoed, and then they could go before the farmers during the campaign and make capital for their party. They do not honestly favor the bill, and only voted for it hoping to put the Republican party in the nine hole.

REPUBLICAN.

Progress.

Baltimore Sun: North America, one must assume, has got its affairs into very good order when, as a matter of routine administration, the Canadian Government imports reindeer to supply food for Eskimos in danger of starvation in the distant and desolate regions along the Mackenzie river. Not the extremest part of this vast territory lies outside the attention of authorities. Very little time has passed since Eskimos of the North or Indians of the great plains starved on occasion or died of disease without notice, but now even the nomads along the Arctic Ocean are under observation.

A Caged Eagle is Still an Eagle, But It Doesn't Develop Wing Power

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE is a popular belief in America that all great men once walked between plow handles. There is another, equally popular that all big-town men are smart. And neither is supported by the facts.

The printing press, free education and the automobile have standardized us. In town and country we read the same publications, use the same canned soup and listen to the same phonograph records.

There are churches in the cities and bootleggers in the country; there are oily knaves in villages and suckers in the metropolis.

The city has no monopoly of crime. Rural South Carolina has more homicides, per capita, than Chicago.

The country has no monopoly of gold-brick purchasers. Ponzi and his kind find their victims in cities.

But, though city and country are similar in their production of wise men and foolish ones, good men and evil ones, shrewd men and stupid ones, not one man in ten thousand grows bigger than his opportunities, and opportunities in the country are small.

Jesus was a country boy, but he took his new gospel to Jerusalem.

A genius or a prophet born in a log cabin goes to town with his message, and in town he grows great.

It is Nature's scheme of things.

The goldfish is a carp. Keep it in a bowl and it remains a runt. Place it in a pond and it doubles in size. Liberate it in a stream and it reverts to type.

Land-lock the waters where the salmon spawns and you have trout—but if part of the hatch returns to sea, these develop as salmon.

Whales don't develop in a mill pond.

If the country boy who goes to town outstrips the city boy, it is because he realizes he has far to go and tries harder.

But to the town he must go, for the market is in town. Brains must go to market, as cattle and potatoes do.

New York contains more able men than any other community for the same reason that Chicago receives more beef cattle than Denver. They go where the market is.

Able men are born in small towns, and there become leaders; but though an acorn can sprout in a flower pot it can't become much of a tree unless it gets more room.

A country boy might build an engine of ten thousand horsepower; but he won't build it to pull a corn sheller.

The effect of what you say depends on who you are. That kind of horn doesn't sound impudent except on a cheap car.

One reason the modern woman is dissatisfied is because she still yearns for a good cry at times and can't think up anything to cry about.

People don't really do without breakfast when they diet. They just eat breakfast and lunch at the same time.

PRESS COMMENT.

That Helped.

Buffalo News: Farmers didn't feel so downtrodden in the old days. They couldn't ride so far to hear so many speeches.

Where, Indeed?

Dallas News: It ain't any trouble for us Democrats to see who is leading now, but what we want to know is where are we going.

Add Disasters.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Pretty soon politics in the United States will take an equal place in the news with murders, suicides and disasters.

But They Do.

Cincinnati Enquirer: When advocates of prohibition are caught violating the Volstead act they ought not to object to taking the prescribed medicine.

Mellon's Penn.

Atlanta Constitution: Mr. Hoover will go before the convention with less than a majority of votes but he could write a different tale if he could take Mellon's Penn in hand.

Poor Fellows.

Boston Herald: Now is the time when the candidates have their ears to the ground. After the convention most of them will have their backs there.

Careful Ladies.

Cincinnati Enquirer: About the only girl now who is careful about the way she sits down is one who took her first horseback riding lesson the day before.

The Social Whirl.

Indianapolis Star: The depths of social oblivion are plumbed this month by the individual who doesn't draw either a commencement or wedding announcement.

Moonjuice.

Or a Welsh Rarebit.

Buffalo News: You can dress and make up to make the world think you are as young as ever, but you can't fool a slice of mince pie.

The Moral.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: New York State parole board has released bucketshop operators Fuller and McGee after only 12 months in Sing Sing. The pair had caused losses of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 to 20,000 investors. The moral is: "When you bucket, bucket largely."

The Slither of Punctured Tubes.

Boston Transcript: If there is a revolt of Western farmers, the orators will probably not talk about the tramp of the cowhide boots. That is hardly appropriate in days when farmers travel on rubber tires.

Chain Store Investigation.

American Bankers Journal: It is estimated that there are about 4,000 chain store systems operating a total of about 100,000 stores. The Federal Reserve Board has compiled figures showing that the annual sales of chain stores—and mail order houses—increased from a little over a billion dollars in 1919 to almost three billion dollars in 1927.

So it is quite evident that the chain store organizations can wield great power in their efforts to buy shrewdly and that any slight advance in the prices of a few of the necessaries of life must in the course of a year's business mean a handsome total of what might be termed, unnecessary profits. There is, therefore, ample justification for inquiring into the practices prevailing in this form of merchandising.

WOMEN WIN FOUR OF MAJOR PLANKS IN PARTY PLATFORM

MINORITY IS SHRILL IN ITS DISAPPOINTMENT

Couldn't Ask Anything Better, Says Virginia Speel, Committeewoman Here.

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—More than half the planks sponsored by women went down to defeat before the Republican resolutions committee, but the reading of the finished platform today, nevertheless, announced victory for them on four of their major points, prohibition enforcement, national defense, renunciation-of-war treaties and woman's equality.

Within the ranks of official convention delegates, the majority platform report met stanch support from nearly all the women, but feminine members of insurgent delegations supporting the La Follette and farm bureau minority programs shared in the protest of their men associates, and shrill, staccato feminine shrieks pierced the roar of the farmers' demonstration.

Of the ten planks actively supported by women before the resolutions committee, or incorporated in the accepted programs of women's national programs, four were included in the party platform, two completely and two in part.

The law enforcement plank coincided exactly with the dearest hopes of the "dry" women.

Dry Plank Delights.

"We are delighted, and we shall do all we can to make the women active in the campaign if we get the right nominees," said Mrs. Charles W. Peabody, of Boston, president of the women's national committee for law enforcement.

The foreign policies plank, in so far as it indorsed "the proposal of the Secretary of State for a multilateral treaty to renounce war as an instrument of national policy" and arbitration treaties "peacefully to settle justiciable disputes," duplicated the League of Women Voters' first plank and the principles advocated for years by the Women's National Conference on the Prevention of War.

The League of Women Voters' plea for the "entry of the United States into the permanent court of international justice," however, was frowned upon by the resolutions committee.

The Navy and national defense planks are in line with the Daughters of the American Revolution program supporting naval construction and the drafting of material resources in time of war.

"They are splendid; we could not ask anything better," said Mrs. Virginia White Speel, new national committeewoman from the District of Columbia and a national official of the D. A. R.

Regarded as a Gesture.

The women and public service plank "accepts wholeheartedly equality on the part of women," but is regarded as "only a gesture" by the members of the National Women's Party, since it evades the moot question of legal equality preventing protective legislation, the point at issue between the party and the League of Women Voters.

"It would have had more appeal to the women of the country, especially the self-supporting women," said Mrs. Clarence M. Smith, of New York, chairman of the party's national council, "if it had included something about placing men and women on an equality before the law."

The remaining planks, supported by women and ignored in the platform committee report, were:

One by the woman's committee for repeal of the eighteenth amendment; one by the National Woman's Party for an equal rights constitutional amendment; four by the League of Women Voters for abolition of the "lame duck" congressional sessions, Federal maternity and infancy legislation, Government operation of Muscle Shoals, and removal of legal discrimination against women by specific laws; and one by the National Education Association for a Federal department of education.

Majority Voices Praise.

In delegation after delegation on the floor of the convention women waxed lyrical in praise of the various planks of the majority platform.

"It is the greatest outstanding piece of work accomplished for America in recent years," Mrs. M. M. Scranton, national committeewoman and delegate at large from Pennsylvania, said of Secretary Mellon's work as expressed in the planks on finance and taxation, public debt, tax reduction and foreign debts.

"It is simply fine; we approve adequately of 'the intracoastal waterways,'" said Mrs. William T. Martin, only woman delegate from Louisiana, of the flood relief and waterways planks.

The opposition of the minority group, however, was as keenly felt by the women as by the men.

"I am absolutely in favor of every one of Senator La Follette's principles," said Mrs. Eric Johnson only woman delegate from Wisconsin.

"The women agree altogether with the men in North Dakota," reiterated Mrs. Barbara R. Parkinson, one of the two farm women in that State's delegation.

Hoover's Iowa Birthplace Plans Big Celebration

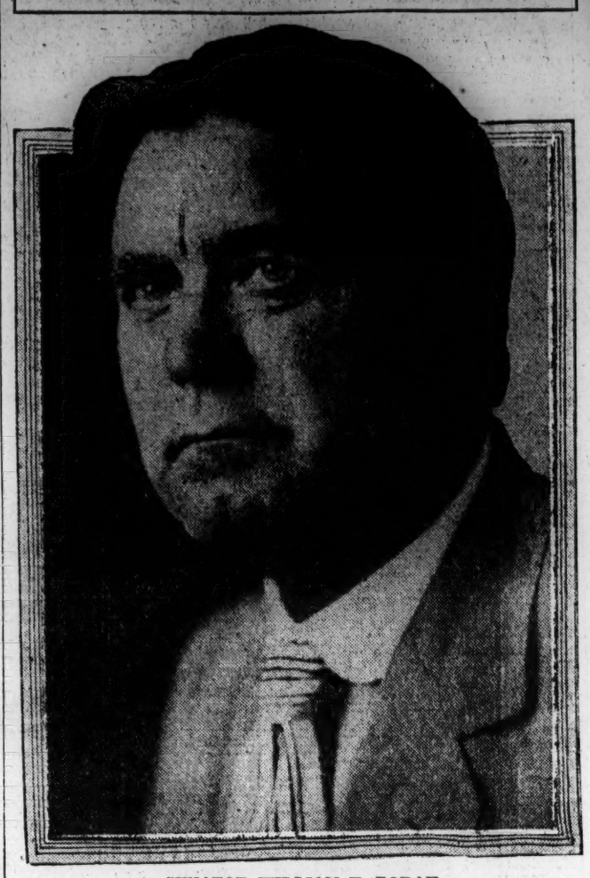

West Branch, Iowa, June 14 (A.P.).—Herbert Hoover's old home town was in a state of suspense today as its residents grouped around radio receivers waiting for word of his nomination at Kansas City.

One hundred per cent pride was felt by residents as they followed developments at the Republican convention, where more than a majority of the delegates were pledged to support the man who left here as an orphan when 10 years old.

Tomorrow night West Branch plans a celebration when the little Quaker village will indulge in such festivities as a parade, noisemakers and fireworks. A speaker has been engaged—A. I. Dawson, a Davenport banker, former congressman and supporter of Secretary Hoover.

W. P. Anderson, business man, who is vice president of the West Branch Hoover Club, which boasts 500 members, returned from Kansas City to assist in preparations for tomorrow's celebration.

HIS PROHIBITION PLANK WINS

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH.

only other controversy was occasioned by the quadrennial attempt of Wisconsin radicals to substitute their own platform for that framed by the committee on resolutions.

Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, whose father before him sponsored similar attempts to upset the program of the regulars, presented the Wisconsin platform as a minority report from the committee. The Wisconsin senator did not demand a roll call and his substitute platform was rejected by an overwhelming vote. He received more applause than he did votes, his farm plank in particular striking a responsive chord from McNary-Haugenites and his ability, despite his small stature and boyish appearance, to throw his voice out over the huge crowd excited some degree of admiration.

Coolidge Policies Assailed.

The La Follette platform assailed Coolidge foreign policies, denounced the administration naval building program, objected to compulsory military training or service, proposed a reduction in land, air and naval armaments, hit at an alleged "power trust," favored Government operation of power plants at Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals, advocated anti-injunction legislation in labor disputes, favored liberalization of the Volstead act and declared that the Federal Reserve System has been converted into an instrument by which the Nation's credit is used for the advantage of stock market speculators. Senator La Follette announced that the member of the resolutions committee from North Dakota concurred in his minority report except as to its wet plank.

The resolutions committee received approval without a record vote after nearly five hours of consideration.

As approved the platform accords with policies for which Herbert Hoover has stood. The document, however, is essentially a Coolidge platform. Its provisions were prepared with the cooperation of various members of President Coolidge's Cabinet. It is exactly the sort of platform on which the President might have sought reelection.

For Revision Upward.

Not only with respect to the farm plank, but in other ways, the platform is too conservative to please some of the middle Western groups.

The protective tariff is emphasized as a basic principle as in past years. The platform boldly declares for a revision upward of duties on products of certain industries as a means of providing greater protection against foreign competition. It also pledges higher rates on farm products. It contains not the slightest suggestion to support the theory of some of the Western farm interests that there ought to be a reduction in duties on some of the manufactured commodities which the farmer buys.

As to labor the platform expressed friendliness, but fails to include all the planks sought by the American Federation of Labor. It approves freedom in wage contracts, the right of collective bargaining and pledges a continuation of the present standard of living and high-wage scales. It fails to declare definitely for legislation to curb the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes, the chief legislative measure on the program of organized labor, but it expresses a belief "that injunctions in labor disputes in some instances have been abused and have given rise to a serious question for legislation."

Government and Business.

The platform framers omitted entirely all of the proposals by women's organizations, including planks suggested both by the National League of Women Voters and the National Woman's Party.

The platform throughout is in accord with the Coolidge policy of noninterference with business. It opposes continued Government ownership or operation of the merchant marine and advocates sale of the present Government vessels to private owners as soon as possible. It contains nothing which could be construed as implying approval of Government ownership projects, such as proposed in legislation relating to Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam. It carefully refrains from favoring Government regulation of the coal industry, but vaguely promises support of "any feasible plan for the stabilization of the coal mining industry, which will work with justice to miners, consumers and producers."

Indorsement is given specifically to the Coolidge administration and under the terms of the platform the national ticket will be obliged to continue the Coolidge policies as a guarantee of porsperity and for the promotion of American interests.

Coolidge Economy Upheld.

As might be expected the very first plank after a general statement of issues applies to the Coolidge economy program. It is declared that the record of the United States Treasury under Secretary Mellon stands unrivaled and unsurpassed. Financial achievements which are recited include the reduction of the public debt by six and one half billions during the seven years of the Mellon regime, the retirement or refunding of eleven billions of Government securities, annual savings of interest charges of 275 millions and reduction in taxes to the extent of nearly two billions.

With respect to tax reduction it is declared that practically all the war taxes have been eliminated and the tax system has been definitely restored to a peace-time basis. The party is pledged to "such further reduction of the tax burden as the condition of the Treasury may from time to time permit."

Funding of foreign debts is dealt with and the platform takes occasion to reiterate opposition to their cancellation. In discussing foreign affairs approval is given to the proposal of Secretary of State Kellogg for a multilateral treaty with other nations renouncing war as an instrument of national policy and declaring in favor of pacific settlement of international disputes.

Opposition to the League.

Opposition is reiterated to membership in the League of Nations, but there is an expression of willingness to cooperate in its humanitarian and technical work without becoming involved in European politics. The plank of the 1924 platform favoring adherence to the protocol of the world court has been dropped out of the present document. Failure of other nations to accept the reservations proposed by the Senate apparently has furnished an excuse for burying the world court issue, which President Coolidge pressed in the face of considerable opposition within the party.

There is a plank declaring for continued support of American rights in Mexico and a strengthening of friendship and confidence with that nation. Another declaration pledges cooperation with the government of Nicaragua to restore and maintain peace, order and stability, but without in any way infringing upon her sovereign rights. It is proposed to retain sufficient naval and military forces in China to protect lives of Americans there, but without interference in the internal affairs of that nation.

The platform urges the promotion of foreign trade and promises a firm and consistent support of American persons and legitimate American interests in all parts of the world.

Regulation of Utilities.

There are planks for the continuation of the present restrictive immigration system, for Federal aid toward road construction, for development of inland and intra-coastal waterways, for full and adequate relief for disabled war veterans and for State rather than Federal regulation of public utilities.

The administration program for a building program to round out and maintain the Navy in all types of combatant ships to the full ratio provided for the United States in the arms conference treaties is approved. The American Legion's proposal for legislation to authorize the President in the event of another war to draft not only man power but material resources and to stabilize prices of services and essential commodities receives commendation.

The platform again champions the negro by advocacy of an antilynching law.

There is an honesty in Government plank which promises prosecutions of any officials who subordinate public duty to personal interest.

Senator Borah, Idaho, placed in the platform a plank which pledges the Republican party, beginning not later than August 1, 1928, and every 30 days thereafter to file with the committees of the Senate and House a complete account of all contributions, the names of contributors, the amount expended and for what purposes. A pledge is given that no deficits will be created which might occasion such scandals as were disclosed by the oil investigation.

Visitors to Convention Start on Homeward Trail

With several of the railroads forced to attach extra cars to carry homewardbound visitors and delegates, others reported that outbound trains were loaded to capacity.

The majority of those departing ahead of the great exodus which will begin tomorrow were headed eastward, with the Missouri Pacific hauling 1,000 persons who have tired of convention excitement. Sixteen extra cars were pulled tonight by Santa Fe trains, bearing convention-fagged visitors over the homeward route.

Various other roads reported that traffic had been heavy throughout the convention and that reservations for tonight gave no index to the number of delegates who might be leaving the choice of a Vice President to their alternates.

HEFLIN DENOUNCES HOOVER AND SMITH IN FLAG DAY TALK

GOVERNOR'S EXPENSE REPORT IS RIDICULED

A new party will appear on the political horizon if the Hoover and Smith forces carry the day at the Republican and Democratic conventions, Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, last night told an audience in a Flag Day address at the Washington Auditorium.

Asserting that Sinclair, Fall and Doheny are working for Hoover's candidacy, while Tammany and the Catholic Church are behind Smith, Heflin declared there will be "something doing in this country" if either were nominated.

"We don't want that bunch in there, on the one hand," he said, referring to the Hoover ticket, "nor do we want to Tammanyize the Government, on the other. It's time for Americans to wake up."

Tammany Is Scored.

Having bolted the Democratic party in three successive conventions, Tammany is not entitled to "play" with the Democrats again, the senator told his audience. "Three strikes, and out," he added.

Heflin said that the present presidential campaign has been the most corrupt in the history of the Democratic party. He ridiculed the reports of Smith campaign expenditures, and said that he knew of instances in which more than the total amount reported was spent for campaign advertising.

It would be a national calamity, he said, if Smith were to become President. The New York Governor would make a "mockery" of law enforcement; open the immigration channels to 10,000,000 foreign Catholics, and control relations with Mexico through his appointment of an ambassador to that country, said the Alabama senator.

Threats Against Life Cited.

Heflin traced the whole history of his senatorial outbursts against the Catholic Church, and enumerated instances in which his life had been threatened, and "insidious" letters sent him through the mails. His friends, however, have assured him, he said, "that if they put you out of the way they will start something they will be sorry for."

The senator foresaw a day when "every senator on the stump" would be asked by his constituency whether or not he stood with Heflin. His Democratic colleagues have been afraid to join him in his fight against "a Catholic state" because they thought "the water cold."

"I thought so myself, until I got in it," he said, "but its fine. Come on in boys."

The speaker declared that the Catholic Church "would take the insides out of the Temple of Liberty." He said that the purported antagonism between the pope and Mussolini is "propaganda," asserting that as a matter of fact "they are like the Gold Dust twins."

Senator Moses Notifies Hoover; Praises Nominee

Convention Hall, Kansas City, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—The following telegram was sent to Herbert Hoover tonight by Senator Moses, chairman of the Republican convention:

"The Republican national convention, by a sweeping majority, which has since been made unanimous amid great enthusiasm, has named you as its candidate for the Presidency in this campaign. No message of information which I have ever sent to any one has given me as much satisfaction as this to you. I send it in the name of a united, enthusiastic and militant party organization which has turned to you as the inevitable leader in the contest which confronts us. It is not so much that we give you this nomination as that you have earned the right to it. Your training, your equipment and above all your character make you the leader for whom the party has looked in order that there may be no halting in the progress of the United States under policies which are warmly approved by the people and to which you have contributed so much. The convention, still in session, would appreciate a message from you, and I hope that you may be able speedily to send it to us."

No Contests Filed For Houston Session

Houston, Tex., June 14 (A.P.).—No contests over delegations to the Democratic national convention here June 26 have been filed and only one is rumored, Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, said today.

Mr. Shaver made this statement as he issued a call for a meeting of the national committee on the morning of June 25. The session, Mr. Shaver said, probably will be routine, concerning itself with approval of subcommittee work.

NOTES OF G. O. P.

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—"Young Bob" La Follette was pushing his way through a crowded aisle to his seat in the Wisconsin delegation after receiving many cheers but few votes for his substitute platform, when a gray-haired delegate with a benevolent expression stopped him.

"You did not have a chance, Bud," the older man said.

"I realize that, sir," was the reply of the Wisconsin senator.

Three women fainted from the stifling heat in the packed galleries after the Curtis demonstration. They were carried to the emergency hospital in the building. None of them was in serious condition.

Several of the delegates had to be straightened out on the majority and minority platforms. Some, arriving as the vote was under way, were puzzled as to whether the vote in favor of the majority was "aye" or "nay." One man in a Western delegation said to his chairman, "The minority votes for the majority." It developed that the speaker was the minority of his delegation.

VIRGINIA'S DELEGATION LIKELY TO BACK SMITH

Special to The Washington Post.

Roanoke, Va., June 14.—Local Democrats are making preparations to entertain more than 4,000 visitors here for the State Democratic convention June 21. Everything points to the largest State gathering the party has ever had.

The keynote speech will be by Representative George C. Peery, of the Ninth District; an address of welcome by Mayor Charles D. Fox, of Roanoke, and response by Mrs. Sara Lee Fain, House of Delegates member from Norfolk. State Chairman Murray Hooker, of Stuart, is to call the meeting to order.

Ten district conventions will be held here prior to the State convention. At these meetings the districts will select two delegates each to the national convention at Houston. The State convention will choose four delegates-at-large.

Delegations of a size far in excess of expectations are promised from the southwest and central sections of the State. One county with 10 votes on the convention floor is sending 100 delegates, who will have one-tenth vote each.

Practically all of the leaders predict that the Houston delegation will be uninstructed, but they also contend that the rank and file of the State organization finds Al Smith acceptable and that Virginia Democracy can be expected to rally enthusiastically to his support if he is nominated.

Not to be outdone by the boom for Col. Henry Anderson at Kansas City, a wing of the Democratic organization in the Southwest is speculating on ways and means to bring Gov. Byrd into the picture as a candidate for Vice President, possibly as a running mate for Smith. This will either gain momentum or die for lack of stimulation at the State convention.

On the evening of June 20 a meeting of the State executive committee will be held at a local hotel, and another meeting will be held shortly after the convention for the selection of State officers. Leaders here believe Chairman Hooker will be the unanimous choice for reelection.

Gov. Byrd, Senators Swanson and Glass, several former governors and all of the State's representatives are expected to attend the convention.

Former State Senator J. Holman Willis has been indorsed by the local Democratic organization as a delegate to Houston. Mr. Willis and the forces that sponsored his candidacy for delegate look with favor on the nomination of Smith.

Husband Awarded Divorce.

William T. Graves, jr., of 1332 Massachusetts avenue southeast, was awarded a final decree for absolute divorce yesterday by Justice Hitz in Equity Court against Mrs. Gertrude B. Graves, whom he married May 20, 1923. Through Attorney Lowry N. Coe the plaintiff charged that his wife deserted him July 25, 1925.

CONVENTION RADIO SERVICE IS BROKEN BY WIRE TROUBLE

MUSIC TAKES UP TIME AS FAULT IS REMEDIED

Today's Broadcasting

The broadcasting of the Kansas City convention will be resumed through station WRC at 1 o'clock this afternoon.. It will continue until the vice presidential candidate has been nominated and the convention's sessions are concluded.

After that time the regular program of the station will be resumed.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

Due to wire trouble between New York and Kansas City and the hot spell bringing old man static into the picture, the otherwise faultless broadcasting of the Republican convention slightly was marred yesterday. Local fans were quick to detect the static, which was most noticeable with the rise of the temperature during the morning hours, but which subsided with the cool breezes following what appeared to be a nearby storm and which for a time seemed to threaten Washington.

Signs of wire line trouble became apparent shortly before noon with a slight interruption every now and then. It was not until 1:43 o'clock in the afternoon, while Delegate Frank Murphy, of Minnesota, was speaking, that the first real break came, but almost before listeners realized what was happening the National Broadcasting Co. had cut in on an orchestra which was standing by in their New York studios for just such an emergency.

Though it seemed much longer, this break was of only two minutes' duration and the resonant voice of Delegate Murphy again was brought to listeners at 1:45 o'clock. The next break of the afternoon came at 2:06 o'clock while Gov. McMullen of Nebraska was speaking. Again the New York standby orchestra was johnny-on-the-spot and entertained the listeners until about 2:16 o'clock, when contact once more was established with Kansas City.

Hoover Gets Opportunity to Speak.

Each time there was a break or the volume faded for any period of time Station WRC was deluged with telephone calls. Most of these, it was said, were from women asking what was the matter with the service. An amusing incident was when one woman demanded an explanation from Ralph Edmunds, manager of WRC.

"Why was it when everything was set for Secretary Hoover that you gave first class service?" she inquired indignantly, "but just as soon as young Senator Bob LaFollette and others began opposing Mr. Hoover your service began to fail and listeners were prevented from hearing what they said."

Facilities were offered to Secretary of Commerce Hoover to speak over the radio from his home here in Washington to the delegates at the convention at Kansas City, but he declined with thanks. The services of WRC were put at the Secretary's disposal if he cared to avail himself of them.

As compared to previous sessions, yesterday and last night was a veritable field day for radio listeners with plenty of action all along the line. It was the first evidence fans had that there really was any life in the Kansas City assemblage.

Steam Roller Operation.

The magnificent operation of the steam roller by Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, made a hit with listeners from the start. At one time when the senator, putting through one of his motions, declared "The chair hears no objection and it is so ordered," the "nayes" came pounding into the ears of Washingtonians a thousand miles away like a thunderstorm.

This appeared even to get a laugh from Announcer Wentworth at Kansas City, who remarked that the opposition "had been delightfully overruled." A moment later Senator Moses, again rapping for order, was heard to shout, "If any of the delegates are restless they are privileged to retire," following which came immediate silence. Throughout, the senator was the life of the party and the speed with which he put through a motion never seemed to lose its fascination as an entertainment feature.

Although the speech of Senator Borah, of Idaho, was repeatedly lauded by speakers following as a peerless effort, which no doubt it was, it wasn't any way near as impressive over the air as the address of young Senator La Follette, who, from a radio standpoint, seemed to have everything, and, as Frederic William Wile put it, "almost stole the show."

Wile's Oratorical Effort.

Incidentally, Wile himself at the conclusion of the afternoon's broadcast delivered a summary of the meeting which as an oratorical effort, to say nothing of its conciseness, was as good if not better than anything else heard during the day.

Likewise, the other newspaper broadcasters who spoke at that time, Robert Armstrong, Washington correspondent of the Los Angeles Times, and Col. "Mike" Hennesy, of the Boston Globe, under the guidance of Impresario David Lawrence, acquitted themselves very creditably in the big league company in which they were speaking.

A radio disappointment of the day was the much advertised speech of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and noted as one of the country's great orators. Of only about seven minutes' duration, it seemed, over the air at least, to fall flat.

Of special interest to listeners was the radio plank in the Republican platform as read over the air by Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the resolutions committee, which was as follows:

"We stand for the administration of the radio facilities of the United States under wise and expert Government supervision, which will—

"(1) Secure to every home in the Nation, whether city or country, the great educational and inspirational values of broadcast programs, adequate in number and varied in character, and

"(2) Assign the radio communication channels, regional, continental and transoceanic, in the best interest of the American business man, the American farmer and the American public generally."

This is the first time radio has ever been mentioned in the platform of either of the great political parties.

was read from the platform by the speaker who was to have placed the former Illinois governor and farm leader in nomination.

Later, one or two flings were taken by other speakers at the course chosen by Mr. Lowden. The big former representative in Congress, J. N. Tincher, of Kansas, in nominating Curtis, told the delegates his candidate was "no quitter" and got a cheer; but in the main the sudden and tragic conclusion of Lowden's second try at the Presidency was accorded only passing notice on the convention floor.

Lowden Leaves for Home.

Mr. Lowden left here for his home in Oregon, Ill., tonight without making any statement on the nomination of Hoover and without sending the Cabinet member his congratulations. At his headquarters it was said that he undoubtedly would have nothing further to say than that contained in his statement to the convention by which he declined to have his name presented.

While they were very much at sea about the Vice Presidency at the end of tonight's session, the convention managers expect that situation to solve itself very quickly and the convention to be finally adjourned by early afternoon tomorrow.

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).

At 6:57 p. m., central standard time, the flood lights were turned on the vast interior of the building and Chairman Moses rapped thrice with his gavel, telling the delegates to take their seats. They were choking the aisles, shaking hands, back slapping and apparently enjoying themselves immensely.

The chairman did not seem to have much immediate success in getting order, because even the band continued to play.

"Will the delegates please find their seats," shouted Moses again and then again, but there seemed to be no lessening of the jams in the runways. Most of the women delegates appeared in evening gowns, and quite a few of the men wore dinner coats, but the prevailing mode for the masculine attendance was light summer attire.

While Moses pounded, noise making devices could be heard in the galleries, presaging a noisy tribute to the nominee from that section of the auditorium.

Seconding Speeches Limited.

Finally at 7:07 p. m. the chairman obtained quiet, and called the convention to order with a minor correction in the roll call on the platform this afternoon.

Then Moses announced that the next order of business was the nominating speeches for President. He ruled that second speeches should be held to 5 minutes.

Alabama yielded to California on the roll call for nominating speeches, and McNab took the stand to present the Secretary of Commerce. There was wild applause from the floor and galleries.

As McNab took the stand Mayor Rolph held high the California State flag. The Hoover orator, a tall man, wearing a dark business suit, started the crowd into another wild outburst in his first sentence by naming Hoover, contrary to the rule of nominators who usually hold back the name of their man until the last.

Cowbells and Tin Pans Used.

The States lined up for Lowden sat tight in their seats while a bedlam of noise swept back and forth across the hall, with flags waving high above the heads of the overjoyed Hoover enthusiasts. Cowbells, rattlers, tambourines and tin pans were brought into play. New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Kentucky, Louisiana, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, New York and other Hoover State standards were tossed about as the outbreak continued, despite the efforts of Chairman Moses to maintain order.

Flashlights for photographers added to the confusion which was still going strong after five minutes. The band did not help matters much by striking up "California, Here I Come," a familiar tune at the last Democratic national convention, when McAdoo was that State's favorite son.

Young Theodore Roosevelt was a conspicuous figure in the New York section, holding aloft a cowbell looking contrivance and shaking it with all the strength at his command. A group of youngsters paraded about with various ways of adding to the difficulties of Chairman Moses who, however, maintained his calm, and even allowed a smile to overspread his face. He is a Hoover man.

Lowden Men Refuse to Join.

During the confusion several members of the New York delegation shrugged their shoulders at fire regulations and brought out lighted cigarettes. Pages were sent out for additional noise-making contrivances and efforts were made to have Lowden men join in the celebration, but to no avail. Through it all, McNab, who had started the uproar, wore a broad smile as he leaned against the speaker's table.

Finally, Texas started a parade around the hall, with Louisiana close in pursuit. The figure of an elephant was hoisted by a Utah delegate and joined in the parade as it grew. Chairman Moses again tried to gain order, but he was shouted down and a huge picture of Hoover was lifted to the speaker's table amid such a din that persons in the rear of the hall had no chance to hear Moses' vigorous pounding of the gavel.

Although there was no need to spur the Hoover crowd, some one picked up the flag on the rostrum and began waving it in front of the Hoover picture, and the band began to play again, utterly ignoring the efforts of Moses, who, however, did not seem overly displeased at the show that was going on before him.

Asks McNabb to Stop It.

However, he ordered the sergeant-at-arms to do something about it, but before that individual and his assistants could get started "The Stars and Stripes Forever" floated down from the music stand and the crowd picked it up.

Finally Moses asked McNabb, the instigator of the demonstration, to help him out, and the Californian tried, but he had started something he could not stop so easily. The Hoover picture was brought down to be placed on the auditorium floor in front of the rostrum, and this set up a new outbreak of yells. After nineteen minutes, however, it appeared that the enthusiastic delegates might be getting ready to sit down and listen to McNab's speech about their man.

During the melee "Joe" Torbert, Republican national committeeman from South Carolina, a Lowden booster and, incidentally, the only man in the convention who scorns a necktie, held onto his State standard for fear some Hooverite would steal it. He said he was determined to go down fighting.

Secretary Mellon entered in the midst of the confusion and had difficulty getting to his seat, while his fellow Pennsylvania delegates were filling the aisles in the Hoover parade.

Lasted Just 23 Minutes.

The demonstration lasted exactly 23 minutes, and even after that time there was just the semblance of order with shrill yells coming from the galleries and delegates still clogged the aisles.

As McNab resumed, an American flag was dropped behind the speaker's stand, the purpose being to obtain quiet, and it had that effect. McNab spoke in a rich voice which easily penetrated to all corners of the hall.

The call for Hoover, McNab said, was based on the need of the American people. Hoover's life, he said, was an epic; his career a living example of the heights of Americanism a man might reach by his own devotion.

A reference to President Coolidge brought a short cheer from the crowd, which was now busy plying small fans at a rapid pace, backward and forward, because the temperature within the building was rather warm. Many wilted collars could be noted about the perspiring necks of individuals who had just lately been charging about the hall, waving flags.

War Work Is Sketched.

McNab sketched Hoover's activities in getting food to the starving during the World War, declaring he had undertaken the greatest task in all history, and that the Commerce Secretary's success constituted a great romance.

"Always a Republican, was the way the speaker described Hoover at one point in speaking of his work in the Department of Commerce.

The Secretary's work in the Mississippi flood area, he said, had earned him the gratitude of millions of people. "He is no superman in private life," he said; "he loves his friends and he likes to laugh and play. He craves his fellow man's affection in return."

All this time McNab was getting closest attention.

"In the name of California and on behalf of our countrymen everywhere I nominate the man in whom the hopes and prayers of the people are met," he said in concluding.

"I give you the name of Herbert Hoover."

Another Joyous Celebration.

Instantaneously the Hoover delegates were again on their feet in another joyous celebration. Toy balloons were tossed about, the band struck up again; the flags fluttered above the heads of the delegates; the noise-making apparatus was brought into play and it looked like another demonstration.

Two men lifted the Hoover picture to the platform again, hiding the speaker's stand and a man with an accordion and two others with megaphones appeared in the well of the hall. The accordion was playing but persons 3 feet away could not hear it.

Texas again lifted her standard and started around the hall in another parade. A woman from Maryland grabbed her State standard and took the lead of the procession a moment later. It finally was disclosed that the accordion was playing a parody about Hoover to the jazz tune, "Who."

Mellon Escapes the Parade.

Somebody grabbed Secretary Mellon and led him a few feet in the parade, but he escaped after shaking hands with his captor and resumed his seat. The procession moved slowly because of the crowded aisle. The galleries were having a big time watching the show.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt joined the parade and marched around the hall with the jubilant Hooverites. The anti-Hoover delegates continued to sit tight and placed guards about their standards. A particularly husky man saw to it that none touched Indiana's marker. "Wisconsin," an anti-Hoover State, could be seen on one of the standards in the procession, but whether it was carried by a Wisconsin man could not be determined.

The figure of the elephant carried by the Utah man bore the name of "Princess Utah." A placard said it came from the banner mining State of the United States.

"Hail, Hail," They Sing.

After ten minutes of the second demonstration the delegates began singing, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." A quartet in another part of the hall sang, "Hoover, That Means Happiness." While the accordion, again getting into the racket, played the parody.

Sweat poured down the faces of many of the marchers, but it was apparent that it would take more than a slight physical discomfort to stop them. With the aisles still jammed, Chairman Moses gave a couple of raps with the gavel, only to have the accordion and the megaphone men turn around and give him a serenade, which did not seem to displease him. With the serenade over, he tried again for order, but was met with another stanza from the trio of Hoover boosters.

North Carolina, with a split delegation, was unable to get into the first Hoover demonstration, but Bess Cannon, who is to be national committeewoman for that State, got hold of the standard during the second parade and joined it with the marchers.

After 21 minutes Chairman Moses ordered the roll call of States continued for nominations, but this did not faze the accordion quartette, who were giving another serenade some distance away.

Arizona Yields to Illinois.

However, a minute later Arizona's name was called, and she yielded to Illinois, which sent Mr. Glenn to the stand to speak for Frank O. Lowden. The Hoover opposition cheered only for a second or two, and Glenn got immediate attention. Glenn told the delegates that Gov. Lowden had sent them a message, that he had stated he did not want the nomination unless the Republican party were prepared to meet fully and fairly the agricultural problem.

"I have insisted upon no particular remedy," the governor's message said, "but have stated at all times that if there were a better method than the equalization fee I would accept it. I feel, however, that it is the duty of the Republican party to find some way by which agriculture could be rescued from the ruin which threatens it. This, in my judgment, the convention by its platform just adopted, has failed to do. I therefore authorize the withdrawal of my name from before the convention. Though I cease to be a candidate, my interest in the cause is in no way abated."

The message was signed, and the signature was read by Glenn in a firm voice, "Frank O. Lowden."

Moderate Cheer Given.

When Glenn had concluded he was given a moderate cheer, and Moses ordered the roll call continued, saying that he presumed there would be other nominations placed before the convention.

Indiana was reached, and Wood, a veteran member of the House, came to the stand to speak for Watson.

"We have not withdrawn our candidate," he said in his opening remarks. "He is entitled to the respect of every one in this convention. He has ever been a Republican. He has never wavered in his loyalty and fealty to his party."

Wood got a big cheer when he said that whoever was nominated for President would be elected, especially from the Hoover side of the house, where the perspiring delegates were ready to cheer anything that came along.

While Wood talked of the career of Watson, there was a buzzing around the hall as delegates talked of the withdrawal of Lowden in such dramatic fashion. There had been reports

MARYLAND'S DELEGATION UNMOVED BY FARM PLEA

TOWERS IS DINNER HOST

Kansas City, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—A jovial group of nineteen Marylanders today listened to the middle West farm bloc oratory in the Republican national convention as the stand of the platform committee on farm relief was challenged, then voted solidly with the administration and the committee.

There appeared little sympathy for the McNary-Haugen equalization fee among the delegation and Maryland took no part in the demonstrations on either side. After sitting in the convention hall until 3 o'clock without recess for lunch, the delegation moved quickly from the hall when Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's motion to strike out of the platform the section supporting the eighteenth amendment had failen.

The Old Liners hurried through a busy afternoon with a dinner by Albert G. Towers before the night session, when they expected to help in the nomination of Herbert Hoover.

There was little discussion of the Vice President among the delegation which was apparently to decide the big issue first. The Maryland section was filled today with several visitors. None appeared more buoyant than Representative Zihlman, who witnessed the adoption of the platform for which lost many hours of sleep. Mrs. Clara C. Holmes, of Montgomery County, the only woman member of the delegation, found several others of her sex in the section. There was much reading of newspapers during the farm relief debate but the air of expectancy returned with the night session.

MODELS FORM UNION; DEMAND HIGHER PAY

Fashion Mannikins Are Also Included in Chicago Labor Body.

Chicago, June 14 (A.P.).—A handful of artists' models and mannikins, coming to the conclusion that "it's a shame the way the employers treat the girls," decided last night to organize the "Models and Mannikins Union, A. F. L." More money and longer rest periods were two grievances cited by Miss Rose Safford, who was chosen secretary.

Miss Safford catalogued the models' complaints.

"We get only $1 an hour," she said, "and we sometimes have to pose for two hours at a time without a chance to rest." Posing over such a long stretch as "Winged Mercury" or some such tensely postured Latin deity, it was pointed out, proves extremely wearysome.

There are 6,000 eligibles for the union in Chicago, Miss Safford said, counting mannikins in fashion shops. Three dollars an hour and more rest periods will be demanded, she told the 30 charter members.

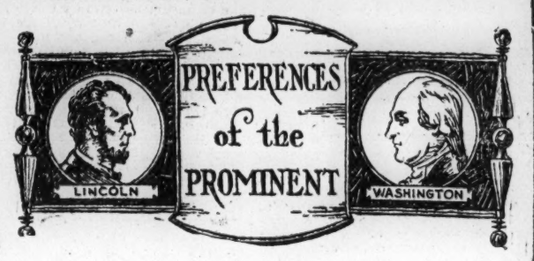

Woman Poison Victim in Hospital.

Mrs. Marie McMahon, 27 years old, 449 Fifteenth street northeast, swallowed a small quantity of poison in her home last night, according to police. She was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated by Dr. J. Lawrence Murphy. He reported that her condition is undetermined.

TEXT OF REPUBLICAN PLATFORM AS ADOPTED AT CONVENTION

The Republican party in national convention assembled presents to the people of the nation this platform of its principles, based on a record of its accomplishments, and asks and awaits a new vote of confidence. We reaffirm our devotion to the constitution of the United States and the principles and institution of the American system of representative government.

THE NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION.

We indorse without qualification the record of the Coolidge administration.

The record of the Republican party is a record of advancment of the nation. Nominees of Republican national conventions have for 52 of the 72 years since the creation of our party been the chief executives of the United States. Under Republican inspiration and largely under Republican executive direction the continent has been bound with steel rails, the oceans and great rivers have been joined by canals, waterways have been deepened and widened for ocean commerce, and with all a high American standard of wage and living has been established.

By unwavering adherence to sound principles, through the wisdom of Republican policies, and the capacity of Republican administrations, the foundations have been laid and the greatness and prosperity of the country firmly established.

Never has the soundness of Republican policies been more amply demonstrated and the Republican genius for administration been better exemplified than during the last five years under the leadership of President Coolidge.

Guarantee of Prosperity.

No better guarantee of prosperity and contentment among all our people at home, no more reliable warranty of protection and promotion of American interests abroad can be given than the pledge to maintain and continue the Coolidge policies. This promise we give and will faithfully perform.

Under this administration the country has been lifted from the depths of a great depression to a level of prosperity. Economy has been raised to the dignity of a principle of government. A standard of character in public service has been established under the chief executive, which has given to the people of the country a feeling of stability and confidence so all have felt encouraged to proceed on new undertakings in trade and commerce. A foreign policy based on the traditional American position and carried on with vision and steadfastness has extended American influence throughout the world and everywhere promoted and protected American interests.

The mighty contribution to general well being which can be made by a government controlled by men of character and courage, whose abilities are equal to their responsibilities, is self-evident, and should not blind us to the consequences which its loss would entail. Under this administration a high level of wages and living has been established and maintained. The door of opportunity has been opened wide to all.

It has given to our people greater comfort and leisure, and the mutual profit has been evident in the increasingly harmonious relations between employers and employes, and the steady rise by promotion of the men in the shops to places at the council tables of the industries.

Decrease in Taxation.

It has also been made evident by the increasing enrollments of our youth in the technical schools and colleges, the increase in savings and life insurance accounts, and by our ability, as a people, to lend the hand of succor not only to those overcome by disasters in our own country but in foreign lands. With all there has been a steady decrease in the federal taxation, releasing to the people the greatest possible portion of the results of their labor from government exactions.

For the Republican party we are justified in claiming a major share of the credit for the position which the United States occupies today as the most favored nation on the globe, but it is well to remember that the confidence and prosperity which we enjoy can be shattered, if not destroyed, if this belief in the honesty and sincerity of our Government is in any way affected. A continuation of this great public peace of mind now existing, which makes for our material well being, is only possible by holding fast to the plans and principles which have marked Republican control.

The record of the present administration is a guarantee of what may be expected of the next. Our words have been made deeds. We offer not promises but accomplishments.

PUBLIC ECONOMY.

The citizen and taxpayer has a natural right to be protected from unnecessary and wasteful expenditures. This is a rich but also a growing Nation, with constantly increasing legitimate demands for public funds. If we are able to spend wisely and meet these requirements, it is first necessary that we save wisely. Spending extravagantly not only deprives men, through taxation, of the fruits of their labor, but oftentimes means the postponement of vitally important public works. We commend President Coolidge for his establishment of this fundamental principle of sound administration and pledge ourselves to live up to the high standard he has set.

FINANCE AND TAXATION.

The record of the United States Treasury under Secretary Mellon stands unrivaled and unsurpassed. The finances of the Nation have been managed with sound judgment. The financial policies have yielded immediate and substantial results.

In 1921 the credit of our Government was at low ebb. We were burdened with a huge public debt, a load of war taxes, which in variety and weight exceeded anything in our national life, while vast unfunded intergovernmental debts disorganized the economic life of the debtor nations and seriously affected our own by reason of the serious obstacles which they presented to commercial intercourse. This critical situation was evidenced by a serious disturbance in our own life which made for unemployment.

Today all these major financial problems have been solved.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

In seven years the public debt has been reduced by $6,411,000,000. From March, 1921, to September, 1928, over 11,000,000,000 of securities, bearing high rates of interest, will have been retired or refunded into securities bearing a low rate of interest, while Liberty bonds, which were selling below par, now command a premium. These operations have resulted in an annual saving in interest charges of not less than $275,000,000, without which the most recent tax reduction measure would not have been made possible. The Republican party will continue to reduce our national debt as rapidly as possible and in accordance with the provision of existing laws and the present program.

TAX REDUCTION.

Wise administrative management under Republican control and direction has made possible a reduction of over $1,800,000,000 a year in the tax bill of the American people. Four separate tax reduction measures have been enacted, and millions of those least able to pay have been taken from the tax rolls.

Excessive and uneconomic rates have been radically modified, releasing for industrial and pay roll expansion and development great sums of money which formerly were paid in taxes to the Federal Government.

Practically all the war taxes have been eliminated and our tax system has been definitely restored to a peacetime basis.

We pledge our party to a continuation of these sound policies and to such further reduction of the tax burden as the condition of the Treasury may from time to time permit.

TARIFF.

We reaffirm our belief in the protective tariff as a fundamental and essential principle of the economic life of this nation. While certain provisions of the present law require revision in the light of changes in the world competitive situation since its enactment, the record of the United States since 1922 clearly shows that the fundamental protective tariff principle of the law has been fully justified. It has stimulated the development of our natural resources, provided fuller employment at higher wages through the promotion of industrial activity, assured thereby the continuation of the farmer's major market, and further raised the standards of living and general comfort and well-being of our people. The great expansion in the wealth of our nation during the past 50 years, and particularly in the past decade, could not have been accomplished without a protective tariff system designed to promote the vital interests of all classes.

Nor have these manifest benefits been restricted to any particular section of the country. They are enjoyed throughout the land either directly or indirectly. Their stimulus has been felt in industries, farming sections, trade circles and communities of every quarter. However, we realize that there are certain industries which can not now successfully compete with foreign producers because of lower foreign wages and lower cost of living abroad, and we pledge the next Republican Congress to an examination and where necessary a revision of these schedules to the end that American labor and industries may again command the home market, may maintain its standard of living, and may count upon steady employment in its accustomed field.

Essential to Prosperity.

Adherence to that policy is essential for the continued prosperity of the country, under it the standard of living of the American people has been raised to the highest levels ever known. Its example has been eagerly followed by the rest of the world whose experts have repeatedly reported with approval the relationship of this policy to our prosperity, with the resultant emulation of that example by other nations.

Protective tariff is as vital to American agriculture as it is to American manufacturing. The Republican party believes that the home market, built up under the protective policy, belongs to the American farmer, and it pledges its support of legislation which will give this market to him to the full extent of his ability to supply it. Agriculture derives large benefits not only directly from the protective duties levied on competitive farm products of foreign origin, but also, indirectly, from the increase in the purchasing power of American workmen employed in industries similarly protected. These benefits extend also to persons engaged in trade, transportation, and other activities.

The tariff act of 1922 has justified itself in the expansion of our foreign trade during the past five years. our domestic exports have increased from 3.8 billions of dollars in 1922 to 4.8 billions in 1927. During the same period imports have increased from 3.1 billions to 4.4 billions. Contrary to the prophecies of its critics, the present tariff law has not hampered the natural growth in the exportation of the products of American agriculture industry, nor has it restricted the importation of foreign commodities which this country can utilize without jeopardizing the economic structure.

The United States is the largest customer in the world today, if we were not prosperous and able to buy, the rest of the world also would suffer. It is inconceivable that American labor will ever consent to the abolition of protection which would bring the American standard of living down to the level of that in Europe, or that the American farmer could survive if the enormous consuming power of the people in this country was curtailed and its market at home, if not destroyed, at least seriously impaired.

FOREIGN DEBTS.

In accordance with our settled policy and platform pledges, debt settlement agreements have been negotiated with all of our foreign debtors with the exception of Armenia and Russia. That with France remains as yet unratified. Those with Greece and Austria are before the Congress for necessary authority. If the French debt settlement be included, the total amount funded is $11,522,354,000. We have steadfastly opposed and will continue to oppose cancellation of foreign debts.

We have no desire to be oppressive or grasping, but we hold that obligations justly incurred should be honorably discharged. We know of no authority which would permit public officials, acting as trustees, to shift the burden of the war from the shoulders of foreign taxpayers to those of our own people. We believe that the settlements agreed to are fair to both the debtor nation and to the American taxpayer. Our debt commission took into full consideration the economic condition and resources of the debtor nations, and were ever mindful that they must be permitted to preserve and improve their economic position, to bring their budgets into balance, to place their currencies and finances on a sound basis, and to improve the standard of living of their people. Giving full weight to these considerations, we know of no fairer test than ability to pay, justly estimated.

The people can rely on the Republican party to adhere to a foreign debt policy now definitely established and clearly understood both at home and abroad.

SETTLEMENT OF WAR CLAIMS.

A satisfactory solution has been found for the question of war claims. Under the act, approved by the President on March 10, 1928, a provision was made for the settlement of war claims of the United States and its citizens against the German, Austrian and Hungarian governments, and of the claims of the nationals of these governments against the United States, and for the return to its owners of the property seized by the alien property custodian during the war, in accordance with our traditional policy for respect of private property.

FOREIGN POLICIES.

We approve the foreign policies of the administration of President Coolidge. We believe they express the will of the American people in working actively to build up cordial international understanding that will make world peace a permanent reality. We endorse the proposal of the Secretary of State for a multilateral treaty proposed to the principal powers of the world and open to the signatures of all nations, to renounce war as an instrument of national policy and declaring in favor of pacific settlement of international disputes, the first step in outlawing war. The idea has stirred the conscience of mankind and gained widespread approval, both of governments and of the people, and the conclusion of the treaty will be acclaimed as the greatest single step in history toward the conservation of peace.

In the same endeavor to substitute for war the peaceful settlement of international disputes the administration has concluded arbitration treaties in a form more definite and more inclusive than ever before and plans to negotiate similar treaties with all countries willing in this manner to define their policy peacefully to settle justiciable disputes. In connection with those, we endorse the resolution of the sixth Pan-American conference, held at Havana, Cuba, in 1928, which called a conference on arbitration and conciliation to meet in Washington during the year and express our earnest hope that such conference will greatly further the principles of international arbitration. We shall continue to demand the same respect and protection for the persons and property of American citizens in foreign countries that we cheerfully accord in this country to the persons and property of aliens.

Commercial Treaties.

The commercial treaties which we have negotiated and those still in the process of negotiation are based on strict justice among nations, equal opportunity for trade and commerce on the most-favored-nation principle and are simplified so as to eliminate the danger of misunderstandings. The object and the aim of the United States is to further the cause of peace, of strict justice between nations with due regard for the rights of others in all international dealings. Out of justice grows peace. Justice and consideration have been and will continue to be the inspiration of our nation.

The record of the administration toward Mexico has been consistently friendly and with equal consistency have we upheld American rights. This firm, and at the same time friendly policy, has brought recognition of the inviolability of legally acquired rights. This condition has been reached without threat or without bluster, through a calm support of the recognized principles of international law with due regard to the rights of a sister sovereign state. The Republican party will continue to support American rights in Mexico, as elsewhere in the world, and at the same time to promote and strengthen friendship and confidence.

Firm Friendship With Canada.

There has always been, as there always will be, a firm friendship with Canada. American and Canadian interests are in a large measure identical. Our relationship is one of fine mutual understanding and the recent exchange of diplomatic officers between the two countries is worthy of commendation.

The United States has an especial interest in the advancement and progress of all the Latin-American countries. The policy of the Republican party will always be a policy of thorough friendship and cooperation. In the case of Nicaragua, we are engaged in cooperation with the government of that country upon the task of assisting to restore and maintain peace, order and stability, and in no way to infringe upon her sovereign rights. The marines, now in Nicaragua, are there to protect American lives and property and to aid in carrying out an agreement whereby we have undertaken to do what we can to restore and maintain order and to insure a fair and free election. Our policy absolutely repudiates any idea of conquest or exploitation, and is actuated solely by an earnest and sincere desire to assist a friendly and neighboring state which has appealed for aid in a great emergency. It is the same policy the United States has pursued in other cases in Central America.

Sympathy for China.

The administration has looked with keen sympathy on the tragic events in China. We have avoided interference in the internal affairs of that unhappy nation merely keeping sufficient naval and military forces in China to protect the lives of the Americans who are there on legitimate business and in still larger numbers for nobly humanitarian reasons. America has not been stampeded into making reprisals but, on the other hand, has consistently taken the position of leadership among the nations in a policy of wise moderation. We shall always be glad to be of assistance to China when our duty is clear.

The Republican party maintains the traditional American policy of non-interference in the political affairs of other nations. This Government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations and to assume any obligations under the covenant of the league.

On this we stand.

In accordance, however, with the long established American practice of giving aid and assistance to other peoples, we have most usefully assisted by cooperation in the humanitarian and technical work undertaken by the league, without involving ourselves in European politics by accepting membership.

Developing Foreign Trade.

The Republican party has always given and will continue to give its support to the development of American foreign trade, which makes for domestic prosperity. During this administration extraordinary strides have been made in opening up new markets for American produce and manufacture. Through these foreign contacts a mutually better international understanding has been reached which aids in the maintenance of world peace.

The Republican party promises a firm and consistent support of American persons and legitimate American interests in all parts of the world. This support will never contravene the rights of other nations. It will always have in mind and support in every way the progressive development of international law, since it is through the operation of just laws, as well as through the growth of friendly understanding. that world peace will be permanent. To that end the Republican party pledges itself to aid and assist in the perfection of principles of international law and the settlement of international disputes.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The merit system in Government service originated with and has been developed by the Republican party. The great majority of our public service employes are now secured through and maintained in the Government service rules. Steps have already been taken by the Republican Congress to make the service more attractive as to wages and retirement privileges, and we commend what has been done as a step in the right direction.

AGRICULTURE.

The agricultural problem is national in scope and as such is recognized by the Republican party, which pledges its strength and energy to the solution of the same. Realizing that many farmers are facing problems more difficult than those which are the portion of many other basic industries, the party is anxious to aid in every way possible. Many of our farmers are still going through readjustments, a relic of the years directly following the Great War. All the farmers are being called on to meet new and perplexing conditions created by foreign competition, the complexities of domestic marketing, labor problems and a steady increase in local and State taxes.

The general depression in a great basic industry inevitably reacts upon the condition in the country as a whole and can not be ignored. It is a matter of satisfaction that the desire to help in the correction of agricultural wrongs and conditions is not confined to any one section of our country or any particular group.

The Republican party and the Republican administration, particularly during the last five years, have settled many of the most distressing problems as they have arisen, and the achievements in aid of agriculture are properly a part of this record. The Republican Congresses have been most responsive in the matter of agricultural appropriations not only to meet crop emergencies but for the extension and development of the activities of the Department of Agriculture.

Main Points of G. O. P. Platform

Protection Carried Out.

The protection of the American farmer against foreign farm competition and foreign trade practices has been vigorously carried on by the Department of State. The right of the farmer to engage in collective buying and cooperative selling as provided for by the Capper-Volstead act of 1922 has been promulgated through the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Justice, which have given most valuable aid and assistance to the heads of the farm organizations. The Treasury Department and the proper committees of Congress have lightened the tax burden on farming communities, and through the Federal farm loan system there has been made available to the farmers of the Nation $1,850,000,000 for loaning purposes at a low rate of interest, and through the intermediate credit banks $655,000,000 of short term credits have been made available to the farmers. The Postoffice Department has systematically and generously extended the rural free delivery routes into even the most sparsely settled communities.

Ocean Shipping Provided.

When a shortage of transportation facilities threatened to deprive the farmers of their opportunity to reach waiting markets over seas, the President, appreciative and sensitive of the condition and the possible loss to the communities, ordered the reconditioning of Shipping Board vessels, thus relieving a great emergency.

Last, but not least, the Federal Tariff Commission has at all times shown a willingness under the provisions of the flexible tariff act to aid the farmers when foreign competition, made possible by low wage scales abroad, threatened to deprive our farmers of their domestic markets. Under this act the President has increased duties on wheat, flour, mill feed and dairy products. Numerous other farm products are now being investigated by the Tariff Commission.

We promise every assistance in the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more economical lines and, where diversification is needed, Government financial assistance during the period of transition.

Farm Board Promised.

The Republican party pledges itself to the enactment of legislation creating a Federal farm board clothed with the necessary powers to promote establishment of a farm marketing system of farmer owned and controlled stabilization corporations or associations to prevent and control surpluses through orderly distribution.

We favor adequate tariff protection to such of our agricultural products as are affected by foreign competition.

We favor, without putting the Government into business, the establishment of a Federal system of organization for cooperative and orderly marketing of farm products.

The Republican party pledges itself to the development and enactment of measures which will place the agricultural interests of America on a basis of economic equality with other industry to insure its prosperity and success.

MINING.

The money value of the mineral products of the country is second only to agriculture. We lead the countries of the world in the production of coal, iron, copper and silver. The Nation suffers as a whole from any disturbance in the securing of any one of these minerals, and particularly when the coal supply is affected. The mining industry has always been self-sustaining, but we believe that the Government should make every effort to aid the industry by protection by removing any restrictions which may be hampering its development, and by increased technical and economic research investigations which are necessary for its welfare and normal development. The party is anxious, hopeful, and willing to assist in any feasible plan for the stabilization of the coal mining industry, which will work with justice to the miners, consumers and producers.

HIGHWAYS.

Under the Federal aid road act, adopted by the Republican Congress in 1921, and supplemented by generous appropriations each year, road construction has made greater advancement than for many decades previous. Improved highway conditions is a gauge of our rural developments and our commercial activity. We pledge our support to continued appropriations for this work commensurate with our needs and resources.

We favor the construction of roads and trails in our national forests, necessary to their protection and utilization. In appropriations therefor the taxes which these lands would pay if taxable should be considered as a controlling factor.

LABOR.

The labor record of the Republican party stands unchallenged. For 52 of the 72 years of our national existence Republican administrations have prevailed. Today American labor enjoys the highest wage and the highest standard of living throughout the world. Through the saneness and soundness of Republican rule the American workman is paid a "real wage" which allows comfort for himself and his dependents and an opportunity and leisure for advancement. It is not surprising that the foreign workman, whose greatest ambition still is to achieve a "living wage," should look with longing toward America as the goal of his desires

The ability to pay such wages and maintain such a standard comes from the wisdom of the protective legislation which the Republican party has placed upon the national statute books, the tariff which bars cheap foreign-made goods from the American market and provides continuity of employment for our workmen and fair profits for the manufacturers. the restriction of immigration which not only prevents the glutting of our labor market, but allows to our newer immigrants a greater opportunity to secure a footing in their upward struggle.

Freedom in Wage Contracts.

The party favors freedom in wage contracts, the right of collective bargaining by free and responsible agents of their own choosing which develops and maintains that purposeful cooperation which gains its chief incentive through voluntary agreement.

We believe that injunctions in labor disputes have in some instances been abused and have given rise to a serious question for legislation.

RAILROADS.

Prompt and effective railroad service at the lowest rates which will provide for its maintenance and allow a reasonable return to the investor so they may be encouraged to advance new capital for acquired developments, has long been recognized by the Republican party as a necessity of national existence.

We believe that the present laws under which our railroads are regulated are soundly based on correct principles, the spirit of which must always be preserved. Because, however, of changes in the public demands, trade conditions and of the character of the competition, which even the greatest railroads are now being called upon to meet, we feel that in the light of this new experience possible modifications or amendments, the need of which is proved, should be considered.

The Republican party initiated and set in operation the Interstate Commerce Commission. This body has developed a system of railroad control and regulation which has given to the transportation public an opportunity not only to make suggestions for the improvement of railroad service, but to protest against discriminatory rates or schedules. We commend the work which that body is accomplishing under mandate of law in considering these matters and seeking to distribute equitably the burden of transportation between commodities based on their ability to bear the same.

MERCHANT MARINE.

The Republican party stands for the American-built, American-owned and American-operated merchant marine. The enactment of the White-Jones bill is in line with a policy which the party has long advocated.

Under this measure substantial aid and encouragement are offered for the building in American yards of new and modern ships which will carry the American flag.

The Republican party does not believe in Government ownership or operation and stands specifically for the sale of the present Government vessels to private owners when appropriate arrangements can be made. Pending such a sale, and because private owners are not ready as yet to operate on certain of the essential trade routes, the bill enacted allows the maintenance of these necessary lines under Government control till such transfer can be made.

MISSISSIPPI FLOOD RELIEF AND CONTROL.

The Mississippi Valley flood, in which 700,000 of our fellow citizens were placed in peril of life and which destroyed hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of property, was met with energetic action by the Republican administration.

During this disaster the President mobilized every public and private agency under the direction of Secretary Hoover, of the Department of Commerce, and Dwight Davis, the Secretary of War. Thanks to their joint efforts, a great loss of life was prevented and everything possible was done to rehabilitate the people in their homes and to relieve suffering and distress.

Congress promptly passed legislation authorizing the expenditure of $325,000,000 for the construction of flood control works, which, it is believed, will prevent the recurrence of such a disaster.

RADIO.

We stand for the administration of the radio facilities of the United States under wise and expert government supervision which will

(1) Secure to every home in the Nation, whether city or country, the great educational and inspirational values of broadcast programs, adequate in number and varied in character, and

(2) Assign the radio communication channels, regional, continental and transoceanic—in the best interest of the American business man, the American farmer and the American public generally.

WATERWAYS.

Cheaper transportation for bulk goods from the Mid-west agricultural sections to the sea is recognized by the Republican party as a vital factor for the relief of agriculture. To that end we favor the continued development in inland and in intracostal waterways as an essential part of our transportation system.

The Republican administration during the last four years initiated the systematic development of the Mississippi system of inland transportation lanes, and it proposes to carry on this modernization of transportation to speedy completion. Great improvements have been made during this administration in our harbors, and the party pledges itself to continue these activities for the modernization of our national equipment.

VETERANS.

Our country is honored whenever it bestows relief on those who have faithfully served its flag. The Republican party, appreciative of this solemn obligation and honor, has made its sentiments evident in Congress. Our expenditures for the benefit of all our veterans now aggregate $750,000,000 annually. Increased hospital facilities have been provided, payments in compensation have more than doubled, and in the matter of rehabilitations, pensions and insurance, generous provision has been made. The administration of laws dealing with the relief of veterans and their dependents has been a difficult task, but every effort has been made to carry service to the veteran and bring about not only a better and generous interpretation of the law, but a sympathetic consideration of the many problems of the veteran. Full and adequate relief for our disabled veterans is our aim, and we commend the action of Congress in further liberalizing the laws applicable to veterans' relief.

PUBLIC UTILITIES.

Republican Congresses and administrations have steadily strengthened the Interstate Commerce Commission. The protection of the public from exactions or burdens in rates for service by reason of monopoly control, and the protection of the smaller organizations from suppression in their own field, has been a fundamental idea in all regulatory enactments. While recognizing that at times Federal regulations might be more effective than States in controlling intrastate utilities, the party favors and has sustained State regulation, believing that such responsibility in the end will create a force of State public opinion which will be more effective in preventing discrimination and injustices.

CONSERVATION.

We believe in the practical application of the conservation principle by the wise development of our national resources. The measure of development is our national requirement, and avoidance of waste, so that future generations may share in this natural wealth. The Republican policy is to prevent monopolies in the control and utilization of natural resources. Under the general leasing law, enacted by a Republican Congress, the ownership of the mineral estate remains in the Government, but development occurs through private capital and energy. Important for the operation of this law is the classification and appraisement of public lands according to their mineral content and value. Over 500,000,000 acres of public land have been thus classified.

To prevent wasteful exploitation of our oil products, President Coolidge appointed an oil conservation board, which is now conducting an inquiry into all phases of petroleum production, in the effort to devise a national policy for the conservation and proper utilization of our oil resources.

The Republican party has been forehanded in assuring the development of water power in accordance with public interest. A policy of permanent public retention of the power sites on public land and power privileges in domestic and international navigable streams. and one-third of the potential water-power resources in the United States on public domain has been assured by the Federal water powers act, passed by a Republican Congress.

LAW ENFORCEMENT.

We reaffirm the American constitutional doctrine as announced by George Washington in his Farewell Address, to wit:

"The Constitution which at any time exists until changed by the explicit and authentic act by the whole people is sacredly obligatory upon all."

We also reaffirm the attitude of the American people toward the Federal Constitution as declared by Abraham Lincoln:

"We are, by both duty and inclination, bound to stick by that Constitution in all its letter and spirit from beginning to end. I am for the honest enforcement of the Constitution. Our safety, our liberty, depend upon preserving the Constitution of the United States, as our forefathers made it, inviolate."

The people, by the method provided by the Constitution, have written the eighteenth amendment into the Constitution. The Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the Constitution.

HONESTY IN GOVERNMENT.

We stand for honesty in government, for the appointment of officials whose integrity can not be questioned. We deplore the fact that any official has ever fallen from this high standard and that certain American citizens of both parties have so forgotten their duty as citizens as to traffic in national interests for private gain. We have prosecuted, and shall always prosecute, any official who subordinates his public duty to his personal interest.

The government today is made up of thousands of conscientious, earnest, self-sacrificing men and women, whose single thought is service to the Nation.

We pledge ourselves to maintain, and, if possible, to improve the quality of this great company of Federal employes.

CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES.

Economy, honesty and decency in the conduct of political campaigns are a necessity if representative government is to be preserved to the people and political parties are to hold the respect of the citizens at large.

The campaign of 1924 complied with all these requirements. It was a campaign, the expenses of which were carefully budgetted in advance and which. at the close, presented a surplus and not a deficit.

There will not be any relaxing of resolute endeavor to keep our elections clean, honest and free from taint of any kind. The improper use of money in governmental and political affairs is a great national evil. One of the most effective remedies for this abuse is publicity in all matters touching campaign contributions and expenditures. The Republican party, beginning not later than August 1, 1928, and every 30 days thereafter, the last publication being not later than five days before the election, will file with the committees of the House and Senate a complete account of all contributors, the names of the contributors, the amount expended and for what purposes, and will at all times hold its records and books touching such matters open for inspection.

The party further pledges that it will not create, or permit to be created, any deficit which shall exist at the close of the campaign.

RECLAMATION.

Federal reclamation of arid lands is a Republican policy, adopted under President Roosevelt, carried forward by succeeding Republican Presidents, and put upon a still higher plane of efficiency and production by President Coolidge. It has increased the wealth of the Nation and made the West more prosperous.

An intensive study of the methods and practices of reclamation has been going on for the past four years under the direction of the Department of the Interior in an endeavor to create broader human opportunities and their financial and economic success. The money value of the crops raised on reclamation projects is showing a steady and gratifying increase, as well as the number of farms and people who have settled on the lands.

The continuation of a surplus of agricultural products in the selling markets of the world has influenced the department to a revaluation of plans and projects. It has adopted a ten-year program for the completion of older projects and will hold other suggestions in abeyance until the surveys now under way as to the entire scope of the work are completed.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION.

Without governmental grants of subsidies and entirely by private initiative, the Nation has made extraordinary advances in the field of commercial aviation. Over 20,000 miles of air mail service privately operated are now being flown daily and broadening of this service is an almost weekly event. Because of our close relations with our sister republics on the south and our neighbor on the north, it is fitting our first efforts should be to establish an air communication with Latin-America and Canada.

The achievements of the aviation branches of the Army and Navy are all to the advantage of commercial aviation, and in the Mississippi flood disaster the work performed by civil and military aviators was of inestimable value.

The development of a system of aircraft registration, inspection and control is a credit to the Republican administration, which, quick to appreciate the importance of this new transportation development, created machinery for its safeguarding.

IMMIGRATION.

The Republican party believes that in the interest of both native and foreign-born wage earners, it is necessary to restrict immigration. Unrestricted immigration would result in widespread unemployment and in the breakdown of the American standard of living. Where, however, the law works undue hardship by depriving the immigrant of the comfort and society of those bound by close family ties, such modification should be adopted as will afford relief.

We commend Congress for correcting defects for humanitarian reasons and for providing effective system of examining prospective immigrants in their home countries.

NATURALIZATION.

The priceless heritage of American citizenship is our greatest gift to our friends of foreign birth. Only those who will be loyal to our institutions, who are here in conformity with our laws, and who are in sympathy with our national traditions, ideals and principles, should be naturalized.

NAVY.

We pledge ourselves to round out and maintain the Navy in all types of combatant ships to the full ratio provided for the United States by the Washington treaty for the limitation of naval armament and any amendment thereto.

HAWAII-ALASKA.

We favor a continuance for the territory of Hawaii of Federal assistance in harbor improvements, the appropriation of its share of Federal funds and the systematic extension of the settlement of public lands by the Hawaiian race.

We indorse the policy of the present administration with reference to Alaska and favor a continuance of the constructive development of the territory.

WOMEN AND PUBLIC SERVICE.

Four years ago at the Republican national convention in Cleveland women members of the national committee were welcomed into full association and responsibility in party management. During the four years which have passed they have carried with their men associates an equal share of all responsibilities and their contribution to the success of the 1924 campaign is well recognized.

The Republican Party, which from the first has sought to bring this development about accepts wholeheartedly equality on the part of women, and in the public service it can present a record of appointments of women in the legal, diplomatic, judicial, Treasury and other governmental departments. We earnestly urge on the women that they participate even more generally than now in party management and activity.

NATIONAL DEFENSE.

We believe that in time of war the Nation should draft for its defense not only its citizens, but also every resource which may contribute to success. The country demands that should the United States ever again be called upon to defend itself by arms, the President be empowered to draft such material resources and such services and essential commodities, whether utilized in actual warfare or private activity.

OUR INDIAN CITIZENS.

National citizenship was conferred upon all native-born Indians in the United States by the general Indian enfranchisement act of 1924. We favor the creation of a commission, to be appointed by the President, including one or more Indian citizens, to investigate and report to Congress upon the existing system of the administration of Indian affairs and to report any inconsistencies that may be found to exist between that system and the rights of the Indian citizens of the United States. We also favor the repeal of any law and the termination of any administrative practice which may be inconsistent with Indian citizenship, to the end that the Federal guardianship existing over the persons and properties of Indian tribal communities may not work a prejudice to the personal and property rights of Indian citizens of the United States. The treaty and property rights of the Indians of the United States must be guaranteed to them.

THE NEGRO.

We renew our recommendation that the Congress enact at the earliest possible date a Federal antilynching law, so that the full influence of the Federal Government may be wielded to exterminate this hideous crime.

HOME RULE.

We believe in the essential unity of the American people. Sectionalism in any form is destructive of national life. The Federal Government should zealously protect the national and international rights of its citizens. It should be equally zealous to respect and maintain the rights of the States and to uphold the vigor and balance of our dual system of government. The Republican party has always given its energies to supporting the Government in this direction when any question has arisen.

There are certain other well-defined Federal obligations, such as interstate commerce, the development of rivers and harbors and the guarding and conservation of national resources. The effort which, however, is being continually made to have the Federal Government move into the field of State activities has never had and never will have the support of the Republican party. In the majority of the cases State citizens and officers are most pressing in their desire to have the Federal Government take over these State functions. This is to be deplored, for it weakens the sense of initiative and creates a feeling of dependence which is unhealthy and unfortunate for the whole body politic.

Revitalize Basic Principles.

There is a real need in the country today to revitalize fundamental principles; there is a real need of restoring the individual and local sense of responsibility and self-reliance; there is a real need for the people once more to grasp the fundamental fact that under our system of government they are expected to solve many problems themselves through their municipal and State governments and to combat the tendency that is all too common to turn to the Federal Government as the easiest and least burdensome method of lightening their own responsibilities.

Farm Plank Offered by Minority

"No issue confronting the Nation is of more vital importance than that upon which depends the future of our agriculture. We recognize that there is and has been since the war a disparity between farm prices of the main cash crops of agriculture and the costs that enter into farm production. The Republican party pledges that the united efforts of the legislative and executive branches of Government, so far as they are controlled by the party, will be devoted to the immediate enactment of legislation aimed to restore and maintain the purchasing power of farm products, and the complete economic equality of agriculture.

"The Republican party had its birth in the union of the agricultural West and the industrial East. We affirm that the successful development and protection of agriculture as the Nation's basic industry has been one of the great accomplishments of the Republican party. Under the protective policies fostered by successive Republican administrations, agriculture and industry have advanced side by side. It is of fundamental concern that a proper balance be maintained between them, in the future, and we pledge the party to the enactment in future tariffs of agriculture schedules commensurate with tariffs on industrial products.

"We recognize that, owing to the limited human control that can be exercised over forces that govern volume of farm production, it is impossible for farmers by concerted action to adjust their production to demand as accurately as can be done in other productive lines. We also recognize that our national policies of the past have expanded the agricultural plan of the Nation as the foundation of national wealth and security. These factors are responsible for the existence of occasional or regular market surpluses in some of the most widely grown crops, and limit the effectiveness of the tariff in the equalizing the differences between the costs of production in this country with foreign competitive lands having lower living standards.

"The Republican party recognizes that this surplus problem of agriculture calls for national legislation to aid the farmers in its solution, since the number and wide distribution of the producers of many important crops renders concerted action in handling surpluses impossible. We do not favor legislation which attempts to correct this situation through direct or indirect Treasury subsidies. Be believe that any operations undertaken to assist farmers to meet this problem should be largely under the direction of farmers' cooperative associations, with the use of only such Federal powers as are necessary to distribute the costs and losses that may be incurred in dealing with agricultural surpluses, over each marketed unit of the crop whose producers are to be benefited by such assistance. We indorse the aim and principle of thus distributing the costs of concerted action, over the commodity benefited, and pledge the efforts of the party to the perfection and support of a measure based on this principle which can receive general support and become a law.

"The Republican Congresses have been most responsive in the matter of agricultural appropriations, not only to meet crop emergencies, but for the extension and development of the activities of the Department of Agriculture.

"The protection of the American farmer against foreign farm competition and foreign trade practices has been vigorously carried on by the Department of State. The right of the farmers to engage in collective buying and cooperative selling as provided for by the Capper-Volstead act of 1922 has been promulgated through the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Justice, which have given most valuable aid and assistance to the heads of the farm organizations.

"The Treasury Department and the proper committees of Congress have lightened the tax burden of farming communities and through the Federal Farm Loan system it has made available to the farmers of the Nation $1,850,000,000 for loaning purposes at a low rate of interest, and through the intermediate credit banks $655,000,000 of short term credits have been made available to the farmers. The Postoffice Department has systematically and generously extended the rural free delivery routes into even the most sparsely settled communities.

"When a shortage of transportation facilities threatened to deprive the farmers of their opportunity to reach waiting markets overseas, the President, appreciative and sensitive of the condition and the possible loss to the communities, ordered the reconditioning of Shipping Board vessels, thus relieving a great emergency.

"Last, but not least, the Federal Tariff Commission has at all times shown a willingness under the provisions of the flexible tariff act to aid the farmers when foreign competition, made possible by low wage scales abroad, threatened to deprive our farmers of their domestic markets. Under this act the President has increased duties on wheat, flour, mill feed and dairy products. Numerous other farm products are now being investigated by the Tariff Commission.

"We promise every assistance in the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more economical lines and, where diversification is needed, Government financial assistance during the period of transition.

"We favor adequate tariff protection to such of our agricultural products as are affected by foreign competition.

"The Republican party pledges itself to the development and enactment of measures which will place the agricultural interests of America on a basis of economic equality with other industry to insure its prosperity and success."

VIRGINIANS ARE SOLIDLY IN ANDERSON'S SUPPORT

ANTISECTIONALISM IS AIM

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—R. H. Angell, of Roanoke, chairman of Virginia's delegation to the Republican national convention, will present Col. Henry W. Anderson's name before the convention as a vice presidential candidate.

Announcement that the veteran Roanoke party leader would make the nomination speech was made at State headquarters today after the delegates had witnessed the adoption of the platform and aided in rejecting farm relief and prohibition amendment. Col. Anderson, as a member of the committee that has worked for two days and a large part of two nights on the platform, found his stand upheld by the delegation vote.

Tonight was the big night from the viewpoint of the Virginians with nominations for President in order and Virginia occupying a reserved seat in the Hoover band wagon. Despite claims of other candidates Virginia supported Hoover from the first, binding themselves to the Commerce Secretary by a resolution unanimously adopted.

Mr. Angell today cried a vigorous "no" when Virginia's name was called on the roll in voting to override the platform committee on farm relief. Its vote could well have been spared as the majority piled up by the States nearer the front of the roll gave it a steamroller appearance. There was no sympathy with the motion rejecting the dry plank which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler offered, and cries of "yes" resounded from Virginia's section on the viva voce vote to table the motion.

Joseph P. Brady, who usually may be found at the Federal Building in Richmond as clerk of the district court, appeared today in an "ice-cream" suit well suited to the hot weather. Mr. Brady, Joseph E. Profitt, Mr. Angell, Col. Anderson and Graham Burhrman left the hall a few times during the session to stroll in the outer sections where cool breezes were to be found and cold drinks purchased.

Mr. Angell declared that Virginia was advocating the principle of a Southerner on the ticket and that Col. Anderson only allowed his name to be used in this capacity, making it plain to the delegation that he was not a personal candidate for anything. Mr. Angell pointed out that the delegation had pledged its support to both Anderson and Hoover in formally adopted resolutions and that other claims of Virginia support could not be other than untrue.

The semicarnival life in Kansas City's teeming streets had its effect on some members of the delegation who were hollow-eyed from loss of sleep. No one complained, however, realizing that the sight of the Shenandoah was only a few hours ahead.

"Excited? I'm neither young enough nor old enough for that," said Mrs. M. J. Caples, of Norfolk, when asked if being the only woman on the convention committee on permanent organization caused a quickening of the pulse. "However, other committees have a large feminine representation and that is a hopeful sign. The women are doing their part in the political game."

Graham M. Buhrman, of Gala, found an easy assignment as secretary of the Virginia delegation. Such harmony has prevailed among the delegates that the business could be recorded on a fairly small sheet of note paper.

paign, and about Secretary Mellon, who controls the powerful Pennsylvania delegation of 79 votes.

Among those prominently mentioned during the night were Senator Curtis, of Kansas; Vice President Dawes, Senator Deneen, of Illinois; Senator Fess, of Ohio; Senator Moses, of New Hampshire; Representative Tilson, Gov. Fuller, of Massachusetts; Senator Edge, of New Jersey; Representative Fort, of New Jersey; Hanford MacNider, and Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri.

Representative Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, a leader of the Veterans' bloc, announced that his men had been assured of more than 200 votes for Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, former Assistant Secretary of War.

Two new names were heard in the vice presidential discussion during the night—Representative Fort, of New Jersey, a Hoover leader, and Channing Cox, of Massachusetts. However, both States already are represented as having other candidates—Senator Edge, of New Jersey, and Gov. Fuller, of Massachusetts.

All of these names were up at one time or another at conferences during the afternoon and night attended by spokesmen of many factions, including Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, and James W. Wadsworth, of New York, who seemed to be making an earnest effort to solve the situation.

While Senator Curtis gave notice to his Kansas friends that he would not permit them to propose him as a vice presidential candidate there was persistent talk around the convention hall for him.

"Dry," Says Hoover Camp.

The Middle West again held favor among a considerable number as the best picking grounds for a candidate and it was emphasized that whoever the candidate he must be a "dry" in view of the emphatic plank in the party's platform.

Ed Clifford, of Illinois, who has been most active for Dawes, declared today he was joining in the move to await Hoover's views. He reiterated his assurance that Mr. Dawes would run if "drafted." South Dakota is expected to go for Dawes for Vice President, Wisconsin indicated its support for him, and unless another strong middle Westerner is put up, friends of Dawes believed he quickly would be renominated. But from the Hoover administration quarters there was some questioning as to the desire for Dawes. There were many in this group, including Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, of California, who appeared to favor Senator Deneen if available.

In the Eastern group, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, was leading a good fight for Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, the convention chairman, but he, like others, ran into the determination of leaders to say nothing until Mr. Hoover is given an opportunity to disclose his views.

John H. Day, Portland, who received the Oregon primary preference vote for Vice President, this afternoon released the delegation from his support.

Blaze in Hoover's Hotel Headquarters

Kansas City, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—Fire broke out on the roof of the Hotel Biltmore, where the Hoover headquarters are located, shortly after 8 o'clock tonight. Fire apparatus quickly checked the flames and it was reported that little damage was done. A throng of people gathered in the streets below and watched the smoke and flames.

HOOVER, AT HIS RESIDENCE, AWAITS CONVENTION BALLOTS

over the radio in an atmosphere strangely in contrast to that in the arena in Kansas City where the convention was gathered.

With Mrs. Hoover by his side, and a score of friends, the Commerce Secretary sat in the back drawing room of his home and heard over the radio every word spoken from the rostrum of the convention hall; heard the frantic cheers which greeted his name; and heard the praises lavished upon those who were hopelessly seeking to contest with him for the nomination.

The front room of the home was turned over to a corps of correspondents and photographers, who likewise listened to the radio broadcast, waiting for the time when the final ballot would unseal the lips of the cabinet secretary soon to become presidential nominee. For Mr. Hoover had refused all week either to speak or to pose until the convention should have ratified the choice which became inevitable on the day that it assembled.

The strangeness of the contrast between the convention scene in Kansas City and the quiet of the S street home came from the refreshments which the woman who may one day rule the White House served to the guests in the "back room" as well as to the correspondents in the front.

These consisted of lemonade and candy. As crises developed in the night's session the guests and correspondents took copious draughts of the citrus juice, or chewed vigorously on a candy dainty—strange actions indeed for a group which waited so anxiously for so momentous an event.

One of the ladies knitted on a yellow worsted garment throughout the evening, and guests and newspapermen chatted in subdued tones as they attentively followed the convention proceedings.

In the milling in and out of newspaper men, who were keeping their offices in touch with happenings at the S street home, a bat found its way into the house and threw the gathering into consternation for a few minutes—especially the ladies and representatives of the press in whose room the bat was quickly shooed. Ducking and hitting at the blind creature with their hats, the newspaper men assisted the servants in escorting the unwanted visitor to the front door, where the police officer on duty permitted it to go its way.

Laughter and applause greeted many statements in the nominating speeches, especially that placing Mr. Hoover in nomination. The gathering laughed heartily when Senator Goff's nominators declared, in reference to the West Virginian: "He does not speak with the voice of Jacob and extend the hand of Esau," and vigorously applauded when in nominating Senator Watson the speaker asserted that whoever was chosen by the convention would be the next President of the United States. Further applause greeted the announcement by Senator Curtis' nominator that as he wanted to make the best speech, he would make it short—and he did.

Since it became evident some days ago that Mr. Hoover must be nominated, the Secretary has kept himself not aloof, but apart from the newspaper men. Last night he relented, and when they called at his home all were invited to enter. They sat silently in the front parlor, drinking their lemonade and chewing their candy, while the wide-open doors between this and the rear room enabled them to study the reaction of the Secretary's family and his friends to the trend of affairs at the convention.

The Secretary and Mrs. Hoover sat almost directly in front of the loud speaker, while nearby were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr. Ranged about them were their personal friends and neighbors, invited in for the evening to wait through the hours for the announcement that would bring added luster to a name already great in their estimation and in that of thousands throughout the world.

Among the guests were Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Borah, whose senatorial husband was one of the dominating factors of yesterday's sessions of the convention; Dr. Adolph Mills, of the Federal Reserve Board; and Mrs. Mills; Mrs. Mark S. Sullivan, Edgar Rickard, long a personal and professional friend; John Beaver White, George Barr Baker, Col. William Donovan, Assistant Attorney General, and Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Ernest L. Lewis.

George Akerson, personal secretary to Mr. Hoover, took charge of affairs in the front room, seeing that the reporters could see and hear everything and keeping their lemonade glasses filled.

Through the day Secretary Hoover was completely engrossed with the proceedings at Kansas City, and made no pretense of doing any work. He spent the entire day at his office in the Department of Commerce listening to what happened at the convention over the radio, and in frequent touch with his managers and friends on the scene, through the leased telephone wire at his elbow.

His constant companion was Mr. Rickard, of New York, who was associated with the Republican nominee when he was doing Belgian relief work, and has been a devoted friend ever since. Rickard arrived in Washington yesterday morning, having left Kansas City as soon as he was certain that Mr. Hoover would be nominated, so that he might be by his side when the nomination was made.

Secretary Hoover had only two callers besides Rickard and the newspaper correspondents, who waited all day in an outer office for a few words of greeting. Secretary of State Frank Kellogg called at the office about noon to offer his congratulations on the assured outcome of the convention, and after a short talk with Secretary Hoover was followed by John Deever White, a Philadelphia lawyer, who also called to offer felicitattions.

Does Not Notice Heat.

In his anxiety to be in constant touch with the situation, the Secrteary refrained from leaving his office for luncheon, but instead had it served in the office. The day being sultry and humid, the Secretary's office was unusually hot, and although he was coolly dressed in a lightweight gray suit and white shoes, beads of perspiration stood, unnoticed by himself, upon his forehead. It was apparent that he was too much absorbed in what was going on at the convention to mind or notice the heat.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon, a room full of newspaper correspondents, who had waited all day to interview the man whom they knew would be the next Republican candidate for the highest office in the land, were rewarded through the efforts of Mr. Akerson, Mr. Hoover's personal aid, who prevailed upon his chief to come out of his office and say a few words to the representatives of the press.

"I am very happy to see you again," Mr. Hoover said, smiling broadly. "Of course, I will not make any statement yet."

"Certainly, Mr. Secretary," one of the correspondents managed to say. "Just so long as we have your permission to sit here and pester Mr. Akerson."

"You have my permission to pester George, all right," Secretary Hoover said, as he laughed and returned to the radio.

Often during the day Secretary Hoover talked with Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, who is chief of Mr. Hoover's field forces at Kansas City, over the telephone, but the nature of the conversations was, of course, not announced.

According to reports, Secretary Work is slated as the next chairman of the Republican national committee, to succeed William M. Butler, but it was said here yesterday that he probably could not accept that post and continue a member of the Cabinet, and political opinion seemed unanimous in believing that Secretary Work would prefer to remain in his present post.

Conference Is Called.

A conference of Republican leaders has been called to convene in Washington early next week, at which a tentative program for Herbert Hoover's election campaign and his own future course of action will be worked out.

How active a part he will take in the aggressive campaign that is to be waged is one of the questions to be decided at next week's conference here, but much will depend upon the convention's choice for Vice President. It is certain, however, that the radio will play a dominant role in a presidential election for the first time in this campaign.

May Speak in Farm States.

The general belief at the Department of Commerce yesterday was that Secretary Hoover probably would be called upon to appear in person and deliver speeches in a limited number of key sections. It was said he probably would speak in one or two farm States in the middle West, where the opposition to him is strongest, and maybe he will appear in several of the large cities of the East.

The remainder of his personal campaign, it was said, is likely to be a "front porch" campaign by radio. In a single speech, it was pointed out, he can reach millions of listeners without leaving his home in Palo Alto, Calif., or wherever his own campaign headquarters are set up. Mr. Hoover's running mate was regarded here as being the likely choice for any stumping tour the party leaders later may determine is necessary.

Curtis Supports Nominee; Silent on Second Place

Kansas City, June 14 (A.P.).—Hardly had the Republican convention nominated Herbert Hoover for the Presidency when Senator Curtis, of Kansas, declared that he was "for whoever was nominated" and that he would do his utmost for the party standard bearer in the forthcoming campaign.

As to whether he was now a candidate for the vice presidential post on the ticket, the Kansan said he "would not even talk to my grandmother about that." Questioned further, Curtis asserted forcibly that he would not discuss the Vice Presidency "with any one on earth."

The defeated candidate, who received a prolonged ovation when put into nomination by former Representative Tincher, of his State, expressed gratification for the loyalty of his friends who had supported his fight to become party standard bearer.

Watson Seeks Seclusion; Interview Is Refused

Kansas City, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, defeated candidate for the presidential nomination, could not be reached for a statement regarding his future course of action.

Senator Watson, a few minutes after nomination of Secretary Hoover, was at the home of a friend, where it was said that he already had retired.

"I don't think he would care to talk with you," it was said, and the receiver clicked when the reporter attempted to press the request.

Tax Lien of $18,889 Against Miss Swanson

Los Angeles, June 14 (A.P.).—Gloria Swanson, film star, was named in an income tax lien of $18,889.93 for 1923 on file today in United States District Court here. The lien was filed against Gloria Swanson Somborne, Miss Swanson's married name that year.

Mrs. Hoover Held Ideal As White House Mistress

Candidate's Wife Has Thorough Acquaintance With Social Etiquette—Esteemed as Woman of Breeding and Tact and Thoroughly Modern.

The limelight of social interest now turns on Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, as a possible First Lady of the Land. Washington, who has known her for a number of years is now looking at her through political eyeglasses.

If the wheel of fortune should stop at the Republican number next November, the long line of White House chatelaines will find a worthy successor in Mrs. Hoover, who is thoroughly acquainted with all the requirements of official etiquette, is a woman of tact and breeding and with the broad vision of the modern woman.

Interested in work among girls particularly as shown in her experience as a Girl Scout executive, a college woman, a geologist of note and lover of out of doors sports, Mrs. Hoover combines the finesse of the woman of the world with the dreams of the idealist and the social service worker.

Home Here Elaborate.

The Hoover menage on S street is one of the most elaborate of the Cabinet homes of this administration and everywhere in the spacious rooms can be seen the imprint of the mistress of the house, who is ever busy to see than a real "home" atmosphere is maintained there. Since coming to the Cabinet the Hoovers have been noted for their genial hospitality not of the strictly formal nature, but friendly form of welcoming friends from here, there and everywhere to their hospitable fireside.

Home cooking is a byword in the Hoover establishment for Mary the cook is an institution there and has even contributed some of the recipes for the now famous Congressional Cook Book.

The Hoover home has the added advantage of comfortable porches and beautiful grounds. The grounds go down to a wooded enclosure, which also is part of the estate, making a really exclusive sylvan street in the rear of the house. Not far from this wooded space is the public playground for the young children of Washington, and frequently Mrs. Hoover visits this play space and offers suggestions to the playground directors as to the recreational pursuits of the children.

The homelike aspect of the Hoover menage is enhanced by the broad lines of the entrance hall, which is often used by Mrs. Hoover to receive the delegation of Girl Scouts and of other women's organizations in which she is interested. The drawing room is long and furnished and decorated in very good taste, a touch of originality being given by the pastel-shaded taffeta curtains at the windows.

Expert at Embroidery.

Mrs. Hoover spends much of her time working at her desk in the sun parlor or embroidering or making some of the beautiful tapestry, at which she is an expert. While she has a secretary, many of her personal notes are written by hand, and she also has mastered the mysteries of the typewriter.

Secretary and Mrs. Hoover entertain at dinner very frequently and are lavish hosts. The piece de resistance on their dining table very often for both teas and dinners are California fruit and even other products of that State. This kind of a centerpiece seems to be preferred to flowers. When President Coolidge was a guest of the Hoovers at dinner this winter, they provided a dinner in another part of the house for the retinue of Secret Service escorts and chauffeurs.

Mrs. Hoover is a devoted mother as well, and while her two sons, Herbert Hoover, jr., and Allan Harry, were schoolboys much of her day was devoted to their interests. For this reason when they were in Washington during food administration days Washington did not see as much of Mrs. Hoover as it has during the Secretary's Cabinet years.

Eldest Son Has Family.

Herbert Hoover, jr., is married now and is an instructor in Harvard Business School and has two small children of his own, Peg Ann, aged the delight of her grandparents, and Herbert Hoover 3d, now 8 months old. When they visit the Hoover home on S street the entire house is theirs, and the Secretary and Mrs. Hoover can often be seen in the garden with the little ones. The second son, Allan Harry Hoover, is a student at Leland Stanford University, California, but left his classrooms a little earlier this year to be a page at the Republican national convention in Kansas City, where he was a witness of his father's nomination.

Several years ago Herbert Hoover, jr., was ill in a Baltimore hospital and his mother made the trip daily to see him, putting aside all social and other duties until he was well again. Then he was brought home after being discharged from the hospital and tenderly nursed by his wife and mother until he was entirely well again.

Mrs. Hoover once said laughingly that she had kept house "all over the world," a statement more or less borne out by the fact, as she has kept house in China, Australia, Mandalay, Paris, London, Belgium, San Francisco, Washington and a dozen other places besides. Her travels have made her a very cosmopolitan hostess and she speaks several languages fluently and knows not only American politics but international politics thoroughly.

It is nearly thirty years now since Lou Henry, the popular college girl of Monterey, Calif., became the bride in 1899 of Herbert Hoover, a fellow graduate of the Leland Stanford University, engaged in mining prospects in Australia.

It is said that their romance began in a college classroom over geological problems in which both were interested. Young Hoover had no fortune save his hands and his brains and Lou Henry was the daughter of a well-to-do banker, of Monterey, who had come there from Iowa, which also happens to be Herbert Hoover's native State. His father had been a Quaker blacksmith, hers was a professional man, but romance laughs at distinctions of this nature. Besides their romance had lasted since his freshman days and for the four years since his graduation, and a college affair which "takes" like that usually culminates in marriage.

Mrs. Hoover's father is still living in his eighty-third year, vigorous and hearty and no doubt feels very proud nowadays that he permitted his darling "Lou" to accept the offer of a lifetime partnership with the struggling mining engineer.

Three Times Circled World.

For the roaming existence of a mining engineer whose assignments took him all over the world, Mrs. Hoover had been admirably fitted by a girlhood crowded with horseback riding, swimming, camping and tramping for miles over the California hills. Three times the young couple circled the globe until Herbert Hoover 2d made his appearance on the scene. Still with baby sons on her hands she managed to accompany her husband wherever he went.

At the outbreak of the World War Mrs. Hoover was on the relief committees in London, and "Red House," as the Hoover home was known there, was the center of activities. Mrs. Hoover kept the record of the expenses paid out of the voluntary subscription fund and was scrupulous in accounting for every cent, as she has an abhorrence for loose ends in any activity. When Secretary Hoover went to Belgium to direct the relief work there, she went with him and was his first assistant, as it were. When the call came to organize the food administration in Washington, Mrs. Hoover once more was on the spot where she was needed without delay and was of great assistance in planning for the lodging and care of the thousands of young girl Government employes brought into Washington through the war emergency.

Youth has always had a great attraction for her and these girl workers of Uncle Sam were won by her tender sympathy for them in their problems, and in her quiet, efficient manner she did great service for them.

Leads Girl Scouts.

Generally speaking, Mrs. Hoover, who is on the sunny side of 50, is not a club woman, as the term is generally understood. Her position as a leader in the Girl Scout movement is her outstanding work in woman's club work, but there she has made a signal success. She has served that organization as national president and now is chairman of the national executive committee which formulates the policies of the Girl Scouts of America. No official duty or social demand ever kept her from carrying out to the full her Girl Scout work.

For a time she had a Girl Scout Troop of her own, but in recent months she has been obliged to give up this pleasant personal contact with a troop. It might be said with all truthfulness that it has been Mrs. Herbert Hoover who has "sold" the Girl Scout movement to official Washington, and to her unflagging interest in its welfare may be traced the share taken in the movement by prominent women of the National Capital.

Although Mrs. Hoover accompanies the Secretary to the quaint Quaker meeting house, which he attends regularly, she is an Episcopalian and thoroughly acquainted with the history of that church and in her girlhood days at Monterey was active in the church and Sunday school work of the Episcopal Church there.

Mrs. Hoover is very young looking for a mother of two sons, and has an energetic athletic young figure, which shows her years of interest in the work of the Girl Scouts and athletics for women. She is of medium height and has a wealth of silver-gray wavy hair, which she frequently wears braided and twined about her head. She, however, always has her hair in a very simple style, but often changes the arrangement of it.

Fond of Tailored Clothes.

In the daytime Mrs. Hoover has a fondness for the tailored type of clothes, and even her evening gowns are made along simple lines. It is a noteworthy fact that, although the Hoovers are wealthy, Mrs. Hoover does not affect an over elaborate wardrobe, although she is always well dressed. Her friends and admirers like her best in the soft grays and silver laces she wears very often in the evening.

When she dons her Girl Scout uniform as one of the ranking officers and chairman of the national executive committee she presents a most natty appearance, for this suit has been carefully tailor made and is always pressed and in the best condition.

It was Mrs. Hoover who brought through to a successful conclusion the plan to change the Girl Scout uniform into one which was more becoming generally to the girls and more feminine appearing than the old type of uniforms, which was considered by many too much like that worn by the Boy Scouts and military organizations. The new Girl Scout uniform is a gray-green cloth, very fetching in appearance, and the new style of dress is also very much liked by the scouts.

Mrs. Hoover's interest in athletics for girls has caused her to make a deep study of the problem, not only as applied to the Girl Scouts, but the young girls generally of the country. Early in her career as a Cabinet wife Mrs. Hoover was the leading spirit and presiding officer at a meeting of physical directors and others interested in athletics for girls. These meetings were held in the auditorium of the New National Museum, and the wife of the Secretary of Commerce gave up all of the three days of the convention to presiding, attending committee meetings and conferring with the experts in such matters.

TEXTBOOKS ISSUED TO MEET UTILITIES DEMANDS, CHARGE

$105,000 EXPENDED ALSO FOR WIDE SURVEY

(Associated Press.)

Cooperation with Ginn & Co., schoolbook publishers, by the textbook committee of the National Electric Light Association to delete objectionable matter from a textbook used by 100,000 students, and the expenditure of $105,000 for a Nation-wide survey purporting to show the failure and deficiencies of municipally owned and operated power plants, were disclosed by two Chicago witnesses yesterday in the Federal Trade Commission's utility investigation.

Fred J. Jenkins, of Chicago, chairman of the textbook committee, testified that the deletions were made, and matter substituted in a textbook written by Howard Copeland Hill, University of Chicago instructor.

H. J. Gonden, of Chicago, publisher of the Public Service Magazine, said that his magazine and the power companies paid for the survey, which required two years, the Insull interests of Chicago being a heavy contributor. He said the work was issued in 24 volumes in 1921 and 1922.

Revealed by Testimony.

His testimony and that of Hugh M. Blain, of New Orleans, director of the Louisiana-Mississippi committee on public utility information, revealed that the Public Service Magazine had been widely distributed to members of State legislatures and officials of State utility commissions at the expense of utility companies.

The magazine has consistently fought Government ownership through its articles, Gordon said in his testimony, as well having published articles opposed to Government operations of Muscle Shoals and Federal construction of Boulder Dam.

One of the objectionable portions of Hill's book that was deleted read, "As late as 1926, a man then serving as the president of a number of electric light companies in the Middle West, gave in a single primary election, over $200,000 to the campaign funds of candidates to both parties." This was understood to refer to Samuel Insull, of Chicago.

Letters Tell of Cooperation.

Letters introduced into the record said that when Ginn & Co. began cooperating that the smaller companies would fall in line. A report of a meeting of the committee with representatives of Ginn & Co. showed that Henry H. Hilson and O. J. Laylander, of the publishing concern, welcomed the criticism of the utility associations of their textbooks and said they "would be glad to submit all manuscripts bearing on public utilities to this committee or its representatives for suggestions and changes, not, however, binding themselves or the author to adopt such suggestions."

The report added that the publishers "would consider it a privilege to have such a committee review their manuscripts and would like to use this fact publicly in their sale and distribution."

Jenkins did not specify whether the revised textbook which was entitled "Community Life and Civic Problems" was used in high schools or colleges.

Senator Bruce Mentioned.

During the questioning of Gonden on the distribution of articles to legislators, Senator Bruce was mentioned in a letter by the Public Service Magazine publisher as having been supplied with information by his magazine for a forthcoming Congress.

The letter was dated November 16, 1925 and addressed to J. B. Sheridan, of St. Louis, director of the Missouri utility bureau. It said "we have recently supplied United States Senator Bruce, of Maryland, with a great mass of information for his use at the forthcoming session of Congress."

Gonden's letter said he called attention to the Bruce incident as an "instance of outstanding importance to the utility industry everywhere" and urged Sheridan to get his organization to pay for 200 copies of the magazine to be sent to members of the Missouri legislature and State officials at their homes.

Growth of Magazine.

Blain, who preceded Gonden on the stand, testified that his organization paid for the sending of 307 copies of the magazine to Mississippi and Louisiana Legislature members, and had been doing it for several years.

The rapid growth of the Public Service Magazine, after Samuel Insull, of Chicago, and C. E. Yost, of Omaha, acquired stock in the publication in 1906, was described by Gonden.

He said he started with a capitalization of $300, and now 300 shares of preferred stock are owned by utility representatives, while he controls the 450 shares of common stock. The magazine has a monthly circulation of 30,000, he said, 26,000 being paid for and distributed by utility companies.

Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, asked Gonden if his magazine was not the "mouthpiece of the utilities" or the "utility organ" and the witness said he would not call it that.

PRAYER BOOK FAILS, AS REVISED, IN VOTE BY BRITISH HOUSE

Vote Is 266 to 220 Against Measure Sponsored by Churchmen.

London, June 14 (A.P.).—The House of Commons tonight rejected the revision of the prayer book of the Church of England for the second time. The previous rejection occurred last December.

The vote was 266 to 220 against the book. The result was not unexpected since later modifications in the book had failed to satisfy most of the opponents of the first revision.

Tonight's rejection constituted final action on the new book, which is now dead. In voting to reject, the house disregarded a warning by Winston Churchill, chancelor of the exchequer, that such action would bring disestablishment of the church sensibly nearer.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary again led the opposition to the book. He has announced his intention of bringing forward an alternative revision, but whether this would be acceptable to the house of bishops is doubtful.

The two days' debate which preceded the vote showed the cabinet itself divided on the question. Stanley Baldwin, prime minister, was in the forefront of the supporters of the measure. He wound up the debate tonight in a brief speech, in which he said that rejection could weaken the hands of all those in authority in the church for a long time to come and would give immense impetus to the very forces which those who opposed the book desired most to curb.

Mr. Baldwin said that difficulty would follow upon a decision either way, but he believed that the difficulties which rejection would entail on the church would be infinitely the more formidable.

The majority against the book was 46, as compared with 33 last December. This probably was due to the fact that many members who abstained from voting on the first revision voted against the book tonight.

Archbishops Issue Appeal.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, heads of the Church of England, tonight issued an appeal to churchmen not to be led into any rash or irregular actions by disappointment or irritation over rejection of the revised prayer book.

The archbishops pleaded for patience and "abstention from any angry or unkindly word." They asked, too, that time should be given to the spiritual heads of the church to consider their grave responsibility and to give such counsel and direction as the situation requires.

The house wore a demeanor of gravity as it entered today upon the final debate on the revision.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York and the bishops of London and Southwark were prominent among the prelates who looked on from the peers' gallery, while the ordinary galleries were crowded.

Sir William Is Cheered.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, was greeted with loud cheers when he rose to speak against the revision.

"We are being asked to revoke our own decision," he said. The book, he asserted, remained essentially the same as when it was rejected by the house last December.

"The book which is going to produce diversity of church services is not going to bring peace to the land," Sir William predicted. Referring to the Archbishop of Canterbury's pronouncement in which he described himself as an "old man who yet saw visions," Sir William remarked:

"We must still remember that Ridley went to the stake at 80. I pray that this issue may be overruled by a God who is the God of Protestant and Catholic, and that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established among us."

C. LAMBDIN DEAD IN PARIS

Former Native of Alexandria Expires After Illness of Three Months.

Word was received of the death yesterday of Carvosso Lambdin, a native of Alexandria, Va., in the American Hospital of Paris, France, following an illness of three months. Mr. Lambdin was the son of the late John R. and Elizabeth Bennett Lambdin, of Alexandria.

He was one of the pioneers in the telephone field and as a young man was connected with the Southern Bell Telephone Co., in his native town. He later held positions with telephone companies at Norfolk, Va., and Wilmington, N. C., and then became associated with a telephone company which had branches in South America, Jamaica and Central America. When the latter organization disbanded, he went to Jamaica, with headquarters at Kingston, where he established a private business and ended his career with telephone firms.

Upon advice of his physician, he went to Paris and had been there for two years before his death. He is survived by three brothers, the Rev. M. B. Lambdin and S. Lambdin, of this city, and W. N. Lambdin, of New York City, and two sisters, Miss Mary E. Lambdin and Miss Barbara Lambdin, of this city.

aptness," said Judge Mattingly, announcing the awards.

"They evinced a close reading of the Guest poems and appreciation of the poet's verse," he said.

SERMONS AND SONGS.

Col. Constantine M. Perkins, the Fairfax, 2100 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Sermons and Songs! Each of them belongs
In a separate category;
But, when combined for all mankind,
Ah, that is a different story!
A poem may find a sinner who's blind
To any conception of wrong;
Each lesson Guest teaches by poem, he preaches
A sermon concealed in a song.

William H. Smith, 5304 Dorsett Place Northwest.

Homespun Harmonies is suggested as the title for Mr. Guest's new book of verse, because "homespun" seems correctly to describe his homely poetic style, and because his poems really are lyrical "harmonies."

HEARTHSTONES AND HORIZONS.

Leslie C. Merrill, 1736 G Street Northwest.

I chose Hearthstones and Horizons because of its applicability to the mission of Guest's verse. The hearthstone is the focus of human activity (or should be), yet, in poetry and practice we reach out to the great circle of experience. Guest thrills us both here and there.

ON HAPPINESS TRAIL.

E. Gwendolin Taylor, 1719 Thirteenth Street Northwest.

In reading Edgar Guest's poems I have found that in each one there is some simple truth, age old though it may be, beautifully expressed, which, if applied, will aid in the reader's search for happiness, the goal of every one.

LIFE'S PARADE.

Lieut. Allen H. White, U. S. N., 2726 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

Edgar Guest's works reflect a wholesome contemplation of human life. He views the incidents of everyday life which form the sum total of human experience and thus derives the happy philosophy which he shares with us. Hence, it would seem that his works typify "Life's Parade."

Prizes awarded in The Post contest were first, $10 in cash; second, a boxed de luxe set of four volumes of Edgar Guest poetry, bound in red morocco; third, three volumes of Guest poetry; fourth, fifth and sixth, individual volumes of Guest verse.

How Editors View Hoover

ATLANTA.

Constitution — Theodore Roosevelt subscribed to the McKinley policies and President McKinley was a good man, of stainless character. But the rough and tumble New Yorker could attract tens of thousands to his side where those less dynamic and magnetic could attract a thousand. Herbert Hoover is not possessed of it.

LOUISVILLE.

Courier Journal—Should he enter the White House it is a reasonable judgment that as Chief Executive it would be his desire to administer his office as an executive, not as a politician amenable to the influences of the politicians by whom inevitably he would be besieged and to whom inevitably he would be tempted to defer. Many a man has taken office with such a purpose, only to surrender it long before the expiration of his term.

COLUMBUS.

Ohio State Journal—Republicans may enter the campaign with pride and confidence in their leader. And the whole country may well rejoice in the knowledge that if the Republican candidate wins, the great powers of the Presidency will be in safe and competent hands.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Chronicle—Herbert Hoover goes before the voters of the Nation the choice of the rank and file of the Republican party. He has been nominated by the men and women at large of the party because they believe in him and want him and for no other reason.

CINCINNATI.

Enquirer—It is due Mr. Hoover to say that he is a man of business training and ability who has had world-wide experience in business enterprises. He has been a large figure in the Coolidge administration. It remains to be seen, should he be elected, how he will meet the problems of national administration. His platform indicates what he will try to do.

DENVER.

Post—With its square stand upon the policy of vigorous prohibition enforcement, the Republican party has paved the way for a realignment of voters in the coming election—the dry Democrats voting with the Republicans, and the wet Republicans voting with the Democrats.

BOSTON.

Globe—Flood relief, the radio, commercial aviation are all in his province. So, too, is the question of foreign commerce and its expanses and vital meaning to this country. From beginning to end, business organizations and its attendant problems are given emphasis. The platform is admirably adapted to the requirements of the nominee.

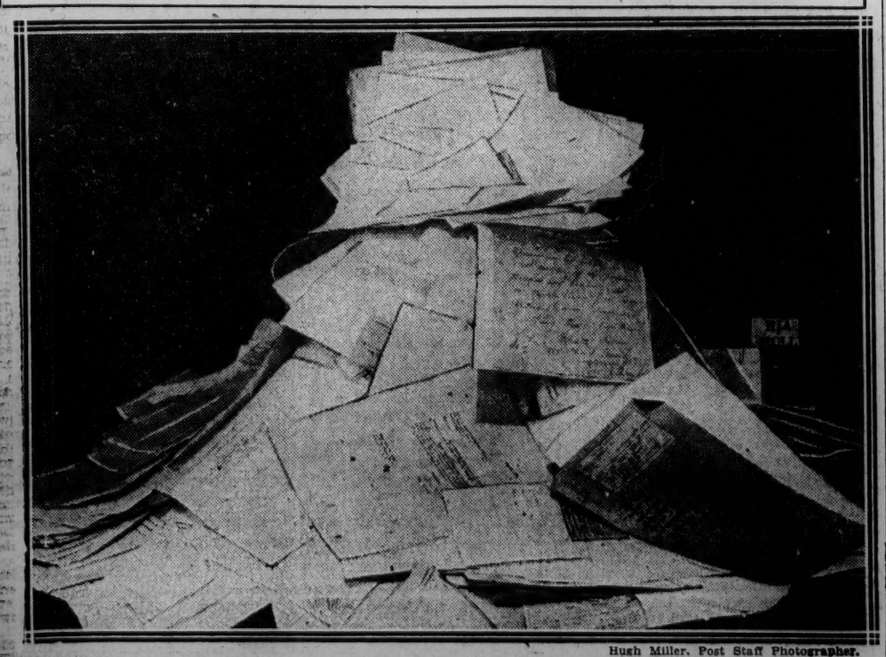

DES MOINES.

Tribune Capital—The chances are Hoover will find it much harder to organize his campaign in New York if Smith is nominated than in any of the farm States. It will be much more the West against the East if Smith is named than now appears. The nomination of Hoover will bring a wholly new alignment in Washington.

LOS ANGELES.

Times—With Herbert Hoover as United States presidential nominee, the Republican prospects are of the brightest for victory in November and for at least four years more of control of the destinies of the Nation. Hoover is by all odds the man strongest in the esteem and affection of the people of the United States.

CITY SUFFRAGE IS URGED

With ten more precincts to be heard from at midnight, 9,873 votes in the Democratic primary election held yesterday to elect delegates to the Democratic national convention June 26, at Houston, Tex., had been counted by members of the committee. The primary was held in an effort to upset the earlier primary held under the auspices of the Costello machine.

The results of the primary will be taken to Houston and the delegates and committeemen elected yesterday will endeavor to unseat the delegates elected at the earlier primary. The Democratic campaign committee, sponsored by the Al Smith Club, which was in charge of yesterday's primary, declared it was satisfied the large majority polled in their primary would enable them to unseat the Costello delegates.

The votes were cast in 40 polling places scattered throughout the city and it is believed the total vote will be well over 10,000. Each booth had three tellers, who assisted the voters in making out their ballots and who took the name and address of each.

The referendum on national representation in Congress and the electoral college indicated a great majority in favor of suffrage for the District. The exact figures on the referendum will not be completed until today, but it was indicated those in favor of suffrage averaged 20 to 3 against.

William McK. Clayton was elected national committeeman and Mrs. S. Alice Whitely Gleason, national committeewoman. Returns on the election of central committeemen had not been definitely decided last night.

African M. E. Zion Session Urges Union

Following presentation of a plea for unification of the African Methodist Episcopal Church and the African Methodist Episcopal Zion denomination by Bishop George Clement at the 101st annual conference of the Zion organization in Union Wesley Church yesterday, a resolution favoring unification was adopted indorsing plans presented by the joint commission of the two churches. Union of the denominations has been discussed since 1861. Bishop Clements pointed out the fallacy of continued competition and duplication in church work among negroes.

Other prominent churchmen who attended the conference were Bishop B. G. Shaw, Bishop F. M. Jacobs, Bishop C. C. Alleyne, Bishop L. W. Kyles, Mrs. Ida V. Smith, Dr. William H. Davenport and Dr. W. O. Carrington. The resolution favoring unification of the churches was signed by W. D. Battle, chairman; C. C. Williams, H. T. Medford, H. D. Tillman, F. R. Killingsworth, N. S. Harris, J. H. Tucker and S. M. Dudley, secretary. The report of the Rev. B. J. Bolding, chairman of the finance committee of the conference, will be made today.

NOBILE COMPANIONS HELD ICE-MAROONED BY THEIR INJURIES

Hope That Group of Six Can Make Way to Land Unassisted Is Abandoned.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 14 (A.P.).—Hope that Gen. Umberto Nobile and the five men marooned with him on the ice near Foyn Island, might be able to make their way to some of the dots of land in that vicinity, was virtually at an end tonight. Word came that due to the injuries to Gen. Nobile and to Natale Ceccioni, the motor chief who suffered a broken leg when the dirigible Italia crashed, the party is unable to move from its present position.

Gen. Nobile asked for snow spectacles, snow shoes, medicines and gum boots. This list is eloquent of the conditions which he and his companions are facing. It indicates that the glare of the sun on the snow has affected their eyesight and that the heat has softened the snow so that they suffer from wet feet.

The message said that the party of three, consisting of Dr. Finn Malmoren and Capts. A. Mariano and Filippo Zappi, took no skis with them as the hummocky ice would have prevented their use. The trio needs rifles and ammunition.

Polar Bears Merely Curious.

Polar bears have visited Nobile's party, but have proved friendly, showing nothing but curiosity at the presence of the castaways in their realm.

Measures to intercept the foot travelers, who started May 30 for Cape North, have been taken by Capt. Riiser-Larson who, with Lieut. Luetzow Holm, is in the North with seaplanes aboard the steamer Hobby. Capt. Riiser-Larsen reported tonight that pack ice extended so far that the use of airplanes was impossible, but that he and Lieut. Holm will try to make a flight eastward later on.

Meanwhile, the Hobby has put dog teams ashore under the leadership of Tandberg and Noeis. They are to lay down aid depots at Cape Platen, North Cape, Beverly Sound and Dove Bay, and are to patrol the route which Dr. Malmegren's party was likely to take.

Communication between the Nobile party and the base ship has been continuous, although with long intervals between messages. Every effort has been made to encourage the castaways, who have been informed of the various expeditions hastening to their aid. Gen. Nobile himself has expressed confidence that rescue now is a certainty.

The fate of the seven men carried off in the balloon part of the Italia and of the three who l the Nobile group in an effort to make their way to the North Cape is problematical. Both these parties are thought to be well supplied unless the balloon was caught up by the wind and blown away after the men reached the ice.

STEWART ACQUITTED, DEPARTS FOR HOME

committee in February, declined to say whether he had talked with Harry F. Sinclair, regarding the disposition of the Continental Liberty bonds, purchased in an oil deal in which Stewart, Sinclair, H. O. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil had guaranteed the carrying out of the Continental's contract to purchase 33,333,333 barrels of oil from the late A. E. Humphreys, of Denver

The oil was resold at a profit of 25 cents a barrel to subsidiaries controlled by the Sinclair and Standard companies, and the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., of which O'Neill was president.

Stewart also declined to tell the senators whether he knew any one who had handled the bonds purchased with the profits of the transaction. The committee developed, however, that the profits had been divided equally between Sinclair, Stewart, Blackmer and O'Neil.

Stewart left the courtroom after his acquittal with his face wreathed in smiles and returned to his hotel where he was under a deluge of telegraphic congratulations that numbered nearly 2,000 in the two hours after the jury had returned his verdict. He departed yesterday afternoon for his home in Chicago.

Stewart declined to talk about his acquittal, but his chief counsel, Frank J Hogan, said his acquittal was "another case of the citizens of the District of Columbia resenting in an unqualified manner the era of political persecution born in senatorial investigation committees and sent to the courts with senatorial orders to convict."

Denounced by Norris.

"It is an outrage against justice," he said. "It demonstrates clearly that if you have money enough to hire lawyers you will not be found guilty, even though you admit that you are guilty."

The verdict of the jury, composed of four women and eight men, however, does not entirely clear Stewart of all charges growing out of his appearances before the Senate committee.

Transcript of his testimony at each occasion was sent to the district attorney, who asked the Federal grand jury to indict Stewart for perjury for alleged discrepancies in his testimony on the first and last appearance. The grand jury is expected to make its report to the court within a few days.

Attorney for Stewart Scores Norris Statement

"Senator Norris' time-worn statement that a millionaire can not be convicted in this country and that a defendant who can hire a lawyer is assured of acquittal has been drawn out of the pigeonhole for publication every time he and a few others like him have failed to dictate convictions against those who have dared to differ with them. Norris would be humorous if he were not pathetic, interesting if he were not vicious. His aspersions, several times repeated, upon honest men and women of this city who have served on juries are as contemptible as they are unjustified, as indecent as they are inexcusable. This senator volunteered the role of a star witness for the prosecution in the case against Col Stewart, and the verdict makes it obvious that the jury rejected his testimony.

"It is high time that senators who devote their time to prosecutions, instead of to the legislative business for which the people pay them, should realize that while, by abusing political power, they may attempt to make marionettes of district attorneys and puppets of courts, that power can not pass the American jury box. Parading Senators Norris Nye and Walsh before the jury in the Stewart case represented just that much waste of time. The judge who presided, the district attorney and his assistant who prosecuted, the press representatives who reported and citizens who attended as spectators at the trial all know the case was fairly and squarely tried and that a jury of honest and honorable men and women, uninfluenced by anything save their own views of the evidence and their own consciences, acquitted Col. Stewart. In the light of this the vaporings of a Norris represent my idea of futility."

Farm, Labor Groups Planning Third Party

Minneapolis, June 14 (A.P.).—Twenty States will be represented in a conference at Chicago July 10 to discuss the projected formation of a third political party, it was announced today by Joseph A. Poirier, secretary of a national committee in charge of the convention plans. Several national farm and labor organizations are sponsors of the meeting.

Porier mentioned Senators Nye, of North Dakota; Brookhart, of Iowa, and Norris, of Nebraska, as among those interested in the convention.

Mexico Ousts Actress In Smuggling Plot

Mexico City, June 14 (A.P.).—Maria Conesa, the retired Spanish actress, who was arrested recently charged with complicity in the smuggling plot that brought about the downfall of Gen. Jose Alvarez, chief of the presidential staff, was ordered deported today. She came originally from Seville, Spain.

She has asked permission to go to the United States instead of the land of her birth.

Brief Watson Demonstration.

Wood finished his speech to the applause of a portion of the convention, led by the Indiana delegation, which arose to its feet. The demonstration was brief, however, and Chairman Moses ordered the roll call of States continued. When Kansas was reached, Tincher, the massive Curtis spokesman, whose voice has roared through the House of Representatives many times, took the speaker's stand.

Some one had placed a Hoover poppy in Tincher's buttonhole, and he let it remain there. The crowd gave him a big cheer, which lasted for several minutes. Some of Tincher's former House colleagues were leading the demonstration for him, and they had the band strike up a lively air.

Kansas is just across the river from this city, and the Curtis people in the galleries got into action in earnest. Curtis' friends in the convention, even though not for him as a candidate, also took the occasion to pay tribute to him and there was quite a bit of flag waving, but no parade. The demonstration was spontaneous.

Delegates Sing; Moses Pounds.

The band struck up, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and many of the delegates began to sing, Chairman Moses helping the noise along by pounding his gavel without much result.

While the noise was continuing a poll of the Illinois delegation showed that they expected to vote on the first ballot 26 for Hoover, 14 for Coolidge, 14 for Lowden, despite his withdrawal, and 7 for Watson.

Kansas finally started a parade for Curtis and showed lots of pep. Gov. Paulen carried the State standard, as the band played a lively march Oklahoma joined in with her sister State, whose delegation included Senator Capper and William Allen White. Both marched about the hall with their fellow Curtis workers.

The convention seemed for the time being to have been turned into a sort of free-for-all cheering organization.

Anybody that wanted to could yell and a lot of them did. Moses occasionally beat his gavel on the table, but it did no good.

Leona Curtis Knight, of Rhode Island, a daughter of Senator Curtis and a member of the Rhode Island delegation, left her section to march with the friends of her father. She took one turn about the hall and resumed her regular place.

It was difficult to tell where the demonstration left off and where the mere fun-making began. While a great majority of the delegates had seated themselves after the Curtis march, there were roving bands about apparently having a good time visiting neighboring delegations and showing their good spirits by an occasional yowl.

Finally, Tincher tried to make himself heard, and with his powerful voice he succeeded. He began by saying Curtis was "no quitter." This drew a cheer. "An American of Americans," he said, of Curtis, who is of Indian ancestry.

The Curtis adherents made more noise when Tincher had concluded his brief speech.

Tincher got a laugh from the crowd by saying his address was the best of the night because it was the shortest.

Lilly Nominates Goff.

Moses had little difficulty in quieting the crowd this time, the clerk continued the call of States and Minnesota yielded to West Virginia, which sent C. J. Lilly to the stand to nominate Senator Goff.

"Our candidate believes in protecting the farmer and the American laborer by the 'broad shield of American law,'" Lilly said. "The welfare of the Nation is reflected through the prosperity of the farmer. When he is happy the dews descend, the roses bloom and the angels sing. When he is unhappy need stalks abroad in the land, idleness is queen and poverty is king. The tiller of the soil, the man who is in partnership with nature, who lives with trees and flowers, who breathes the sweet aroma of the meadows, is entitled to be free from want and the fingers of famine about his throat."

The crowd got a little noisy, and Lilly told it that if quiet were not restored he would "speak all night." With the aid of Moses he got the delegates to listen again and wound up his speech.

The call of the States was resumed, and when Nebraska was reached C. E. Sandall, of York, presented the name of Senator Norris, who, he said, "typified the great principle of public honesty and public morality so essential and vital to the fundamental policies of the Republican party."

The Wisconsin standard was waved along with that of Nebraska when Sandall had concluded, but the hall was considerably quieter than for the past hour.

Ohioan Proposes Coolidge.

The roll call was continued and Ralph Cole was recognized when Ohio was reached. He was a leader of the Willis forces in their fight against Hoover.

Cole paid a tribute to Willis and then surprised the convention by naming President Coolidge as his candidate. He led up to Coolidge by degrees and kept the crowd in suspense until the end. A demonstration of small proportions followed.

There were no more States which wished to make nominations. It had required exactly three hours to dispose of the nominating speeches. Seconding speeches were next in order.

The first woman to take the stand in favor of a candidate was Mrs. Christine Bradley South, of Frankfort, Ky., who was made the target of the spotlight as the photographers snapped her. Dressed in a filmy cream-colored two-piece dress, and bob-haired, she was perfectly at ease before the great crowd as she put in her word for Hoover.

Makes a Fine Impression.

Mrs. South had the ears of her audience from the start and seemed to make a fine impression with her carefully studied delivery.

She was heartily applauded when she concluded a talk of five minutes and returned to her seat.

The poll did not change the first Georgia tabulation. Idaho then voted 11 for Hoover and Illinois voted 13 for Coolidge, 16 for Lowden, 4 for Watson and 24 for Hoover.

Indiana gave its 33 votes to Watson and Iowa gave Hoover 7 and Lowden 22. Kansas' 23 votes went to her favorite son, Curtis. Kentucky voted solidly, 29 for Hoover. Louisiana gave Hoover 11 and Curtis 1. Maine gave Hoover her entire 15. Maryland voted solidly, 19 for Hoover.

Bay State Goes to Hoover.

Massachusetts went 39 for Hoover and Michigan gave Hoover her 33. Minnesota gave Lowden 15, Hoover 11, Curtis 1. Mississippi's 12 went the same way. Missouri divided, Hoover 28, Hughes 1, Lowden 1, Dawes 2, Curtis 4, Watson 3.

John R. Hawkins, a negro church leader of Washington, D. C., followed with a five-minute seconding speech. Then former Gov. McKelvie of Nebraska added his indorsement, ending the oratory for the Commerce Secretary.

The second woman to take the speaker's rostrum was Mrs. H. J. Cornwell, of St. John, Kans., who wanted to add her meed of praise to Senator Curtis. She spoke as if she was accustomed to it, adjusting her voice easily to the acoustics of the hall and getting a cheer right off from out in front.

A. Scott Thompson, of Miami, Okla., asked the convention to support Curtis, who, he said, could turn Oklahoma over to the Republicans in 1928. He was followed by Charles J. Schuch, of Wheeling, who spoke for Goff.

The last speech of the night was by Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, who seconded Senator Norris. As he proceeded for five minutes, the delegates got ready for the ballot for a presidential nominee. The three hours and a half of oratory had failed to dampen the ardor of either the galleries or the floor.

Alabama Starts for Hoover.

The roll call of the States on the presidential nomination began at 10:45 p. m., central standard time, Alabama casting the first 15 for Hoover. Arizona followed with 9 for the Commerce Secretary.

Arkansas also voted 11 for Hoover. California followed with 29 for him. Colorado followed suit with 15.

Connecticut put her 17 in the same bag. Delaware did likewise with 9. There had not been an anti-Hoover vote up to this. Florida cast 9 for Hoover and 1 for Curtis. Georgia gave Curtis 1 and 15 to Hoover.

There was some kind of a mixup in the Georgia delegation, and a canvass was ordered by Chairman Moses.

New Jersey's entire 31 went to the Secretary. New Mexico voted, Curtis 2, Hoover 7. New York's 90 went to Hoover to the roar of the crowd. North Carolina voted 17 for Hoover and 3 for Lowden. North Dakota gave Norris 1, Hoover 4 and Lowden 3. Ohio voted 1 for Dawes, 4 for Coolidge, 10 for Curtis and 36 for Hoover. The North Carolina vote was sufficient to nominate the Commerce Secretary.

After the roll call was completed an Illinois delegate who was absent when the roll was called, came in and recorded his vote for Vice President Dawes.

There was a delay in announcing the final roll call because of some mixup in the tally clerk's figures.

Chairman Moses then declared Hoover the Republican nominee for President. Gov. Paulen, of Kansas, moved that the nomination be unanimous. The motion was seconded by the Oklahoma delegation, and West Virginia followed suit. Then Chairman Moses put the question and the nomination was made unanimous, officially, although there were some "nos" from the direction of the Wisconsin sector.

The convention then recessed until noon tomorrow, when a vice presidential selection will be made. The session had lasted from 7 p. m. to 11:25 p. m.

NATIONALS TAKE FIRST OF SERIES AT DETROIT, 8-3

NEW YORK, June 14 (A.P.).—No fewer than ten former winners of the national open golf championship, ranging from Harry Vardon, who won in 1900, to Tommy Armour, who won in 1927, are numbered among the 149 picked golfers who will tee off in quest of this year's title, June 21, at the Olympic Fields Country Club, Matteson, Ill., near Chicago.

The complete pairings and starting times, announced today by the United States Golf Association, show that play on each of the first two days will begin at 8:30 a. m., and that a steady procession of pairs will be teeing off at five-minute intervals until 2:40 p. m., when the last starts around. Eighteen holes will be played each of the first two days and 36 the third, when the field then will have been reduced considerably.

Heading the procession the first day will be Jack Daray, of Chicago, and George M. Christ, of Rochester, N. Y., while John Revolta, Oshkosh, Wis., the odd man in the pairings, brings up the rear. The starting times are different for each pair for the second day, so that none may have any particular advantage in playing at a more favorable time of day.

The first of the former champions to leave the tee on Thursday, the opening day, will be Chick Evans, of the Edgewater Golf Club, Chicago. This veteran amateur, who won the crown in 1916, is paired with Perry de Vecchio, Greensburg, Pa., and is scheduled to start around at 9:35.

Just ten minutes later the redoubtable Bobby Jones, the only other amateur among the ten former winners entered, gets under way in company with Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y. pro. Jones, the champion in 1923 and 1926, and Walter Hagen are the only men entered who could make it three national championships by winning this year.

At 10:10, Freddy McLeod, a Columbia Club, Chevy Chase, Md., professional, who was national open champion back in 1908, tees off with Willie Hunter, of Montebello, Calif. Two other pros who have gained this coveted crown get under way a few minutes later, just five minutes apart—Gene Sarazen, of Flushing, N. Y., starting off at 10:30 with Emil L. Foeffler, jr., of Oakmont, Pa., and Tommy Armour, Congressional Club, Rockville, Md., the 1927 winner and defending champion, teeing off at 10:35 with the formidable Archie Compston, English conqueror of Walter Hagen, as his running mate.

WORLD'S BEST TO PLAY IN U. S. GOLF OPEN

Old feuds of the links will be revived during the 1928 National Open in Chicago, June 21-23. And Great Britain will join with Australia in giving the competition an international flavor. Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Chick Evans will be there and so will Archie Compston, Britain's young star, who recently defeated Hagen in a one-sided match overseas. The favorites have not been listed as yet. Tommy Armour, who beat Harry Cooper in the 1927 play-off at Oakmont, is given the customary outside chance to repeat.

By BASIL G. WYRICK.
(Associated Press Golf Writer.)

CHICAGO, June 14 (A.P.).—A world's golf championship has never been held, but the nearest simulation thus far comes with playing the National Open at Olympia Fields Country Club, June 21-23.

In that battle titans of the links, holders of all the greatest golfing honors, will joust with wood and iron in stroke competition four times around the No. 4 course, which extends 6,756 yards.

There Tommy Armour of Washington, who won the title last year at Oakmont after a playoff with Harry Cooper, will have to parry the thrusts of such experts as Walter Hagen, who recently won the British Open for the third time; Gene Sarazen, second on the overseas tourney; Bobby Jones of Atlanta, national amateur titlist and holder of the British Open record of 286; Chick Evans of Chicago and a crowd of foreign invaders.

Among the aliens seeking to storm the American stronghold is Archie Compston, lanky Briton, who not long ago defeated Hagen 18 up and 17 to play and was not far behind the Haig in the British Open.

And to make it a title for time as well as for place Harry Vardon, now a grand old man of English golfdom, will be at Olympia to seek a victory again. Even the Antipodes will be represented in the search for the pinnacle of the world's most ubiquitous game, for Rufus Stewart, open champion of Australia, is entered.

It will in no sense be a free-for-all fight. The 160 contestants will have undergone gruelling tests to gain admission to the battlefield. The first 32 in last year's championship are admitted without examination, while 10 places are reserved for foreign stars. The others are selected at 17 regional contests.

The course is said by some to be too easy, since Hagen and Al Espinosa have scored it in 67 strokes during the P. G. A. meet and the Western open, both of which Hagen won. It is said by others to be too difficult, barring rare good luck, as it has many narrow, tree-lined fairways, steep bluffs and 13 creek crossings.

None has said it was unfair, and with the tees moved back to add 300 yards since Hagen and Espinosa made their record scores, the rough increased, the fairways matted with heavy grass and the traps ridged near the greens, the course promises to protect the national open record of 286, held by Chick Evans.

The fairways are reasonably ample, except for those through the woods. Good golf is rewarded and slips are not unduly punished.

Lazzeri's Home Run, 2 On, Beats Brownies

St. Louis, Mo., June 14 (A.P.).—Lazzeri's homer, with Durocher and Gehrig on base in third inning, gave the Yankees just enough runs to enable them to score a 4-3 victory over the Browns in the opening game of the series today. St. Louis rallied in the eighth when two runs brought the home team up to within one of a tie, but Herb Pennock got Manion on a roller to the box with the bases filled and two out.

Pennock pitched out of turn to meet Sammy Gray, St. Louis ace, and earned his tenth victory of the season against only two defeats. Gray did well, as did Blaeholder, who followed after Sammy gave way to a pinch batsman.

Giants Lose in 10th; Pirates in 2 Rallies

New York, June 14 (A.P.).—The Giants lost their second extra-inning game in succession today when the Pirates nosed them out in the eleventh, 4 to 3, in the first clash of the series. Adams' triple and Paul Waner's sacrifice fly accounted for the winning run.

Fred Fitzsimmons pitched well for the Giants, but weakened in the eighth when Pittsburgh bunched for its ten hits for two runs, to tie. Paul Waner also figured in this rally, driving in the tying run with a single.

Orwoll Halts Tribe; Macks Rally to Win

Cleveland, Ohio, June 14 (A.P.).—A three-run rally in the eighth inning gave Philadelphia a 9-to-8 victory over the Indians in the opening game of the series today. Neither Rube Walberg nor Willis Hudlin, the starting pitchers, were able to puzzle the opposition. Both retired in the fourth with six runs chalked up on each side.

The Tribe added two more at the expense of Eddie Rommel, but Ossie Orwoll then held them in check. The Athletics made Bayne the victim of their eighth inning attack.

Cochrane, the Macks' catcher, was the hitting star of the game. In five trips to the plate he collected two triples, a double and a single.

Chisox Beat Boston On Metzler's Double

Chicago, June 14 (A.P.).—Alexander Metzler's double with the bases filled in the fifth inning, which scored three runs, was the punch that enabled the White Sox to take the opener from Boston, 5 to 4 today. Metzler also scored a run.

Red Faber, of the White Sox, and Ruffing, of Boston, were hit freely, Ruffing leaving the mound at the end of the sixth for Russell.

Reid W. Digges Mid-Atlantic Medalist

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

REID W. DIGGES, of the Bannockburn Club, yesterday won the medal for low gross score in the 36-hole qualification round of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association championship tournament on the course of the Congressional Country Club, with a card of 73—74—147, leading the field by four strokes. His nearest competitor, Frank K. Roesch, champion of the Washington Golf and Country Club, who led in the field in the first day's qualification with 72, the par of the course, could not do better than 79 yesterday for a total of 151.

Roesch, with a 6 on the fifth hole, when he took four strokes from off the edge of the green; with three strokes from off the green on the seventh; with three putts on the ninth; with a shot into the ravine on the tenth, followed by an approach over the green for a total of 7 and with three putts on the twelfth, wasted more strokes than found compensation in the 2—4—3, with which he finished, a birdie on the sixteenth and another birdie on the final green.

Digges, who had 73 on the first day, meanwhile was encountering on the first nine a violent thunderstorm which swept over the course and was fortunate to finish his outward journey in 40 strokes.

However, with the storm over, he was back in his stride on the incoming nine, which he negotiated in 34 strokes, one under par, playing every hole in par until the eighteenth, when a mashie pitch dead to the cup gave him a birdie 3. His card:

Out ....5 4 4 4 5 4 5 5 4—40
In ....5 3 5 3 4 4 3 4 3—34—74

As there were sixteen scores of 166 and under, there were no play-offs for the championship flight. M. B. Stevinson, Columbia, whose disastrous experience with 10 strokes on the eleventh hole on the first day gave him a high score of 87 for his round and left him on the ragged edge of qualification, experienced no trouble yesterday, except the rain, and scored for a total of 166, which gave him one of the last places in the championship flight. Two years ago he was the runner-up in the Middle Atlantic event.

Many of the players yesterday halted in their round on account of the storm in direct violation of the rules, but the committee, in view of the large number who were guilty of this offense, decided not to inflict the penalty of disqualification.

The most interesting event of the day was the experience of A. F. Williams, jr., of Indian Spring. On the sixteenth hole he played ping-pong from trap to trap and, finally, on his fifth shot hit the flagstaff, holing out in 7. If he was within 20 yards of the pin he was compelled to add 2 strokes to his score, and not knowing the exact distance he placed the figure 9 on his card.

However, Alex Armour, the club's assistant professional, traveled over the course in Williams' company to the sixteenth green, and his measurements with a tapeline showed that the ball was 65 feet and 6 inches from the pin. Thereupon the score was changed to 7 and Williams then qualified in the second sixteen.

One of the events on the program was a five-man team match, competition based on the low gross score for 36 holes. The trophy was won by the Manor Team, with 832 strokes, the results being as follows:

CONGRESSIONAL—H. H. Newton, 80—77—157; Page Hufty, 76—82—158; Capt. W. J. Reed, 83—86—169; William E. Richardson, 88—96—184; Dr. B. L. Taylor, 91—93—184. Total, 852.

Neither Champion Nor Challenger Possess "Color" in Ring.

By ALAN J. GOULD.

NEW YORK, June 14 (A.P.).—Higher-pressure methods are being employed to ballyhoo the forthcoming Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship fight than for any big title extravaganza Tex Rickard or any one else has ever promoted.

Gene Tunney is entertained with some of his war buddies in sumptuous fashion to help signalize the start of the champion's intensive training program. To get in the military touch, Tom Heeney visits West Point, while Rickard's yacht today embarked with the war correspondents to inaugurate officially the Anzac's conditioning siege at Fair Haven, N. J.

Tunney, already well equipped with aids, engages the services of one of the most widely known publicity men in the sports game so that fandom may become better acquainted with the champion, his career and artistic pursuits. Not to be outdone, the Heeney entourage has attached to it an equally resourceful "public relations counsel."

It seems to be the general opinion among the experts that the fight needs this sort of supersalesmanship if it is to be a financial success. It is understood that Rickard must take in over $1,000,000 before he begins to show any profit whatever. The first million will be consumed chiefly by Tunney's guarantee, as well as Heeney's share and the expenses of promotion.

NATS SUFFER WITH HARRIS ABSENT

Pilot Steadies Team; Braxton or Hadley to Face Tigers.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

DETROIT, Mich., June 14.—Manager Harris plans to place his pitching duties in the hands of Southpaw Garland Braxton and Irving Hadley in the next two battles of this series with the Tigers but both are ready to start and tonight he was not sure of the order in which the two would be asked to perform. George Gibson is likely to do the flinging for the Jungaleers tomorrow.

It is most unfortunate for the Nats that Manager Harris is not available. This is no reflection on the ability of Jack Hayes who has proven himself to be a most capable understudy, but there is no question but what Boss Bucky is a steadying influence to his men and that they play better with him on the field directing the play and keeping his men on their toes.

Indications are now that Harris will not see action in this series. This, his first case of "charley horse," is not a severe one and the Nats' leader reported that his leg felt much better today, but Trainer Mike Martin has urged that he take several days more rest treatment especially in view of the fact that his instep injury is on the same leg and that by favoring one he is apt to harm the other.

Because of the manner in which he has been pounding the ball of late, Bob Reeves was advanced ahead of Joe Judge in the Nats batting order today. The young shortstop, by the way, certainly is being kept busy as, in addition to fielding his own position and doing a little stick work now and then, he also acts as "caddy" for Goose Goslin, racing to left field to get any balls rapped in that direction.

In two recent games Reeves has been credited with one assist each, but he more than made up for these idle spots this afternoon. He threw out the first four Tigers up, raced to left to retrieve McManus' hit, later caught the Tiger third sacker stealing and then ended the second round by tossing out Easterling. In the third, after Galloway walked, the next two batters rolled to Hayes who tossed to Reeves for force plays. This gave him five assists and three put-outs on the first eight Tigers to face Zachary.

Rice's triple in the third inning today was a mighty lucky one, his hot grasser caroming off First Baseman Bill Sweeney's glove to the stands in short right. Sweeney, who was with the Fort Worth Team last year, has been forced into the Tiger line-up because of an appendicitis attack suffered by John Neun, who is recuperating in a hospital in Chicago, where he was stricken.

Umpire Brick Owens is becoming most proficient. Calling them at first today it was noticed that the veteran frequently made his decisions before the plays were actually completed.

Red Barnes used football tactics on Gehringer's double in the fourth. He came in fast on the liner in an effort to make a shoestring catch. When he discovered that he could not make it he dived in front of the ball, letting it bounce off his chest. His recovery was so fast that the Tiger second baseman barely made the middle sack on the clout.

TERMINAL VS. AZTECS.

WERBER JOINS BERWYN.

Bill Werber, Duke University star, and Bob Gaylor, Maryland Frosh third baseman, will appear in the line-up of the Berwyn Nine tomorrow when Indian Head will be met at Berwyn.

GOSLIN BATS FOR MARK OF .427

"GOOSE" GOSLIN'S average, which already tops the batters of the American League, takes a material boost not only through his getting two hits out of four trips to the plate at Detroit yesterday but also by correction in the box score of the third game with the Indians played at Cleveland on June 12.

The box score as sent out on this game credited the Washington slugger with but one hit in four trips to the plate, whereas it is evident that he should have been credited with two hits. In the early part of this game Goslin singled, while in the later innings he drove one off the right field wall and was thrown out at second base trying to stretch it into a double. It appears that the scorer failed to credit the single he was entitled to in this case.

By allowing this additional hit Goslin's correct record including yesterday's performance reads 37 games, 110 times at bat, 23 runs and 47 hits for an average of .427.

Tony Lazzeri, of the Yankees, Goslin's nearest competitor got but one hit in four times up and dropped a few points. He is now being pressed by his teammate, Lou Gehrig, who went on another spree and boosted his mark to .364. Bobby Reeves, Washington's second candidate for batting honors, got but one hit in Detroit but remained in the "Big Five" with a .358 mark which is just one point better than that of Ralph Kress', who has returned to the fold, replacing Joe Dugan.

Callaghan, leader, and Picinich, fourth place holder, in the National League, did not get into action as the Reds were rained out. Hornsby went hitless and dropped to .413, while Douthit, the only othed leader in action, dropped 7 points, but remained in the group.

U. S. Team Opens Defense Of Wightman Cup Today

WIMBLEDON, England, June 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Molla Mallory, of the United States, will be pitted against Miss Eileen Bennett, of England, and Miss Helen Wills, against Mrs. M. Holcroft Watson tomorrow in the opening singles matches of the annual Wightman Cup competition between American and English women's tennis teams. The United States is defending the trophy.

The Mallory-Bennett match will be played first and the two singles encounters will be followed by the first doubles contest in which Miss Eleanor Goss, American captain, and Miss Helen Jacobs, 19-year-old Californian, will oppose Miss Ermyntrude Harvey, English captain, and Miss Peggy Saunders.

In the concluding singles matches on Saturday, Mrs. Mallory will meet Mrs. Watson, while Miss Wills will be matched with Miss Bennett and Miss Jacobs with Miss Betty Nuthall, 17-year-old English girl who defeated her in Wightman Cup play in the United States last year.

The final doubles match will pit Miss Wills and Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., against the new hard court champions of France, Mrs. Watson and Miss Bennett. By their selection today to meet Miss Wills and Mrs. Mallory in the four important singles matches as well as one of the doubles, Miss Bennett and Mrs. Watson have been designated virtually as the two best in England at present. Neither they nor Miss Saunders were on last year's team.

The beginning of play tomorrow will mark the opening of England's international lawn tennis season, the Wightman cup matches serving as a worthy prelude to the classic Wimbledon championships which begin June 25.

The American girls are favored here to retain the trophy, which rarely has worked out exactly as anticipated, and the British critics expect some closely fought matches between the teams headed by Miss Harvey and Miss Goss. The latter was made captain of the American team after Miss Wills expressed a wish to devote her entire energies to tennis instead of generalship.

Miss Wills is conceded two singles victories, which should give the Americans a lead difficult to overcome, but the British are resting their hopes on what some consider a more evenly balanced side. Victory in the 1928 contest may rest upon the doubles event tomorrow. If the British win this it may give them the heart to take the doubles event Saturday, which if they could win, one single victory each day would give them the four out of seven matches necessary to lift the trophy.

The Americans do not by any means concede such a result, for all the members of the team are in good form, having been practicing steadily at Wimbledon and Queens Club until today, when rain drove them away. The Winbledon court is protected by a huge rain curtain so that there is little likelihood of postponement of the matches unless there is a steady downpour throughout the day.

Zachary Holds Tigers to 7 Safeties

By FRANK H. YOUNG

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, June 14.—After four red-hot battles with the Indians, each of which was decided by a 1-run margin, it was quite refreshing to see the Nationals open their series with the Tigers this afternoon with runs to spare. The final count was 8 to 3, the victory giving the Nats a two-game grip on fifth place and a record of seven victories in nine starts in the West.

The Nats triumphed by the simple expedient of clustering seven of their eleven bingles in two innings, which netted 3 and 4 runs, respectively. These were more than enough to insure victory, especially with Tom Zachary showing rare pitching form. He allowed only seven hits and kept them well scattered. Had it not been for errors and a wild streak in the seventh when he walked the first three batters to face him, "Zach" would have scored a shut-out.

Bluege, with a double and two singles, led the Washington attack, while Judge and Goslin each were credited with a brace of doubles.

Earl Whitehill, also a southpaw, drew the pitching assignment from Manager Moriarty, but he weakened sufficiently to give the Nats the game before George Smith and "Lil" Stoner could show their good relief shifts.

Whitehill gave evidence of having one of his good days when he retired the Nats in order in the first two frames, but the next two innings netted the Harrismen seven runs and sent the Tiger southpaw to the "crying room" after five successive safeties in the fourth.

Bluege gave the Nats a start by prying the lid off round three with a single to left, Easterling's error letting him take second. After Ruel became a stroller and Zachary sacrificed both along, Rice cleared the sacks with a triple off Sweeney's glove and scored a moment later on Hayes' sacrifice fly.

Goslin doubled to start the fourth, and then came Reeves' single, doubles by Bluege and Judge and a single by Ruel. With three runs over, Bluege on third and Ruel on first, Smith relieved Whitehill, and he would have squirmed out of the hole had Galloway not missed Woodall's throw to stop an attempted double steal. Two were out at the time, and the miscue let Bluege register.

Zachary meanwhile had been breezing along in fine style, having held the Tigers to two hits, McManus' single in the second and Gehringer's double in the fourth. Detroit broke the ice in the fifth, but it took three errors to give them their run.

Easterling, first up, singled and took second on Reeves' wide peg past Judge. He advanced on an out and Woodall walked. Smith fanned, but Reeves' fumble of Sweeney's grasser let the run score. H. Rice rolled to Zachary, who hit him in the back. Hayes recovered the ball and discovered that Sweeney and Woodall were both on third. The Bengal catcher was thrown out heading for home.

Singles by Gehringer and Heilmann were wasted by the natives in the sixth, and then the Harrismen rallied after two were out in the seventh and added another run to their total, the result of a single by Barnes and a double by Goslin.

The Tigers used their half of the seventh to manufacture two runs. Zachary proved a great help to them, walking the first three men. He was fortunate in digging out of this self-constructed pitfall at such a slight cost. One run scored on a sacrifice fly and Heilmann singled the other over. There were no further threats by either team.

Favorite Pulls Away Near Finish

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, June 14 (A.P.).—Thomas Hitchcock's popular green colors were carried to victory in the Bayside Steeplechase Handicap which was contested over a route of about 2 miles here today. Bangle was a well-played favorite, but it required his very best to gain the victory. Rabel, Jefferson Livingston's good jumper, was second, with J. E. Widener's Be Fair third. Nomad was fourth and last.

Bangle broke slowly and was lengths back of the field but McNamee, who had the mount, rushed the gelding up and into a contending position. Then he rated him along to the last mile, where he moved up to Be Fair, the leader. For the next half it was a real horse race. They ran head and head, but in the final quarter Be Fair tired and Bangle drew away to win by three lengths from Rabel. Be Fair was third, ten lengths back. The race was worth $3,675.

Immediately after Ceylon Prince, which is owned by the Dyker Stable, won the third race, a mile and a sixteenth gallop, the stewards took action, refused the further entries of the Dyker Stable, revoked the riding license of Jockey S. Bullman. The case has been referred to the Jockey Club for further action.

Latonia Racetrack, Ky., June 14 (A.P.).—The South Gate Purse, which featured the racing card at Latonia this afternoon, was won by E. J. Holland's good filly, Krick. Lancer finished second and Tempest took third money. The mile was run in 1:44 3-5. Krick was never far behind the leaders and when Willie Garner called upon her she went to the front in short order. Lancer held second place the entire trip. The time was not slow, considering the condition of the track, which was very heavy today. The strip has not been fast during the meeting, which is 9 days old.

Nelson and Dallas At Gayety Tonight

"Rough House" Nelson, of Rochester, N. Y., and Pete Dallas, the local Greek whirlwind of the mat, will be the main attraction at Harry Jarboe's Gayety Theater tonight where an excellent wrestling program has been arranged for the mat fans.

Both Nelson and Dallas have a large following in the District. Dallas did not like the way Nelson grappled with Turner last week and so incensed the colorful "Rough House" that he was challenged on the spot to see if he could do any better than Turner.

After a preliminary match between two lesser lights, Joe Turner, conqueror of Nelson, will take the mat in the secondary feature against Charlie Gritt, of Columbus, Ohio. Gritt brings to Washington a great record The match will be limited to 45 minutes.

The first bout will go on the mat at 8:30 p. m. with Pat O'Connor, the third man in the ring. Jimmy Lake will announce the program.

JEFFERSONS SEEK GAME.

The Jefferson Fire Department Nine is without a game for Sunday and is anxious to book a strong unlimited opponent. Call Clarendon 240-W-2 after 5 o'clock.

BONDS SIGN EDMONSTON.

POWHATANS MEET.

TUBEROSE, showing a liking for the heavy track, was reserved closely behind ANNA BEALL, pacemaker, and, taken to the outside when ready entering stretch, took command at furlong pole to draw clear in final sixteenth. BEN MACHREE, outrun in early stages, moved up sharply rounding stretch turn on inside and, although closing strongly, could not menace winner. ANNA BEALL took command at start, held on stubbornly while racing wide through stretch, but tired badly in final drive. BONIFERN, never far out of it, closed a good gap in final furlong and was rapidly wearing ANNA BEALL down at the end. SUPER ROCK was in the air when the break came and was practically left.

HILARY, away slowly and outrun in first part of it, was sent into contention on far turn and saving ground entering stretch, overhauled leaders and was drawing clear in final sixteenth. HIGH STORM, followed the early pace closely, took command while racing restrained near half-mile ground, was taken wide in stretch turn in worst going, but came again when straightened out and finished strong. SCOTLAND YARD, well up from start, closed well to outgame SEA COURT near end. Latter tired in final sixteenth after racing close to leaders at head of the stretch.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,400. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good for all but Rockaphine. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 2:27. Off at 2:30. Winner, H. P. Headley's ch. c. (2), by Tryster—Miss Orimar. Trained by J. Daniels. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $233; third, $122. Time, 0:25, 0:51, 1:05 4-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COURIER, $8.64, $4.82, $3.90; MERANO, $9.12, $5.72; MY HOBBY, $4.46.

COURIER, kept well up from start and racing under a slight restraint, responded well when hard urged at head of the stretch and, continuing gamely, gradually wore leaders down in final seventy yards. MERANO was held in close pursuit of the early pace, went to the front when shaken up midway of the stretch and, although continuing gamely under punishment, hung slightly in final strides. MY HOBBY set a good early pace under hard pressure, saved ground on both turns, but weakened when put to a drive in final furlong. CLASSY raced well up throughout, but could not improve position.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,700. The South Gate. Allowances. For 3-year-olds and upwards. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 3:56. Off at 3:57. Winner, E. J. Howard's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KRICK, $4.90, $3.60, $2.62; LANCER, $6.74, $3.04; TEMPEST, $2.54.

KRICK, away well and hard hustled, cut sharply across her field on first turn, disposed of RAYON near far turn and, continuing gamely through stretch, lasted to withstand LANCER'S challenge in final sixteenth. LANCER, a keen factor from the beginning and racing restrained until reaching stretch turn, responded gamely when called upon and was steadily wearing winner down through stretch.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,700. Allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 4:26. Off at 4:30. Winner, A. B. Letellier's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMOLDERING, $12.52, $4.70, $3.58; GENERAL GRANT, $4.08, $3.30; NICK CULLOP, $4.62.

SMOLDERING, racing in best form, took command at once, shook off GENERAL GRANT rounding stretch turn and, continuing gamely in drive, was, including final furlong, up to win with much in reserve. GENERAL GRANT followed winner closely first part of it, saved all possible ground into stretch and, when seeming to tire last quarter, came again near end and finished strong. NICK CULLOP raced forwardly from start, moved up determinedly at head of the stretch, but tired in final furlong.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,400. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 4:57. Off at 4:59 Winner, M. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANUELITA, $8.62, $4.18, $2.86; AMO, $5.04, $3.50; CHATTER DRUM, $3.98.

MANUELITA, under hustling tactics and showing all of her usual early speed, took command at once, raced into early lead first half mile while saving ground and, meeting AMO'S repeated challenges through stretch, held on to finish gamely in a long drive. AMO away well and racing under restraint first half mile, moved up strongly rounding stretch turn, got on even terms with winner a furlong out, but hung in final strides and was kept in the worst going all through stretch. CHATTER DRUM, also well up for entire trip, tired in final drive, but was much the best of others. JUEL JEAN closed stoutly after meeting some early interference. SOIREE was weakly handled and was never a factor.

Large Field Promised For Clinton Marathon

J. B. Marland, who is in charge of the athletic activities at Clinton, Md., on Independence Day when St. John's Catholic Church holds its monster carnival of sports, announced yesterday that the 10-mile marathon which will feature the day's program will start at mid-day from Nicholas avenue and Good Hope road and end at Clinton.

Entries have been pouring into the office of Mr. Marland, 107 I street northwest, for the long jaunt with the possibility of the field reaching 35 distance runners by the time the entries close on July 1.

It has been definitely decided by the committee in charge that three silver trophies and a watch will constitute the main prizes for the event.

Other features of the day will be a baseball game at 10 o'clock in the morning, a tilting contest for the "Knights of Southern Maryland" in the afternoon and various other sports.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

MANZANA! Indications point to a paddock explosion just before the final spasm at Arlington Park this afternoon. Plenty of T. N. T. and foo foo powder has been spread around and "Manzy" doubtless will be found trying to wreck the joint.

This "bird" can really mizzle when lit up like a church. Old Boy McGill may be a trifle pressed for cash, but he will be betting "the finger" wherever his credit is good. Lads, you have the answer to all the gab in your lily white duke.

MINO, with Fronk in the coop, is going to be hard to trim in the fourth heat, while FLORIDA GOLD is sure to come through with a fine effort in the fifth, having worked in splendid fashion. As for the other events it would be a good idea to pass them along to your neighbor.

Down at Latonia, HONEST seems like a standout, having only MASTER WALTER to beat in the fifth race. The smart boys claim that "Timmie" Hay was dealt the "nine o' hearts" with ISOSTACY last time. This one can grab off brackets in the event members of the "jockey combine" decide it is his day.

From over at Fairmount Park, the word is being passed around that BODYGUARD is coming home in the sixth. Even "Dutch" Reuter, the owner of GOTHAM, is afraid to play against the Potter nag. Now, I'll say this is a pretty good line to go by.

Ye Wekkum!

INDIANS BEGIN 482-MILE RACE

29 in Marathon for $5,000 Up Coast of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14 (A.P.).—Speeded on their way by cheering thousands, 29 Indian runners started from the City Hall at 10:20 o'clock this morning on the 482-mile Redwood Highway Indian Marathon to Grants Pass, Oreg.

Jogging down Market street, lined with spectators, and in the rear of an automobile caravan, the long-distance runners jogged out to the bay where a special ferry carried them across to Sausalito. There the grind up the northern California coast began.

Franck R. Havener, city supervisor and acting mayor, fired the pistol that started the squad of aborigines on their way. As they lined up, Mad Bull, Korook Indian, was favored to win the $5,000 first prize and repeat his victory of last year, when he covered the distance in seven days and twelve hours. Flying Cloud, also a Karook, and who won second place last year, is Mad Bull's running mate.

An unidentified white man, representing an oil company, accompanied the Indians. While not eligible for any prizes, he will comply with every rule. It was announced he was a crack long-distance runner and was in the race to match the stamina of the Caucasian with that of the Indian.

In addition to the $5,000 for the winner, an extra $5,000 is to be split up between the next five finishers. The race must be made in ten days or less.

Swimming Teams In Washington Meet

Aquatic stars, representing eight different organizations from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, will vie for honors on Saturday in the Wardman Park pool, where the South Atlantic Association of the Amateur Athletic Union will hold its annual swimming championships. The meet will also serve as a sectional Olympic tryout and those showing the best performances will be selected to represent this section in the final tryouts for the American Olympic swimming team.

The large list of entries which contains the names of many well-known swimmers of both sexes will take part in events ranging from 100 meters to 400 meters and a diving contest. A feature of the swim will be the appearance of teams from the United States Naval Academy and the Bay Shore Swimming Club.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

The Parent Counselor.

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers' names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

Graduation Bouquets.

"YES, but father, your daughter graduates from high school just once and she needs a new outfit for this wonderful occasion. Aunt Rose is going to see that Alice gets a wonderful bouquet presented to her and it may be that two or three of the neighbors will see to it that she is called out in front of the audience to accept some flowers. Aren't you proud of Alice and don't you want her to look her prettiest?" mother concludes.

"Yes, I suppose so," replies father, a little wearily. "I can have the lining under the armpits of my best suit patched, have it dry cleaned and get along somehow. I can smoke still cheaper cigars and carry my lunch or go without. But the young folks of this family have just about run things for several years and I am tired of it. All I am supposed to do is furnish the music. The others dance. I wouldn't mind so much if they seemed to appreciate it, but the children seem to think life is just a joyride. They talk of nothing except dances, auto rides, tickets for games, money for school entertainments, silk stockings, tuxedos and taxicabs. There is more in life than that. Now comes competitive dressing for graduation."

This household difference still happens in some cities where high school graduation exercises still mean a general turn out of parents who sit and admire their own youngsters, criticise the neighbors' children, spend all they have and then some for gowns for the girl and tuxedos for the boy, count the number of bouquets their particular Alice receives and the amount of applause their Johnnie gets when he accepts a diploma. When it's all over they spend their next few months in paring the potatoes a little thinner, patching their own clothes, and cutting out every possible pleasure of their own.

Modern ideas of graduation eliminate many of the thrills of the old days—and many of the disheartening disappointments. In correctly operated schools the girls are limited by school order to the amount they may spend for a dress and no flowers are sent up to the stage. Boys are not allowed to wear tuxedos and everything is done to keep out jealousy, heart burnings and quarrels due to parental differences in incomes.

We will grant that high school graduation should be a great event. It brings to many a parent a feeling of duty well done and to many a pupil a joy of accomplishment. But it is all wrong to confuse dresses and diplomas, stockings and studies, lingerie and languages, tuxedoes and tasks, and social stunts and sacrifice. Under the old plan the real significance of the event was lost in a welter of ill advised spending.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

Who Is the Boss?

My 17-year-old son smokes and drinks. He stays out late and sometimes doesn't doesn't come home at all, but spends the night with a friend who is not a fit companion. He says he is boss. He goes with coarse girls who are stage dancers and now he wants to bring one home so that I can meet her. Father won't stop him because he says all boys are like that. Is this true?

DISAPPOINTED.

Answer—Your husband is sadly mistaken and the boy is certainly destined for a serious fall. I hope your husband can be brought to see the dangers that face your son before it is too late. I fear the attitude your son takes toward you is a reflection of the training and discipline he has failed to receive from the trousered side of the house.

Unseen Forces.

I told my son once that in my youth the spiritual was stressed at the expense of the physical and now it is the other way about. Is there too much talk nowadays of physical things? FROM OLDEN DAYS.

Answer—Yes, but I think the pendulum is swinging back. Youth is finding that hard-boiled attitudes toward life are unsatisfactory, that all life can not be explained by means of a test tube, an intelligence test or a speedometer. What are we here for and what is the terminal is becoming a leading question. The automobile age kept us on the ground, the television age, which is coming, is going to permit us to look at unseen forces

The Advertising Field for Girls.

My dad says there's no field for women in the advertising business and that I'd better fit myself for a teacher. Do you agree with him?

REBELLING.

Answer—Your father knows you better than I do and he may figure out that you have little gumption, no imagination and lack stick-to-it-iveness and is trying to discourage you from entering the advertising field which is employing each year more and more women. It requires less thought for a parent to say, "Oh, you'd better teach."

BEAUTY AND YOU

BY VIOLA PARIS

I RECEIVE many letters asking advice as to what can be done to make thick ankles slimmer and more shapely.

Some ankles, of course, will always be thick, no matter what is tried, because of their bony structure. Almost all ankles, however, can be improved by systematic exercise.

In many cases thick ankles are only a detail of general excess weight and will benefit, along with other parts of the body, with measures for general reduction. I give below some special exercises for the benefit of those many readers who are concerned, apparently, about the ankles alone.

1. Stand erect, feet close together, hands on hips. Keeping the ankles together, rotate the whole body from the ankles in a circular swaying motion, first ten times to the right, then ten times in the opposite direction.

2. Seat yourself comfortably in a chair. Extend one leg at full length, letting the heel rest on the floor. Point the toe downward as far as you can stretch it. Now rotate the foot in an arc in each direction as far as you can. Practice the exercise about twenty times with each foot.

3. Stand with the heels together, toes pointed slightly outward for balance. Keeping the trunk erect, bend at the knees until you are in a squatting position. At the same time, swing the arms straight back. Now spring upward and rising as high on your toes as you can. From this position, squat again and repeat the exercise eight or ten times Increase the count as you become accustomed to the exercise. Be energetic about it.

If thick ankles are simply a reflection of excess pounds, they should be allowed to take care of themselves, while you embark on a diet regulated to take off surplus fat and on a regime of exercise, for the most part in the open air.

Conduct and Common Sense

BY ANNE SINGLETON

DEAR Miss Singleton: Please settle this point: Are finger bowls used for an informal luncheon? I say "yes," but a friends declares she has read somewhere that they are only for informal dinners. B. M.

I think this might be settled by common sense without my signature at all, but I'm glad to be asked all the same.

What is a finger bowl for? For the convenience of the person at table who may have got his or her fingers buttery, or, perhaps, sticky. It is unpleasant to feel one's fingers in that condition and rather uncomfortable to polish them off on a napkin. Whether you are alone, or in company, for lunch or dinner, that feeling is the same. Now, to say nothing the nicety of dipping the fingers in water, think of the amount of hard washing saved. Fruit stain for instance (as I have said a dozen times), do not come out easily, and sweetmeats make a horrid spot.

If people would try to live every day as well and neatly, in regard to table service, as they can, there would be none of this confusion about informal and formal procedure. The ceremony in large households is not changed when a small dinner occurs; there may be fewer courses and fewer servants, but the service would not be altered. And the lack of ceremony in small households is not changed in the giving of a large dinner; there might be more courses and another servant "got in" to help, but no extra airs and graces added.

I lunch and dine alone many times a week and I am served (and would, if necessary, serve myself), with courses, finger bowl, demi-tasse and all, exactly as I would be "for company." Why on earth not?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

LIFE ON THE EARTH.

When they shall ask me over there
What did you see, what did you do,
In what great splendors did you share?
Tell us about the folks you knew,
"I saw the tulips bloom in May."

Spring after spring I loved the breeze
I watched the birds build nests in trees
And saw the roses come to bloom.
For trout I used to wade the streams,
And had an endless stock of dreams.

The heart of me was often gay,
Despite the cares I had to bear;
There never came a dreary day
But what some loveliness was there.
And rich or poor or great or low,
The friends I made were good to know.

I had a little garden there,
I'd food for all, and some to spare,
And there were games I loved to play.
And though I sighed for pleasures lost,
Life on the earth was worth its cost.

For the Slender Effect

© VOGUE 9258

DEAR Vogue: May I have a straight-line frock, among several that flare? I wear size 20, but I am not particularly slim and look best of all in a coat-dress, belted rather low. M. G.

Dear M. G.: The frock that we have selected for you has many new details and is a smart type of straight-line frock, dressmaker-made rather than strictly tailored. The absence of armholes increases the apparent width at the shoulders and consequently reduces the apparent size of the hips. There is a pleat at each side below the belt, for ease in walking, but the lines are straight and slender looking. As sketched, the frock is made of silk crepe. If you should choose a 54-inch fabric, the seam around the arm will not be necessary. The crossed front is a very good detail, and the edges are finished with shaped facings, as you will see from the cutting diagram. It is quite easy to manage these, if you are careful not to stretch the fabric. Handle it as little as possible after cutting and baste without lifting it from the table. The same care should be taken with the raglan sleeve seam at the back. Do not baste this seam until after the radiating tucks have been made at the neckline. These are details of importance not only because they make the frock fit better, but also because they give firmness to the fabric. Care in marking is essential, as each tuck should terminate on an even line with the one opposite. Press them thoroughly before finishing the neckline.

Mr. Work's Pointers

Contract Bridge

CONTINUING the subject of Slam Bidding at Contract, unsound examples of which were discussed in this series of articles on Friday and Saturday of last week, we will now turn to a certain type of slam bidding which not only is not objectionable, but which may prove very beneficial at times.

One kind of defensible slam bidding occurs when the bidding side has a score, and this fact furnishes additional evidence that the value of a partial score in Contract is far greater than its value in Auction Bridge.

In Contract when a side has a score of, say, 60, the initial bidder would not bid three except for some special reason. Two of any suit or No Trump would be a game-going bid, and any higher bid not only would be unnecessary, but would reduce the number of possible overtricks. Consequently an initial three-bid under those circumstances is conventionally understood to mean that the bidder's hand shows slam possibilities, and it is understood that any subsequent bid by either partner is a "slam bid." When the partner of the bidder who has bid for more than game has a weak hand he will pass, but if he thinks that his hand may be strong enough to produce a slam with the great aid announced from across the table he will make a bid for some kind. With an Ace in his hand, he will overcall in the suit of the Ace, no matter how short that suit may be; holding a blank suit, he will overcall in that suit, provided he has enough cards of his partner's suit to provide for adequate ruffing. In either case the bid means: "Partner, I am complying with your request to show you any assistance I have for a slam. I hold the Ace of the suit I have named, or else guarantee that we shall lose no tricks in it." When the overcalling partner has Kings or other high-card strength, but no blank suit or side Aces, he jumps the partner's bid. But whatever partnership bidding may follow the original overbid, and whether or not a slam declaration is reached, the final declaration made by the side must be the same as the original overbid.

(This subject will be continued tomorrow.)

WIVES OF TOMORROW

"Creeds and Weeds."

DEAR Miss McDonald—If young people contemplating marriage would strive to live up to the "Marriage Creed" which you published. "Marriage should be a perfect understanding between man and wife, that they love each other so well that both will strive to do everything in their power to make the other happy." I think that creed would result in a successful marriage—if both were wise enough to go 50-50 on the creed.

Well, some girls have written your column inquiring about "Companionate Marriage." If they heard Judge Lindsey they probably learned something about it which they did not know before—I did. I found I had objected to companionate marriage because I really knew nothing true about it.

I think it might properly be called "companionable marriage," because that is just what Judge Lindsey wants marriages to be, and to that end he advises education on the subject beforehand, and general education in parentage and home making. I see nothing unreasonable in that! To term the subject of sex "obscene" is nonsensical, as it only becomes that to obscene minds. We might as well look upon the physiology of digestion as obscene! To call scientific knowledge of any function of the body obscene is to stamp one as narrow indeed!

I found I had been misjudging Judge Lindsey before I heard him, as I judged from what others said "companionate marriage" consisted in. He said it "was not trial marriage—unless people considered all marriage a trial!"

Yours for the best there is in true married life. A MARRIED MAN.

Trouble is the young today are taught nothing! Their minds are like a fertile field into which was thrown a bushel of every kind of seed all assorted. Pansies spring up with corn. Cabbage crowding out the rose.

Take that same field, and in ordered system, cultivate it. Flowers here, grain there. The essential and the esthetic; the practical, the beautiful. What a vision then of all man's needs! There is room for everything, place for everything.

We are armed with the seeds, the fields are waiting. We can produce beauty or waste. We will probably go right along producing waste, and plenty of it.

There is room for a creed of marriage, and a creed of life, and love. But all that stands out in the ghastly confusion is the creed of the savage, let the strongest win. It is a pity.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WORD "MORON" AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

IT seems the word "moron" has always had trouble in being correctly interpreted. A very intelligent gentleman calls my attention to the fact that the word did not originate with Dr. Moyer.

In 1664 and thereabouts Moliere wrote a series of playlets to please his king, Louis XIV. Among these was the "Princess of Elis," first played before the king at Versailles May 9, 1664; played thereafter at Fontainebleau, and, later in the same year, having a run in Paris. This play was grouped with others in a book of plays called "The Pleasures of the Enchanted Island," published in 1664.

One of the ten characters in "The Princess of Elis" was "Moron," the princess' fool. Moron, who claimed to be an illegitimate half-brother of the Prince of Ithaca, was a typical court jester, a shrewd, nimble-witted, unscrupulous man, far the brainiest character in the play, although his position was that of the court fool.

In all probability Moliere selected the Greek word "moros," meaning stupid, as the basis for a name for the princess' fool, but having attached the name and its descriptive adjunct, he proceeded to draw a character which was just the opposite of a fool.

Dr. H. N Moyer may easily have got his thought from Moliere. He was fond of reading and quoting from Shakespeare and other early authors of the classical drama. In all probability he read Moliere, though I do not remember having heard him quote that brilliant Frenchman. The group for whom he used the term "moron" is not the shrewd, sharp, nimble-witted crew used by the courts in Louis XIV's time as court fools or court jesters. Therefore, while he may have borrowed the word moron from Moliere he discarded the connotation used by Moliere. By moron he meant about what the medical dictionaries now give as the meaning of moron, to wit, a feeble-minded person, one who does not advance beyond the Binet age of 12 years.

In popular parlance, the word moron now has still another meaning. It is a person who is responsible for some criminal action in which sex figures prominently. How this sex feature managed to worm its way into the meaning of the word noon it is not easy to discover. Moliere had no such notion. Nothing in the play indicates that he had. Moyer had no such notion. There is no basis for it in the dictionary definitions nor in the use of the word by physicians.

ADVICE ON GALL STONES.

Mrs. J. M. K. writes: Will you please write on gall stones and treatment for same.

REPLY.

The prevailing opinion is that a person with a tendency to gall stones should eat sparingly of every kind of fat and grease. He should also be temperate in eating highly seasoned foods.

Heavy meat eating is not advised.

Your husband will do well to go without supper. If he must eat an evening meal let it be a light one.

MODISH MITZI

Mitzi Would Like to Join the Navy

By Jay V. Jay

"Perhaps Uncle Harry will let me use his yacht this summer," the Goofer says to Mitzi. This is enough to make Mitzi grasp her very new modernistic bag all the tighter, push her new turban hat down lower and register coy pleasure. The minx! Perhaps this is a solution of what she will do with her summer.

If she is going to be on Uncle Harry's yacht she will have to have the proper yachting costumes. Isn't it fortunate that just now sailor fashions are particularly fashionable. A white tennis dress with a sailor collar and a double-breasted, navy blue kasha coat will be suitable.

Many of the new beach styles have modernistic decorations. The bathing suit has a zig-zag pattern knitted in three colors. Mitzi is fairly well satisfied with the pajama costume with the top in graduated shades of applied material. A saucy beret goes with this with a huge, white pom-pom on top.

It's been a tiring day what with all this collecting of yachting costumes. Mitzi is not too tired to pick up the phone when the Goofer calls her. Isn't it a shame? Uncle Harry had a fancy over night to go on a cruise to Labrador or somewhere. The Goofer is wondering why Mitzi is so cold, so distant, so North Polish!

YOUR SKIN

Remains Naturally Lovely if —you remove powder and rouge each night this way

THE real danger in make-up lies in the way you remove it. For unless it is removed each night carefully and thoroughly, pores will clog, skin will be blemished and sallow. Cleansing your skin with palm and olive oils as uniquely embodied in Palmolive Soap keeps its texture fine, its color glowing and youthful. They penetrate and cleanse like nothing else will do.

Every night do this: Gently massage Palmolive lather into the face for two minutes, using your hands. Allow the oils to penetrate and cleanse each pore. Then rinse with warm water, then cold. Dry by gently patting with a soft towel. A touch of cream if skin is naturally dry. That is all.

ENTIRE MARKET STRONG NEAR CLOSE OF TRADING

Bear Selling Falters; Utilities, Oils and Specialties Lead Upward.

CALL RATE 5½ PER CENT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, June 14.—The rally in stocks was continued today, with advances ranging from fractions to more than 12 points, and trading volume shrinking to about 3,100,000 shares. Bear selling was pushed in some divisions of the market at times but failed to make much headway. The whole market was particularly strong in the last half hour under large buying orders for the utilities, some of the oils and a few specialties.

Atlantic Refining had a sensational advance of 11⅞ points net. Much of the day's trading obviously was of a professional character. The market closed strong with most of the prices around their tops for the day.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent, but in the afternoon dropped to 5½ per cent, with funds a quarter lower on the outside. Other money markets were unchanged. The easier rate for call money reflected reduced demand by the securities markets and temporary conditions in connection with the tax date. The Treasury is expected to overdraw at the Federal Reserve Bank tomorrow to the extent of more than $125,000,000 in anticipation of tax receipts which will come in during the next few days.

The money market will have the benefit of Government disbursements for which this overdraft is required during tomorrow and next Monday or Tuesday, after which time the tax payments will liquidate the overdrait. In consequence bankers would not be surprised if the call money rate in this period should fall temporarily as low as 5 per cent. There was no other news of importance during the day to influence sentiment.

The market opened strong, then drifted quietly for a time during which some recessions occurred, but braced and moved ahead again when the announcement came of the reduction in the call money rate. While recently active shares, such as motors, steels, Radio, General Electric, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Telephone, and New York Central, were strong with advances extending to 3¾ points, there were numerous other issues which moved more sensationally. Case Threshing was boosted for a net gain of 12¼; Atlantic Refining, 11⅞; International Harvester, 4¼; Rossia Insurance, 10½; Cast Iron Pipe, 6; Shattuck, 4⅝; Stromberg, 4; Murray Corporation, 6¾; Chesapeake & Ohio, 4⅜; Norfolk & Southern, 5⅛; American Bank Note, 8; Advance Rumely, 3¾; American Linseed, 8¾; American Express, 7; American Railway Express, 8; Bayuk Cigars, 5; Kroger, 4¾; Eastman Kodak, 4½; Collins & Aikman, 5; Paramount, 4¼; Macy, 5; Jewel Tea, 5, and a few others. In many cases it took only a transaction of a few hundred shares to cause an upswing of 2 to 5 points.

The coppers and merchandising shares were steady but not especially active. Railway equipments were strong. Baldwin lost 4 points and American Tobacco 4¼ on small turnovers.

Atlantic Refining stood out as the day's most spectacular performer. This corporation is regarded widely as one of the good oil companies, whose prospects this year are exceptionally bright. Like most other companies, it moved to write down heavily on earnings last year against such items as inventories, intangibles, etc. Consequently, the theory is that with improvement in gasoline and other refined products this year earnings should show up remarkably well. Incidentally, today's buying was not without an eye to the possibility of more liberal dividends later in the year if conditions shape up as now expected.

American Linseed was perhaps the strongest feature of the day among the shares of the specialty type. Buying here, of course, was stimulated by circulation of reports, credited in usually well informed circles that terms of the deal for the acquisition of the company by Gold Dust would be subject to revision. Large Linseed shareholders, who were reported as dissatisfied with the original terms, apparently were successful in their quest for more liberal consideration.

Sterling was higher, helped by the weekly Bank of England statement, which showed gold holdings at a new post-war peak.

GOOD BUYING SUPPORT MOVES BONDS UPWARD

FOREIGN GROUP FIRMER

New York, July 14 (A.P.).—Buying support came into the sagging bond market today and prices responded by moving to levels 1 to 3 points higher. Virtually every group showed increased firmness as trading increased in volume.

"Bargain hunters," institutions which have liquidated stockholdings and other interests expecting an easing of the money market within the next few days, appeared to make up the buying support today. Belief that brokers' loans would show a decrease, confirmed after the market closed, also encouraged buying, while recovery of the stock market played its part.

Coppers again were strong with Anaconda 8s up nearly 7 points, registering the greatest gain. Gotham Silk Hosiery 6s, Kayser & Co. 5½s, Loew's 6s with warrants, New York Dock Co., Liquid Carbonic 6s, Pierce Arrow 8s and Dodge Brothers 6s were among issues to gain 1 to 3 points. Utilities also were in demand, American Water Works & Electric 5s and Columbus Railway, Power & Light 4½s leading the advance.

The rail group showed a reversal of trend. Katy 4½s, Seaboard Air Line 6s, the St. Paul issues, Central Pacific first 4s and others advanced more than a point each. Cuba Railroad first 5s moved up more than 2 points to a new top for the year at 102.

The foreign list reflected general market firmness. Tokyo Electric Light 6s moved to a new high at 92, but eased off fractionally. United States Government obligations were firm, but gains were limited.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURES OF RAILS $128,428,000

Report for New Equipment and Betterments During Three Months Made.

MARKET HAS LIGHT DAY

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Capital expenditures actually made by the railroads of the country for new equipment and additions and betterments to property used in connection with the transportation service amounted to $128,428,000 in the first three months of the current year, according to report by the Bureau of Railway Economics submitted yesterday to the directors of the American Railway Association.

Compared with the corresponding period in 1927 this was a decrease of $26,594,000, while it also was a decrease of $37,327,000 under the corresponding three months in 1926.

Total capital authorizations as of April 1, this year, including carry-over from 1927, amounted to $593,757,000, compared with $724,853,000 for the first three months in 1927, and $821,880,000 in 1926. The report revealed that this decrease in authorizations during this year is due principally to the smaller carry-over from the previous year. The carry-over for 1928 amounted to $323,692,000, compared with $455,[illegible]000 for 1927 and $467,057,000 for 1926. The authorizations for capital expenditures made between January 1 and April 1, this year, compare more favorably with those for 1927, being $270,065,000 for 1928 and $269,025,000 for 1927.

The amount of expenditures during the first three months of 1928 devoted to purchase of new equipment was $33,016,000, compared with $55,346,000 for the corresponding period of 1927, while roadway and structures expenditures aggregated $95,412,000, compared with $99,676,000 for 1927.

Capital expenditures actually made in the first three months this year for locomotives amounted to $10,493,000, which compares with $19,771,000 made during the corresponding period of last year. For freight cars, expenditures amounted to $13,601,000, compared with $18,192,000 in 1927. For passenger cars, capital expenditures in the first three months this year amounted to $5,785,000, compared with $12,346,000 for the corresponding period a year ago.

Capital expenditures for roadway and structures made by the railways of the country in the first three months this year totaled $95,412,000 and was a decrease of but $4,264,000 under the 1927 period, while expenditures for additional track, shops and engine housing, were little different in the first three months of 1928 than in 1927. For all other improvements $53,083,000 were expended, an increase of approximately $3,000,000 compared with the three-month period last year.

Curb Review

New York, June 14 (A.P.).—The curb market hastened along the road to recovery today with prices moving to levels well above those touched in the recent decline. Automotive, mining and oil shares led the rise. Utilities were rather irregular.

Sparks Withington, which advanced 10 points net, was a feature of the automotive group. Auburn auto was strong early in the day, but encountered profit-taking. Checker Cab, Fedders, Marmon, Durant and U. S. Battery made gains of 1 to 8 points, while the greatest gain, about 15 points, was registered by Waukesha Motor, which reached a new top at 1.35. Safe-T-Stat closed about 2 points off.

Airplane issues showed suddenly renewed strength, advancing 1 to 3 points. Gobel, Celanese, Lehigh Coal, Newmont Mines, Normanda Mining, Ruberoid, Anchor Post Fence, Tubize and Bancitaly made gains of 4 to 15 points. Great Lakes Dock & Dredge, with a net loss of 36 points, was the outstanding weak spot.

Some utilities made small gains, but there were recessions which sent American Gas & Electric down nearly 5 points and Electric Bond & Share off 1.

Kraft-Phenix Cheese Co.

Formed in September, 1924, as the Kraft Cheese Co. to acquire and consolidate the business of a number of affiliated cheese manufacturers organized by the Kraft brothers. February 23, 1928, the Phenix Cheese Corporation and A. E. Wright Co. were acquired, resulting in the change of the company's name. This company leads in the production of distribution of various types of cheese put up in retail-size packages. Through the Wright company, salad dressings also are made.

Expansion of business has been continuous since 1919 and in recent years has become international. During 1927 net sales amounted to $60,447,801 and net income of $1,189,965 was satisfactorily larger than net of $1,111,172 in 1926. Consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 1927, showed current assets of $15,469,047 and current liabilities of $4,829,424, a ratio of more than 3 to 1.

CAPITALIZATION.

Preferred stock	None.
Common stock (par $25)	11,361,275

Current data: March 30, 1928, stockholders of the company ratified amendment to articles of incorporation increasing the authorized capital stock from 500,000 to 750,000 shares. Under date of May 31, 1928, it was reported that an important reason for the recent purchase of the controlling interest in Southern Dairies, Inc., by Kraft-Phenix was a new process for making powdered whole milk, including butter fats. Its use was expected to effect substantial savings.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 14 (A.P.).—Unfavorable features in the weather and crop news and relatively firm Liverpool cables were reflected by advances in the cotton market today. Further liquidation of old long accounts caused declines from an opening upturn, but the market firmed up again, October advancing from 20.28 to 20.59 and closing at 20.57. The general market closed steady at net gains of 12 to 19 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 8 points, which was only a partial response to higher Liverpool cables than expected and reports of rains in the South. Active months sold about 7 to 10 points net higher after the call, but offerings increased around to 20½-cent level for October, and the market eased off during midday.

The report of the Census Bureau showing domestic consumption of 577,710 bales for May, compared with 525,158 for April and 628,948 for May last year, was slightly under recent bullish expectations and probably accounted for selling by some of the recent buyers. Demand increased as prices approached 20¼ cents for October, however, and the market turned upward again during the afternoon.

Detailed weather reports, confirming the early rain news and showing a good deal of precipitation in the Mississippi Valley and in parts of Alabama and Georgia, no doubt helped the afternoon advance. Reports of firmness in the stock market and lower call money rates were also a factor, and it seemed some of the early sellers were covering or rebuying on the late advance when offerings were comparatively light. July sold up from 20.23 to 20.50, while December advanced from 20.14 to 20.43, and the market closed within a point or two of the best. Talk of probable increased domestic mill curtailment was more or less in evidence during earlier trading and probably contributed to the reaction from the opening advance, but there was decidedly less cotton for sale during the afternoon, which some local brokers thought an indication of a firmer technical position.

Private cables reported covering, trade calling and Bombay buying in Liverpool on unfavorable weather reports from the South, with fair demand for cotton cloth from South America.

Exports today, 42,400 bales, making 7,273,604 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,100. United States port stocks, 1,026,265.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 14 (A.P.).—Wheat scored a substantial advance in price today owing largely to buying on the part of houses with Eastern and foreign connections. To a considerable extent the purchasing was based on talk that upturns were to be expected after declines of late amounting to 34c a bushel. Besides, export business today in wheat from North America totaled 1,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1½c to 2½c net higher with corn at the same as yesterday's finish, to 1⅛c up; oats unchanged to ¼@⅜c advance and provisions varying from 7@10 decline to a rise of 5c.

Strength which developed in the wheat market came after values had undergone downturns today that were an evident result of temporary acute weakness in corn. Ideal weather throughout the corn belt had brought about a selling movement that carried all future deliveries of corn down to below $1 a bushel and had established new low price records for the season. However, reports of Hessian fly in a number of winter wheat States tended to stimulate bullish sentiment regarding wheat and rallies were given further impetus by absence of rain in the spring crop belt as well as by the fact that higher temperatures Northwest also were being looked for.

Included in today's wheat export business was number 2 hard winter at Galveston, Tex. The price paid was 4 cents over September delivery and was quoted as free on board vessel for shipment to Europe. Earlier the market here had been bearishly affected in some degree by statements given circulation that the new crop wheat in the Southwest would have to compete with the Canadian and United States visible supply of 120,000,000 bushels against 57,000,000 bushels last year, and also the world visible of 70,000,00 bushels more than the total a year ago.

Before selling over in corn had run its course today corn prices were in some cases 2⅝c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Later, helped by strength of wheat, corn quickly tilted upward. Bulls gave emphasis meanwhile to relative scarcity of old corn and said that reports about the new corn crop had become rather too glowing. Oats followed corn.

SUNDAY GAMES TO TEST UNLIMITED CLASS LEADERS

Ross-Douglas Game to End Triple Tie

Georgetown, St. Joe Risk Clean Records in Contests.

Eagle Nine to Dedicate New Diamond at Anacostia.

LEADERS will clash in the section B games of the Capital City League on Sunday, when the Ross Council Junior Order Nine and the Douglas A. C., undefeated to date, meet at the barracks at 1 o'clock. The Auths, also tied for the lead with these two teams, play the Medical Center Nine at Walter Reed.

While the leaders are clashing in section B, the leaders in section A will be meeting strong opposition. The Jewish Community Center Team has been priming all week for its game with Georgetown at the Barracks. Addison is laying for the undefeated St. Joseph's Nine when the two meet at Silver Spring. The Dreadnaughts must face the rejuvenated Maryland A. C. Nine, while the Celtics are slated with Petworth.

A game which is drawing special attention is the clash between the Eagles and the Army War College Team on the Eagles' new diamond, at Fourteenth street and Ridge place southeast.

The field, which is to be known as "Terrett Field," has been placed in excellent shape, and a big sign in center field has the words "Capital City League" painted on it to designate that it will be one of the home fields of the Capital City League.

Backed by the Citizens Association the Eagles will open on the new field with the War College Team with impressive ceremonies. A representative of the Citizens Association will toss out the first ball.

At Arlington diamond, Manager Dueterman will send Laycock to the mound in an effort to defeat the Shamrocks. Laycock won his first game. Opposing him will probably be Speed Augustine.

The Clovers will travel to District Heights for a game with the District Heights Team. The suburban team has hit its stride and has been proving hard for the other clubs to stop of late. The Clovers, however, are confident of victory.

Gaity Hamel, star twirler of the Woodridge Team after twirling a brilliant game in his first time out only to be beaten in his next starts, claims to be in shape and ready to cause the Chevy Chase Bearcats plenty of grief. Manager McAuliffe, of the Chevy Chase Club, plans to start Claude on the mound against the Woodridge Club. The two will meet at Friendship Field and the outcome will be bitterly contested.

St. Joseph's Prepares For Addison Contest

The St. Joseph's Nine of the Capital City League will practice today at 5:30 on the Union Station Plaza in preparation for their game with the Addisons Sunday at Silver Spring.

Stolle, Farrell and Johnny Morris are back with the club again. At present the Saints are tied with the Georgetown A. C. for the leadership of the league.

New Legion Teams In Game Tomorrow

The Powhatan Arrows and the American University Nine, two teams recently mustered to bring the District quota of teams to 17, so that Washington would be eligible to compete in the Junior World series competition will play their first game on Diamond No. 10 tomorrow

This will be a game of the American Legion section of the Capital City League. As the teams were organized late, they will not be in final running when the team is chosen to represent Washington in the final game at American League Park on June 30.

RICKARD'S HAND SEEN IN GREATER BALLYHOO

however. He figures it will draw close to $2,000,000, higher by about a half million than his original estimate. He bases it on a seating capacity at the Yankee Stadium of 97,000, the biggest for any sports event ever held in New York City, and a price scale of $5 to $40, including tax. The promoter will ask the boxing commission tomorrow to approve these figures.

The "ringside" areas, if they are filled, will contribute $1,000,000 alone on the basis of Rickard's figuring—exactly half of the prospective or possible "gate."

Big-business methods, high-powered ballyhoo and all that sort of thing came into reality with the Dempsey-Carpentier fight seven years ago.

Rickard's ventures have hit higher figures since then, but if any one asks him out of what enterprise he got the most satisfaction, from the viewpoint of a promotion spectacle, he will admit it was the international clash between Gorgeous Georges and Tiger Jack at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Rickard needed the high-pressure stuff then about as badly as he does now. Carpentier was not considered by the experts to have more than the ghost of a chance against the bigger, more rugged and harder-hitting Dempsey. Developments in the ring substantiated this critical opinion, but in the meantime Carpentier's "famous right," the hypnotic eye of his manager, Francois Descamps, and a few other factors helped smoke up popular interest and attract a "gate" of $1,600,000.

Subsequently the magnetic effect on the turnstiles of the two-fisted Dempsey, the greatest natural drawing card the ring has ever known, gave first aid to the ballyhoo, and did it rather easily While Dempsey was figuring in the big battles there was no need to call in expert advisors or resort to unusual methods to stimulate the popular interest.

Navy Lacrosse Team Drills Here Today for Olympic Test

TAKING a vigorous workout Wednesday, Army followed with a lighter yesterday against the best opposition the plebes could offer before leaving West Point for this city, they will take part in the semifinal round in the Olympic playoff series at Central Stadium tomorrow. Army is slated to meet Hopkins at 4 o'clock, with Navy playing Maryland at 2 o'clock.

Army's famous scoring combination of Harry Wilson to Blondy Saunders was working well in scrimmage and Coach Frank Grace appeared pleased with Army's showing.

The Army contingent, headed by Maj Mumma, which in addition to Coach Grace and the players will include head football Coach Biff Jones and Trainer Frank Wandle will arrive in Washington late today. The team will be quartered at Wardman Park Hotel.

Navy will arrive here this morning and will work out at Central Stadium at 9:15 o'clock. Coach George Finlayson has his Middie players in excellent shape and confident of victory over Maryland.

Maryland players accepted Navy's prediction of victory with grim determination and silence yesterday. The team went about its daily drill with a little more vim which bodes no good for Navy. Maryland has beaten Navy once and is willing to let the issue be settled on the field at Central tomorrow and not until then.

Rumblings from Johns Hopkins camp in Baltimore are to the effect that Army would be in for a battle and that the Cadets will face a much more stubborn attack than they did in April, when they defeated the Baltimoreans, 5 to 3

The combination of Capt. Seeman, Harbold and Born, first, second and third defense, halted the Hopkins attack, but Army will stack up against a group tomorrow which apparently has found its scoring power.

Tom Biddison and Bill Logan, the two Hopkins' offensive threats, will be watched, but if this pair cause Army the worry that they caused the Mount Washington twelve last week, Army will be in for a bad time.

Charles L. Ornstein, chairman of the Olympic lacrosse committee, after making a check of the ticket sales in Baltimore and in this city at the A. G. Spalding store, 1332 G street, predicted that all previous lacrosse attendance records would be shattered tomorrow.

A delegation of 3,000 Baltimore fans are expected to attend the games here and root for their favorite, Johns Hopkins and Maryland. To handle the crowd the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads will run special trains and are offering a special rate of $1.50 a round trip.

The gates at Central Stadium will be open at 12:30 o'clock. The concrete stands will accommodate approximately 7,000 people. With bleacher seats another 1,000 to 1,500 can be seated. No seats will be reserved and those first to come will be first served.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, has detailed a special body of police to handle traffic, the crowds and to assist in parking.

GRIGSBY GETS CHANCE IN TRIALS

G. U. Star, in A.A.U. Mat Finals, Seeks Olympic Berth.

CLAUDE GRIGSBY, Georgetown University's star center, who was placed on several All-American football teams last season, was named yesterday as one of the twelve wrestlers eligible to compete in the National A. A. U. wrestling championships and final Olympic tryouts, which will be held at Grand Rapids, Michigan, on July 4, 5 and 6. Announcement of the selection was made through Marvin H. Markle, of Baltimore, chairman of the sectional body's mat committee.

The selections were based strictly upon the results of the recent South Atlantic titular meet in which Grigsby won the title in the 174-pound class.

Ten of the twelve named are almost certain to compete. The only drawback which might hold one or two from competing is the fact that organizations which they represent are not financially able to pay their expenses.

Grigsby, who is now in Chicago, is expected to compete, as the jump to Grand Rapids would be a short one. Following is the list of the eligibles:

134 pounds—John Eareckson, Baltimore Y. M. C. A., champion; Henry May, Richmond Y. M. C. A., runner-up.
Heavyweight—H. L. Edwards, Navy, champion.

Cubs Beat Dodgers; Petty Weakens in 8th

Brooklyn, June 14 (A.P.).—Jess Petty weakened in the eighth today, and Chicago won the final game of the series, 7 to 3, to even the count at two victories each. Petty's successor, Jim Elliott, also had a trying time in the eighth, and succumbed in the ninth when Rube Ehrhardt was called in to retire the side.

Art Nehf pitched well for the Cubs for seven innings, and received credit for the victory. Bush finished up for Chicago after Nehf gave way to a pinch batsman. Rube Bressler's home run in the fourth represented one of the only two runs Brooklyn was able to score off Nehf.

Hafey's Homer Wins For Cards in Ninth

Boston, June 14 (A.P.).—Bottomley's triple in the ninth, followed by Hafey's home run into the center field bleachers, enabled St. Louis to come from behind and win their fourth straight game from the Braves today, 3 to 2. Up to the ninth Genewich had held the Cardinals to three hits.

The home-run orgy, which had run to 48 circuit clouts in fifteen Braves' home games, was stemmed today by ground rules, which allowed two bases on a ball driven into the new left field stands. One Cardinal and three Braves knocked balls into these stands, which are in process of demolition.

Umpire Pfirman was bombarded with pop bottles by irate Boston fans in the fourth when he ordered Manager Rogers Hornsby from the game for protesting the umpire's calling him out on strikes None of the missiles found the target.

CAPITAL CITY HOMERS ARE SCARCE

CHACONAS, of Georgetown, of the unlimited division of the Capital City League, and Beamer, of D. J. Kaufman, of the senior division of the league, are tied for home-run honors and for the trophy which will go to the batter of these two divisions who knocks the most number of home runs during the season. Each has two.

In the unlimited ranks Chaconas has a big rival on his own team in the person of Taylor, who has been hitting consistently all season long.

Sweeney, of the Dreadnaughts, has the distinction, however, of knocking a home run with the bases loaded. It happened in the first game of the season, with the Dreadnaughts opposed to the Woodridge Club.

Gaiety Hamel, pitching for the Woodridge Club, walked the first three men to face him without throwing a strike. Sweeney followed with a home run. Hamel then settled down and not a man reached second base for the rest of the game, however.

Among those who have connected for the circuit are Simon, of the Jewish Community Center Team; Sweeney, of the Dreadnaughts; Taylor, of Georgetown; J. Hamilton, of the Celtics; G. Skinner, of Petworth; League of the Army Medical Center; Bozek, of the Dreadnaughts; Charles, of Georgetown; Haas of the Shamrocks; Comer, of the Busmen; Long, of Woodridge; Demma, of the Holy Rosary Team; Forrest and Drissell, of Brown & Wood, and Fulmer, of the Aztecs.

Ray Bryan, winner of the trophy, will defend his title next Monday when the sports writers of the city frolic on the links of the War College course as the guests of Capt. Frank B. Hayne, athletic officer of the War College and successor to Capt. John R. D. Cleland, donor of the cup. Eighteen holes will be played by the 25 aspirants for the coveted cup. The handicap list will be published tomorrow, maybe.

Choppy Water Limits Practice for Crews

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 14 (A.P.) Pennsylvania's varsity and junior varsity crews rested today after the varsity's remarkable time trial up-stream last night, when the 4 miles were pulled in 19 minutes, less than seven seconds more than the course record, which has stood for 27 years.

Jim Wray, jr., went down the river with the Cornell junior and freshman crews, as did Dick Glendon, sr., with the Navy, which, on the way back, was put through as much of a sprint as the choppy waters would permit. Southerly winds continued today to make rowing practice unsatisfactory.

Syracuse came down the river from Crum Elbow for about 2 miles and Columbia rowed down and back for a total of about 2imles.

Mendez Must Fight For Olympic Berth

Buenos Aires, June 14 (A.P.).—Hector Mendez, Argentina's boxer-diplomat, who is consul at Baltimore, will have to fight his way into the Olympic games after he reaches Amsterdam.

This was revealed today with the publication of the list of boxers who will represent Argentina in the Olympic boxing contests. Paul Landini, welterweight, will go to Amsterdam with the team and there fight it out with Mendez to determine which will represent Argentina at the weight.

Mendez lost the welterweight Olympic title to Delarge, the Belgian, in the final of the boxing championships, which the United States team won in 1924. The Argentines finished fourth

The style of fighting employed by Mendez is most peculiar. He stands squarely in front of his opponent with neither foot pressed forward, taking a tremendous amount of punishment to set himself for broadsides to the head and body. The American welterweight representative in the 1924 games, Al Mello, of Lowell, Mass., wore himself out battering Mendez and could not match the finishing spurt that gave the South American the judges' decision.

Navy Mermen Break 2 Records in Training

Annapolis, Md., June 14 (A.P.).—Naval Academy swimmers, training here for the Olympic games, were credited with breaking two world records today in trials sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Association and timed by officials of the South Atlantic Athletic Association.

The first record to go by the board saw Rule, Wyckoff, Turner and Coale lower the 880-yard world's short course relay mark from the former time of 9:27 to 9:21.

In the 1,100-yard short course swim the Navy tankmen were timed in 11:47 3-5, as against the former record of 12:12. Wyckoff, Turner, Coale and Brown composed the relay for the 1,100-yard distance.

SOCCER BODY HEADED BY MACBETH

National Chiefs Attend Election; The Post's Work Noted.

JOHN MacBETH last night was elected president of the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association to succeed William G. Burch, for three years head of organized soccer in this section. MacBeth's election was unanimous at a meeting of the association's officials held at the municipal playground department's office.

Formerly president of the Washington Soccer League, a subsidiary organization of the Washington and Southeastern District Association, Mr. MacBeth has taken an active part in the promotion of soccer in this section and was one of the organizers of the present body, which is now affiliated with the United States Football Association.

George Youngblood, president of the Capital City Soccer League last season, was elected vice president of the association. John Mulloch and Robert Bruce were renamed secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The Washington Association was highly praised for its conduct of the sport in this section by Edward Cahill, secretary of the United States Football Association, who attended last night's meeting. Mr. Cahill characterized the growth and administration of the sport here as amazing and paid high tribute to the league's retiring officers.

Edward J. Giglane, president of the United States Soccer Referees Association, also addressed the meeting.

Secretary Malloch will attend the meeting of the national body in Milwaukee June 29 in the interest of the local association.

Expressing his gratification at the growth of the sport, Mr. Cahill announced that he would present a trophy to the winner of the game between picked teams of Washington and Baltimore for the championship of the two cities next season. He also noted in his address the leading part taken by The Washington Post in sponsoring soccer in Washington.

GOLFERS ARE PAIRED FOR NATIONAL OPEN

Harry Vardon, Ray's famous compatriot, is the last of the former champions to leave the tee, his starting time being 1:35 and his partner George Howard, of Canton, Ohio. When Vardon won the title in a successful invasion 28 years ago it was over another Chicago district course—that of the Chicago Golf Club, at Wheaton, Ill.

Among the entries there is also a sprinkling of former national amateur and British open championship winners. The former amateur champs, in addition to Jones and Evans, include George Von Elm, Los Angeles star, who won that title in 1926. He leaves the first tee at 10:15 o'clock with Charles H. Hoffner, of Somers Point, N. J.

The present holders of the three big golfing championships, all of whom are entered in this tournament, get a uniformly good break in starting times. Bobby Jones, amateur champion, is assigned 9:45 o'clock the first day and 12:45 o'clock the second, while Tommy Armour, open champion, has 10:35 and 1:35 and Walter Hagen, British open king, 11:05 and 2:05.

Alex A. "Sandy" Armour, of Congressional will be the first of the Washington contingent to tee off. Paired with Edward Dudley, of Chicago, he will get away at 8:45 a. m. J. Monroe Hunter, of Indian Spring, will play with Frank Walsh, of Appleton, Wis.

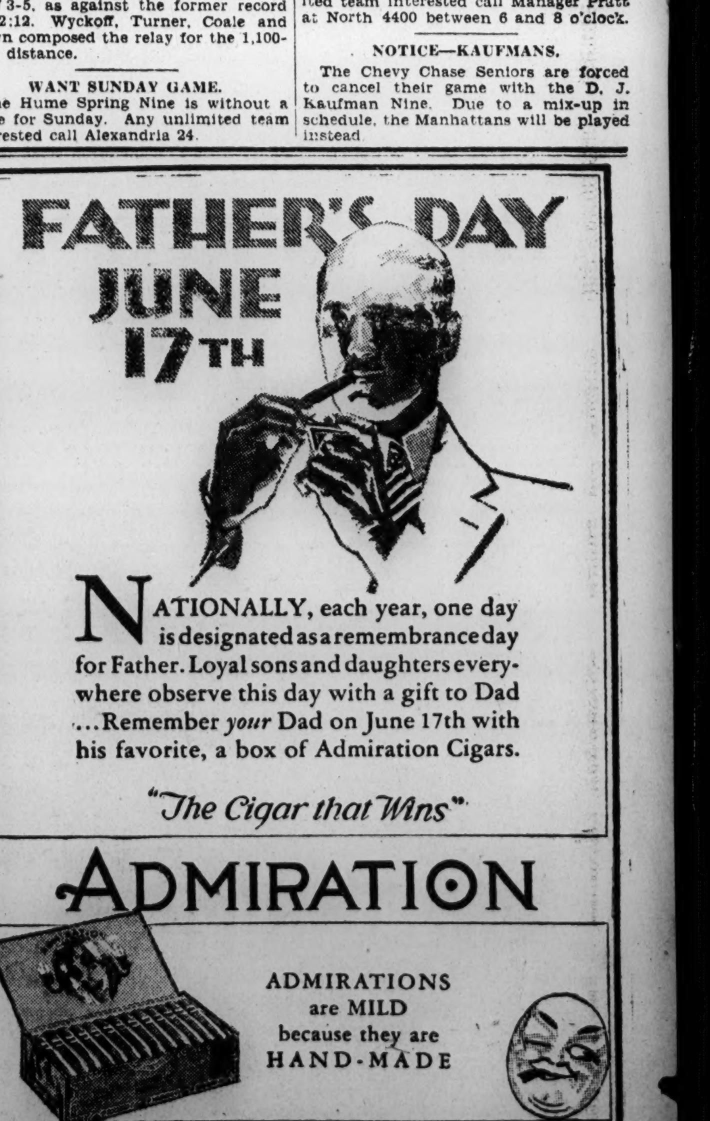

Tommy Armour will leave tomorrow for Chicago in order to play a few practice rounds on the Olympia Fields course. Fred McLeod, Columbia, and Alexander Armour, Congressional, will accompany him.

WANT SUNDAY GAME.

The Stadium A. C. Nine is without a game for Sunday and is anxious to book an out-of-town opponent. Any unlimited team interested call Manager Pruitt at North 4400 between 6 and 8 o'clock.

NOTICE—KAUFMANS.

The Chevy Chase Seniors are forced to cancel their game with the D. J. Kaufman Nine. Due to a mix-up in schedule, the Manhattans will be played instead

FAMOUS FRENCH REVIEW WILL GO ON AIR TONIGHT

CITES SERVICE CONCERT

The setting for the first of a new series of programs scheduled for 8 o'clock tonight through WRC and associated stations of the National Broadcasting Co. is the famous Les Ambassadeurs, open-air music hall in Paris. Today Les Ambassadeurs is staging a review, with Kathryn Ray and Eleanor Shaler, late of Broadway, in the cast, as well as French artists, and a famous American jazz band, Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Just 100 years ago it began as the first Parisian cafe concert. Little now remains to remind one of its long history, excepting its marvelous location in the Champs Elysees gardens and memories of many famous artists who made their reputations on the stage of Les Ambassadeurs, such as Zulma, Bouffar, Yvette Guilbert, the internationally known diseuse; Polaire, once known as the ugliest woman on the stage, and the unfortunate Gabys Deslys, friend of kings and once dancing partner of Harry Pilcer.

The singing cast for the broadcast, which will endeavor to portray the above to listeners, has been chosen not only on account of their voices, but also for their ability to sing French as it would be sung in Paris. The program numbers will consist of both French and American songs, among which are "Hallalujah," with a French chorus; a beautiful old Franch waltz called "Reviens: Come Back to Me," and one of the newest song hits now current in Paris, "Les Reves Sont des Boules de Savon" ("Dreams Are Like Soap Bubbles"), which will be heard for probably the first time in America.

The Cities Service Orchestra will play a concert arrangement of Dr. Billy Axt's "Fleurette" and two dances from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Tsar of Saltan." Among the selections by the Cavaliers will be Harry T. Burleigh's arrangement of the negro spiritual "Standing in the Need of Prayer." A distinct musical novelty will mark the Palmolive hour to be broadcast at 9 o'clock. It will be the soprano and tenor duet "Insieme," which will be sung for the first time on the air by Olive Palmer, coloratura soprano, and Paul Oliver, tenor. "One Thousand and One Nights," a waltz by Strauss, will be played by the Slumber Music String Sextet, directed by Ludwig Laurier. The entire evening program is subject to cancellation at the last moment, however, in case a night session is held at the Republican convention in Kansas City.

Station WMAL has arranged a Brunswick concert from 12 to 12:45 o'clock today. However, Mr. Pierson, director of the station, announces that if the Republican convention proceedings are being broadcast locally at that time, the concert will be canceled in order to give crystal and small set owners a chance to hear the convention clearly. A musical program by the Washington College of Music is on the evening schedule of the station, also a joint recital by Theodore F. Menk, tenor; Marbury Seaman, basso, and Grace Stanley Stevens, pianist.

Another DeWolf Hopper period will be broadcast by station WRHF at 6:30 o'clock tonight, preceded by a weekly resume of District government affairs by James E. Chinn.

St. Vincent's Asylum Lawn Fete to Open

The annual lawn fete for the benefit of the St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum will be opened tomorrow night on the asylum grounds, Fourth and Franklin streets northeast, and continue until June 23. The event is promoted under the auspices of the St. Vincent's Auxiliary, and the proceeds will go to the care of 150 children housed at the institution.

The committee in charge is composed of Frank Gunning, general chairman; Miss Dorothy P. Nesline, secretary; Miss Mary Devlin, treasurer; Miss Georgie Newell, Mrs. Albert Cullen, Mrs. James Divver, Miss Helen Cavanaugh, Mrs. James C. Simpson, Mrs. Frank Nesline, Miss Thelma Divver, Miss Nettie Fitzgerald, John Cotter and Emmet Carr.

St. Alban's to Lay Hall Corner-Stone

The corner stone to a new addition to the Parish Hall at St. Alban's Church will be laid this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl will lay the corner stone. Other clergy participating in the service will be the Rev. W. F. Carpenter, the Rev. T. J. Purdue, the Rev. W. W. Shearer, and the Rev. C. T. Warner. The large increase in the Sunday school membership made necessary the new addition, which will be dedidated to the late Right Rev. Henry Yates, Satterlee, first Bishop of Washington.

Mrs. Hilleary will be assisted by Miss Sarah Scheibe, Mrs. Florence Grubbe and Lester L. Hilleary.

Kiwanians Write "Republican" Planks

Satires on the Republican national convention in Kansas City by John J. Earl G. Wilhoite, vice president of Price, Wilhoite Specialty Co., and Luther B. Sleet, vice president of the Capital Cigar Co., were introduced as new members by Claude H. Woodward, past president. A musical program was presented by Jack Pepper, Joe Baumbrest and George Lyons, of the Earle Theater. Visiting Kiwanians included Alonzo L. Baker, Mountain View, Calif.; M. W. Ricker, of Walton, N. Y.; F. H. Chant, of Pittsfield, Mass., and J. D. Johnson, of Decatur, Ill.

BIRTHDAY OF FLAG HONORED BY CITY WITH EXERCISES

The story of the flag was recounted to children in a hundred schools yesterday, and patriotic societies representative of the entire city paid homage to the colors, as Washington turned aside from the routine of the day to celebrate the 156th anniversary of the adoption of Old Glory.

Approximately 4,000 persons gathered last night on the east steps of the Capitol for the principal exercises of the day, exercises that were sponsored by the Grand Army of the Republic, the Women's Relief Corps and associated patriotic organizations.

Tribute to the flag was paid by Representative William E. Andrews, who urged adherence to the ideals it symbolizes and extolled the surviving members of the G. A. R. as illustrative of the quality of loyalty to flag and country.

Concert by Army Band.

The exercises opened with a concert by the United States Army Band, under the direction of Capt. William J. Stannard. There was ensemble singing of "America," with William Schmucker leading, and a call to the colors by Army buglers.

Maj. Gen. John L. Clem, retired, presided in the place of Department Commander William M. Bobb, who was unable to attend, and the invocation was by the Rev. John C. Palmer. Hazzard Wheeler, department color bearer, and Percy Parker, officiated in the presentation of the colors.

Following the address, Mr. Schmucker led the Palisade Chorus in the singing of patriotic songs, and the exercises were concluded with benediction by William Dorsey, chaplain of Post No. 2.

Flag Day dawned here yesterday upon a city "dressed" for the occasion. Banners of all sizes, textures and conditions, hung from poles in every residential section, and downtown streets were gay with color, as merchants erected the metal poles adopted last year as standard.

Exercises at the schools took the form of assemblies attended by the entire student bodies. Brig. Gen. Ewing E. Booth outlined the history of the colors to the students of Central High School, and Brig. Gen. Frank Parker, assistant chief of staff of the Army, spoke at Western. Arthur Robb, division chief at the Department of Justice, addressed the Eastern High School students.

Postal Honors Paid.

At the Postoffice Department Building, the clerical force gathered in corridor balconies on five floors witnessed a program of music presented from the huge central court. Opened with invocation by the Rev. James H. Taylor, the exercises were featured by a concert by the Marine Band.

There was a program by the Rubinstein Club, solos by Errico Giorgi and Ethel Holtzclaw Gawler and numbers by Ethel H. Gawler, William P. Shanahan and Nicholas Cicchese. Claude Robeson directed a special chorus, Earl Carbaugh served as musical director and George H. Wilson accompanist.

Exercises at Other Schools.

Schools observing the day with appropriate exercises included the Jefferson and Columbia Junior High Schools, where Mrs. Nina Reed addressed the students; the Adams, Force and Thomas elementary schools, where Mrs. William Wolff was speaker; the Madison School, where an address was made by Mrs. Ethel Fowler; the Weightman, Mrs. Norman Nock; the Janney, Mrs. Lucia R. Maxwell; the Oyster, Mrs. Edward N. Dingley; Henry Cook, Mrs. Claud Brigham; John Eaton, Mrs. Luther E. Gregory; the Roselle, Fairbrother and Dell Schools, Mrs. Herbert Hawley Locher; Thomas B. Bryan and Buchanan Schools; Lieut. Frederick A. Henney; E. V. Brown School, Mrs. Mary Parker, and Webster School, Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper.

More than 4,000 colored children of elementary schools made a pilgrimage by motor caravan to Flag Day exercises at the home of Frederick Douglass, Cedar Hill, Anacostia, yesterday, Miss E. F. G. Merritt, supervising principal, presiding. Original poems and playlets were presented. The program included: "Welcome Ode," Harold Jacks (Mott); "Ode to Douglass," Henry Dixon (Garrison); "Union and Liberty," sixth grade (Stevens); "Flag Day," Clinton Mattingly (Briggs); "The Message of the Flag," pupils of Cook; orginal acrostics by pupils of Harrison School, and a pantomime, "Scenes from the Life of Douglass," Cleveland School.

Sing Negro Anthems.

Other numbers were: "The Black Regiment," Elmer Kemp (Logan); "Sail On," Alonzo Caldwell (Slater-Langston); "An Apostrophe," girls of Payne School; "Up With the Flag," pupils of Eilson School; "Douglass and the Flag," Raymond Weir (Bruce); "The Color Guard," pupils of Sumner-Magruder, and "Douglass," Ruth Kelly and John Johnson, Banneker-Jones School.

Musical numbers included the national negro anthem; a pupil chorus, "Seeking for Me," the favorite hymn of Douglass, conducted by A. H. Johnson, and a solo, "The Star-Spangled Banner," Virginia Williams. Special addresses were made by Assistant Superintendents G. C. Wilkinson and E. A. Clark. The program committee consisted of Miss M. E. Shorter, Miss L. C. Arnold and Mrs. M. T. Lattimore.

The Brookland Citizens Association last night joined with children of the Brookland Public School in Flag Day exercises at the Masonic Hall, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast. Directed by Miss Margaret Pepper, principal of the school, and Miss Alma Lord, teacher, pupils of the seventh and eighth grades staged "A Man Without a Country."

At a brief meeting of the association held preceding the exercises, the association adopted a resolution urging the erection of a graded school on the site at Tenth and Franklin streets northeast.

BOY FOUND IN SWAMP IDENTIFIED BY FATHER

The body found late Wednesday night in a swamp near Riggs road and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks was identified yesterday morning by the father of Elvin R. Troxel, jr., 16-year-old McKinley High School student, who claimed the body as that of his son. The boy had been missing from home, at 704 Randolph street northwest, since May 26.

Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, acting coroner, after viewing the body, issued a certificate of suicide. Troxel was a lieutenant of cadets and ranked high in his studies. His father, chief clerk of the fuel and transportation division of the Navy Department, was at a loss to account for the boy's action.

Beside the body was found a .32-caliber revolver of a cheap model. The father said that the weapon had never been in his son's possession at their home. The boy's body was resting upon the wheel of his bicycle, which he had carried into the swamp where he ended his life. One bullet had been fired, the shot taking effect in the boy's head. Three unexploded cartridges remained in the revolver.

Submerged in the wreckage of a seaplane, which plunged into the Potomac River near Highway Bridge yesterday afternoon, two passengers, who were rescued from drowning by the prompt action of Pilot Thomas Durfee, are at Emergency Hospital under treatment for serious injuries. The accident occurred when Durfee, flying low over the bridge, swerved sharply to avoid a collision with the tugboat Minerva towing two barges upstream. The injured men are F. Bisman, 30 years old, and Walter Luhrs, 23 years old, both of Brooklyn, N. Y., who are registered at the Annapolis Hotel in this city.

Sideslips Into River.

The plane, according to eyewitnesses, after being headed toward Arlington Beach, was seen to make a sharp right-hand turn, sideslipping from the low altitude into the river about 150 yards west of the Highway Bridge. The water at that point is about 6 feet deep, due to the presence of a mud bank which caught and held the wing of the plane, imprisoning occupants of the cabin beneath the water's surface.

Durfee, who escaped with minor injuries, hurriedly dragged his passengers from the cabin to the fuselage, projecting from the water. The tugboat, commanded by Capt. Frederick Kintz, cast off its barges and pulled alongside. The injured men were taken ashore at the Lincoln Memorial Bridge.

Durfee refused hospital treatment and would not leave the wrecked aircraft until he had completed his survey of the damage. He was later taken to the Corinthian Yacht Club landing in a motor boat.

Expected to Recover.

Bisman and Luhrs were taken to Emergency Hospital where the Fire Department Rescue Squad revived Bisman, who had been unconscious due to the immersion. Luhrs was treated for a broken knee, sprained back and injuries to his head. Both will recover, it was said at the hospital.

Durfee, relating his experience to police, said that he had flown across the bridge at a low altitude and was preparing to bring the craft to the water's surface when he saw the tugboat and its barges which had just come through the drawbridge. The wrecked plane was a Curtiss Sea Gull, painted bright red. It was owned by the Potomac Flying Service, operators of Hoover Field.

Charles A. Rhodes, Who Held Up Runners, Faces Term of 25 Years in Prison.

Charles A. Rhodes, 23, who turned robber on March 27 at Fourteenth street and Columbia road northwest and stole $6,573 from Robert B. Morris and Louis Fridinger, youthful runners for the Federal-American National Bank, pleaded guilty to charge of robbery yesterday before Justice Frederick L. Siddons in Criminal Court.

According to the record, Rhodes may be sentenced to serve a total of 25 years in prison. He already was out on probation on a charge of stealing an automobile. On November 12 the court suspended the imposition of sentence for a period of two years on the automobile charge, and the court has the power to impose the maximum sentence of ten years in this case as Rhodes has violated the terms of his probation. The maximum penalty for robbery is fifteen years.

The bank runners were followed for three weeks by Rhodes, according to his confession, in order that he could time their movements. After their holdup in an automobile which moved swiftly by reason of a pistol held in the hand of Rhodes, the latter made the mistake of "flashing" a $50 bill from the stolen cash to the manager of an automobile rental agency. Rhodes was remanded and will be sentenced next week.
